Zam-Buk Brought Relief.

At this time of the year children are liable to all kinds of torturing rashes and eruptions, and the advice of Mrs. F. Rowe of 1 Oxford St., London, (Ont.) is timely. She says:—"A horrid rash broke out on my little girl's face. The child suffered acutely with the burning and itching and grew quite restless. A friend advised me to try Zam-Buk. I did so, and was surprised to see how quickly it cleared away the rash. The very first application seemed to cool and ease the burning and itching, making the child rest easier. In several days he was completely cured not a mark remaining on the skin to show where the trouble had been. Zam-Buk is the best healing balm yet used."

DEATH OF ANDREW COULTER, J. P.

On Monday, 6th July there entered paradise one of the saintliest and best known characters of Sheffield township pioneers, in the person of Andrew Coulter. His funeral to Christ Church, Tamworth, was very largely attended, and all who listened to the rector's sermon will not soon forget what was said. The text was II. Tim., iv. 7, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course. I have kept the faith," etc. The character of the man was thus described. He was a man of average statute, easy gait and firm step; always tidy in appearance—with a word of welcome and an honest look. His salutation was 'What is the best word,' with a true hearty handshake. Having a sweet generous disposition, and possessing patient industrious, temperate habits he bore his three score and fifteen years well. Anxiously striving to please God and to serve man in his day and generation he kept the two great commandments ever before him, (i) Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy mind, soul, and strength, and (ii) Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." He said to Christ, serve the Lord in the home, among the people and at Church.

Money, lands, influence, power, politics were not his god. Other people's wants, pains, happiness were more to him than his own. Few if any appealed to him in vain. His strength in this time, his health and his influence were enjoyed by those who sought a share. They were never disappointed of their hope in Andrew Coulter. He served all. He never tired in his goodness. Mean, covetous, selfish, ugly, dishonest, dishonorable and such like nasty words find no fitting place in his character istics, but words such as large-hearted, sympathetic, hospitable, generous considerate, courteous, kind, patient, honest, honorable, hopeful and intensely loving are all true descriptions of the man. He loved justice, mercy and truth was ever a maker of peace and lover of concord.

His end was the Father in Heaven revealed to him in the person of Jesus Christ—his redeemer, and sealed to him by the grace of the Holy Spirit. He walked with God, tried to keep His commandments and to harmonise his will to the Divine. In public and private life he was a great influence for good; his power was felt because he was loved. He had no enemies. He served the people as deputy reeve and his King as magistrate. He was an Organist, a true Conservative, and a charter member of Tamworth A.O.U.W. lodge.

Christ Church, Tamworth, and its history is inseparately connected with the life of Andrew Coulter. He was the first to be married in the church, 13th May, 1858, and there for 43 years he worshipped God, attending nearly all the services, most devout and reverent communicant, a generous contributor to all church funds and first to bear the burden in the day of difficulties, and a most ready worker in all her activities. The church's temporal and spiritual affairs were to him a care. He was a churchwarden for many years, and for 43 years he was people's warden. Many a church matter—Andrew Coulter ranked pre-eminently first. He was called and was kindly. Nothing about his acts. He was the faithful steward in every instance. He preached the gospel in Christ Church, supporting and comforting him in the hour of death. His last illness when he was gladdened by encouraging results of efforts made to save dever but children as a memorial to him. Sunday his father. His God, his Church, his neighbor, and his home were the real objects of his life. No man was dead in the Township of late years had a life richer in good works than he, and most men have not even if it is but one—some afar off—where Andrew Coulter is. A true Christian gentleman is a good man, the salt of the earth. He practically died in harness, call suddenly, hemorrhage of the brain being the immediate cause of death, preceded by weakness of body and complete paralysis.

Now the day of toil is done.
Father grant Thy wearied one
Rest forever more!

Hence forth there is laid up for him a crown of Righteousness. Attentina!

There are many people in this vicinity at this season of the year who are all run down, no strength—hand is able to drag about. Don't know what ails them.

We want to say to every such person that our cod liver preparation Vinol, is the tonic reconstructor which they need. Vinol tones up the digestive organs, creates a healthy appetite, makes rich red blood, and strengthens every organ in the body to do its work. In this natural manner strength and vitality quickly replace weakness and lassitude.

Miss Rose Blair, president Sophomore class, Napanee High School, says:—"Last spring I was all run down, nervous, irritable and could not sleep. I tried many medicines without benefit. Vinol was recommended. It was delicious and not at all like the greasy cod liver oil and emulsions I was used to. Vinol gave me a hearty appetite and restored me to perfect health and strength."

Vinol is recognized throughout the world as an unexcelled strength creator for old people, weak, sickly women, delicate children and the convalescent.

He never tired in his goodness. Mean, covetous, selfish, ugly, dishonest, dishonorable and such like nasty words find no fitting place in his character istics, but words such as large-hearted, sympathetic, hospitable, generous considerate, courteous, kind, patient, honest, honorable, hopeful and intensely loving are all true descriptions of the man. He loved justice, mercy and truth was ever a maker of peace and lover of concord.

His end was the Father in Heaven revealed to him in the person of Jesus Christ—his redeemer, and sealed to him by the grace of the Holy Spirit. He walked with God, tried to keep His commandments and to harmonise his will to the Divine. In public and private life he was a great influence for good; his power was felt because he was loved. He had no enemies. He served the people as deputy reeve and his King as magistrate. He was an Organist, a true Conservative, and a charter member of Tamworth A.O.U.W. lodge.

Christ Church, Tamworth, and its history is inseparately connected with the life of Andrew Coulter. He was the first to be married in the church, 13th May, 1858, and there for 43 years he worshipped God, attending nearly all the services, most devout and reverent communicant, a generous contributor to all church funds and first to bear the burden in the day of difficulties, and a most ready worker in all her activities. The church's temporal and spiritual affairs were to him a care. He was a churchwarden for many years, and for 43 years he was people's warden. Many a church matter—Andrew Coulter ranked pre-eminently first. He was called and was kindly. Nothing about his acts. He was the faithful steward in every instance. He preached the gospel in Christ Church, supporting and comforting him in the hour of death. His last illness when he was gladdened by encouraging results of efforts made to save dever but children as a memorial to him. Sunday his father. His God, his Church, his neighbor, and his home were the real objects of his life. No man was dead in the Township of late years had a life richer in good works than he, and most men have not even if it is but one—some afar off—where Andrew Coulter is. A true Christian gentleman is a good man, the salt of the earth. He practically died in harness, call suddenly, hemorrhage of the brain being the immediate cause of death, preceded by weakness of body and complete paralysis.

Now the day of toil is done.
Father grant Thy wearied one
Rest forever more!

Hence forth there is laid up for him a crown of Righteousness. Attentina!

Run Down--Tired.

Napanee People Who Are in This Condition Are Asked to Read This Article.

There are many people in this vicinity at this season of the year who are all run down, no strength—hand is able to drag about. Don't know what ails them.
We want to say to every such person that our cod liver preparation Vinol, is the tonic reconstructor which they need. Vinol tones up the digestive organs, creates a healthy appetite, makes rich red blood, and strengthens every organ in the body to do its work. In this natural manner strength and vitality quickly replace weakness and lassitude.
Miss Rose Blair, president Sophomore class, Napanee High School, says:—"Last spring I was all run down, nervous, irritable and could not sleep. I tried many medicines without benefit. Vinol was recommended. It was delicious and not at all like the greasy cod liver oil and emulsions I was used to. Vinol gave me a hearty appetite and restored me to perfect health and strength."
Vinol is recognized throughout the world as an unexcelled strength creator for old people, weak, sickly women, delicate children and the convalescent.
Try Vinol on our offer to return money if it fails to give satisfaction. T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ontario.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism. Not a remedy that will straighten the deformities of chronic rheumatism, but a remedy that goes to the seat of the trouble and drives the poisons from the system—with a Chemist in the City of Toronto I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made perfect, dependable, powerful. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of rheumatism; but now, I will confidently state that in all curable cases of this heretofore painful disease, Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy will not only relieve the action of this remedy is quicker—it's surer when added to pure wheat alcohol, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes flow as if by magic. And the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no reason why you should suffer longer with pain and ache. We will, and in confidence recommend

CHAPTER X.

WHEN Constance Shirley, changing color. "You believe that John Burkett Ryder is at the bottom of this infamous accusation against father?"

It was the day following her arrival at Massapequa, and Shirley, the judge and Stott were all three sitting on the porch. Until now by common consent any mention of the impeachment proceedings had been avoided by every one. The previous afternoon and evening had been spent listening to an account of Shirley's experiences in Europe, and a smile had chased across even the judge's careworn face as his daughter gave a humorous description of the picturesque Parisian students with their long hair and peg top trousers, while Stott simply roared with laughter. Ah, it was good to laugh again after so much trouble and anxiety! But, while Shirley avoided the topic that lay nearest her heart, she was consumed with a desire to tell her father of the hope she had of enlisting the aid of Jessie Burkett Ryder. The great financier was certainly able to do anything he chose, and had not his son Jefferson promised to win him over to their cause? So today after Mrs. Rossmore and her sister had gone down to the village to make some purchases Shirley timidly broached the matter. She asked Stott and her father to tell her everything, to hold back nothing. She wanted to hear the worst.

Stott, therefore, started to review the whole affair from the beginning, explaining how her father in his capacity as judge of the supreme court had to render decisions, several of which were adverse to the corporate interests of a number of rich men, and how since that time these powerful interests had used all their influence to get him put off the bench. He told her about the Transcontinental case and how the judge had got mysteriously tangled up in the Great Northern Mining company and of the scandalous newspaper rumors, followed by the news of the congressional inquiry. Then he told her about the panic in Wall street, the sale of the house on Madison avenue and the removal to Long Island.

"That is the situation," said Stott when he had finished. "We are waiting now to see what the senate will do. We know the facts. It seems impossible that the senate will condemn a man whose whole life is like an open book, but unfortunately the senate is strongly Republican and the big interests are in complete control. Unless support comes from some unexpected quarter we must be prepared for anything."

Support from some unexpected quarter! Stott's closing words rang in Shirley's head. Was that not just what she had to offer? Unable to restrain herself longer and no longer able to keep unconsciously from suppressed emotion, she cried:

"We'll have that support! We'll have it! I've got it already! I wanted to surprise you! Father, the most powerful man in the United States will save you from being dishonored!"

The two men leaned forward in eager interest. What could the girl mean? Was she serious or merely jesting?

But Shirley was never more serious in her life. She was jubilant at the thought that she had arrived home in time to invoke the aid of this powerful ally. She repeated enthusiastically:

"We need not worry any more. He has but to say a word, and these proceedings will be instantly dropped. They would not dare act against his veto. Did you hear, father, your case is as good as won?"

"What do you mean, child? Who is this unknown friend?"

"Surely you can guess when I say the most powerful man in the United States? None other than John Burkett Ryder!"

She stopped short to watch the effect this name would have on her hearers, but to her great surprise neither her father nor Stott displayed the slightest emotion or even interest. Puzzled at this cold reception, she inquired:

"Did you hear, father—John Burkett Ryder will come to your assistance. I came home on the same ship as he did, and he promised to secure his father's aid."

"The judge puffed heavily at his pipe and merely shook his head, making no reply. Stott explained:

"We owe a look for help from that quarter, Shirley. You don't expect a man to cut loose his own kin, do you?"

"What do you mean?" demanded Shirley, mystified.

"Simply this, that John Burkett Ryder is the very man who is responsible for all your father's misfortunes."

The girl sank back in her seat pale and motionless, as if she had received a blow. Was it possible?

"Do you really believe this, that John Ryder deliberately connected the bribery charge with the sole purpose of ruining my father?" demanded Shirley, when she had somewhat recovered.

"There is no other solution of the mystery possible," answered Stott.

"And you, father, do you believe Ryder did this?"

"I have no longer any doubt of it," answered the judge, but think Ryder would see me dead before he would raise a finger to help me. His answer to my demand for my letters convinced me that he was the arch plotter."

"What letters do you refer to?" demanded Shirley.

"The letters I wrote to him in regard to my using my influence to advised the purchase of certain stock. I wrote him two letters at the time, which explains if I had them now would go a long way to clearing me of this charge of bribery, for they plainly showed that I regarded the transaction as a bona fide investment. Since this trouble began I wrote to Ryder asking him to return me these letters but I might use them in my defense. The only reply I got was an insolent note from his secretary saying that Mr. Ryder had forgotten all about the transaction, and in any case had not the letters I referred to."

"Curse him! yes curse! him to return them!" asked Shirley.

"We could never get at him," interrupted Stott. "The man is guarded as carefully as the czar."

"Still," objected Shirley, "it is possible he may have lost the letters or even never received them."

"Oh, he has them safe enough," replied Stott. "A man like Ryder keeps every scrap of paper, with the hope that it may prove useful some day. The letters are lying somewhere in his desk. Besides, after the transaction a neutral decision he was heard to say that he'd have Judge Rossmore off the bench inside of a year."

"And it wasn't a vain boast—he's done it," muttered the judge.

Shirley relapsed into silence. Her brain was in a whirl. It was true, then. This merciless man of money, this ogre of monopolistic corporations, this human juggernaut had crushed her father merely because by his honesty he interfered with his shady business deals! Ah, why had she spared him in her book? She felt now that she had been lenient, not bitter enough, not sufficiently pitiless. Such a man was entitled to no mercy.

Long after the judge and Stott had left for the city Shirley sat alone on the porch engrossed in thought, taxing her brain to find some way out of the darkness, and when presently her mother and aunt returned they found her still sitting there, silent and preoccupied. If they only had those two letters, she thought. They alone might save her father, but how could they be got at? Mr. Ryder had put them safely away, no doubt. He would not give them up. She must think of some way would be to go boldly to him and appeal to whatever sense of honor and fairness that might be left in the man within him. No, such a man would not know what the terms "honor," "fairness" meant. She pondered upon it all day, and at night when she went tired to bed it was her last thought as she dropped off to sleep.

The following morning Shirley went out for a walk. She preferred to go alone so she could not have to talk. Hers was one of those lonely, introspective natures that resent the intrusion of aimless chatter when preoccupied with serious thoughts.

Every now and then Shirley espied in the distance the figure of a man which she thought she recognized as that of Jefferson. Had he come, after all? The blood went coursing tumultuously through her veins only a moment later to leave her face a shade paler as the man came nearer, and she saw he was a stranger.

As she neared the cottage on her return home, she caught sight of the letter carrier approaching the gate. Instantly she thought of Jefferson, and she hurried to intercept the man. Perhaps he had written instead of coming. "Miss Shirley Rossmore?" said the man eying her interrogatively.

"That's I," said Shirley.

The postman handed her a letter and passed on. Shirley glanced quickly at the superscription. No, it was not from Jefferson; she knew his handwriting too well. The envelope, moreover, bore the firm name of her publishers. She tore it open and found that it merely contained another letter which the publishers had forwarded. The letter was addressed to Miss Shirley Green and ran as follows:

Dear Madam—If convenient, I should like to see you at my office, 36 Broadway, in relation to your book, "The American Idyll." Kindly inform me as to the day and hour at which I may expect you. Yours truly,

JOHN BURKETT RYDER.

Per B.

Shirley almost shouted from sheer excitement. At first she was alarmed at the name of Ryder appearing, but was such a bogey to frighten bad children with, she thought he might want to explain her part in the affair with him as she had. She hurried to the porch and sat there reading the letter over and over, and her brain began to evolve ideas. She had been wondering how she could get at Mr. Ryder, and here he was actually writing a call on him. Evidently he had not the slightest idea of her identity, for he had been able to reach her only through her publishers, and no doubt he had exhausted every other means of discovering her address. The more she pondered over it the more she began to see in this invitation a way of helping her father. Yes, she would go and plead with him in his den, but she would not go to his office. She would accept the invitation only on condition that the interview took place in the Ryder mansion, where undoubtedly the letters would be found. She decided to send immediately. Time was not to be lost, so she procured a sheet of paper and an envelope and wrote as follows:

Dear Sir—I do not call upon gentlemen at their business office. Yours etc.,

SHIRLEY GREEN.

Her letter was abrupt and at first glance seemed hardly calculated to bring about what she wanted—an invitation to call at the Ryder home, but she was shrewd enough to see that if Ryder wrote to her at all it was because he was most anxious to see her and her abruptness would not deter him from trying again. On the contrary, the very unusualness of any one thus dictating to him would make him more than ever desirous of making her acquaintance. So Shirley mailed the letter and awaited with confidence for Ryder's reply. So certain was she that one would come that she at once began to form her plan of action. She would leave Massapequa at once, and her whereabouts must remain a secret even from her own family. As she intended to go to the Ryder house in the assumed character of Shirley Green, it would never do to run the risk of being followed home by a Ryder detective to the Rossmore cottage. She would confide in no person only—Judge Stott. He would know where she was and would be in constant communication with her. But, otherwise, she must be alone to conduct the campaign as she judged fit. She would go at once to New York and take rooms in a boarding house where she would be known as Shirley Green. As for funds to meet her expenses, she had her diamonds, and would they not be filling a more useful purpose if sold to defray the cost of saving her father than in mere personal adornment? So that evening while her mother was talking with the judge she beckoned Stott over to the corner where she was sitting.

"Judge Stott," she began, "I have a plan."

He smiled indulgently at her.

"You said that no one on earth could resist John Burkett Ryder, that no one could fight against the money power. Well, do you know what I am going to do?"

"What will you do?" he asked with a slightly ironical inflection in his voice.

"I am going to fight John Burkett Ryder!" she cried.

Stott looked at her open mouthed.

"You?" he said.

"Yes, I," said Shirley. "I'm going to him, and I intend to get those letters if he has them."

Stott shook his head.

"My dear child," he said, "what are you talking about? How can you expect to reach Ryder? We couldn't."

"I don't know just how yet," replied Shirley, "but I'm going to try. I love my father, and I'm going to make nothing untried to save him."

"But what can you do?" persisted Stott. "The matter has been sifted over and over by some of the greatest minds in the country."

"Has any woman sifted it over?" demanded Shirley.

"No, but"—stammered Stott.

"Then it's about time one did," said the girl decisively. "Those letters my father speaks of—they would be useful, would they not?"

"They would be invaluable."

"Then I'll get them. If not"—

"But I don't understand how you're going to get at Ryder," interrupted Stott.

"That is how," replied Shirley, passing over to him the letter she had received that afternoon.

As Stott recognized the well known signature and read the contents the expression of his face changed. He gasped for breath and sank into a chair from sheer astonishment.

"Ah, that's different!" he cried. "That's different!"

Briefly Shirley outlined her plan, explaining that she would go to live in the city immediately and conduct her campaign from there. If she was successful, it might save her father, and if not no harm could become of it.

That same evening her mother, the judge and Stott went for a stroll after dinner and left her to take care of the house. They had wanted Shirley to go, too, but she pleaded fatigue. The truth was that she wanted to be alone, so that she could ponder undisturbed over her plans. It was a clear, starlit night, with no moon, and Shirley sat on the porch listening to the chirping of the crickets and idly watching the flashes of the mysterious fireflies. She was in no mood for reading and sat for a long time rocking herself, engrossed in her thoughts. Suddenly she heard some one unfasten the garden gate. It was too soon for the return of the promenaders. It must be a visitor. Through the uncertain gloom of the garden she discerned approaching a form which looked familiar. Yes, now there was no doubt possible. It was indeed Jefferson Ryder.

She hurried down the porch to greet him. No matter what the father had done, she could never think any the less of the son. He took her hand, and for several moments neither one spoke. There are times when silence is more eloquent than speech, and this was one of them. The gentle grip of his big, strong hand expressed more tenderly than any words the sympathy that lay in his heart for the woman he loved. Shirley said quietly:

"You have come at last, Jefferson."

"I came as soon as I could," he replied gently. "I saw father only yesterday."

"You need not tell me what he said," Shirley hastened to say.

Jefferson made no reply. He understood what she meant. He bent his head and hit viciously with his walking stick at the pebbles that lay at his feet.

"She went on:

"I know everything now. It was foolish of me to think that Mr. Ryder would ever help us."

"I can't help it in any way," blurted out Jefferson. "I have not the slightest influence over him. His business methods I consider disgraceful. You understand that, don't you, Shirley?"

The girl laid her hand on his arm and replied tenderly:

"Of course, Jeff, we know that. Come up and sit down."

They seated themselves on the porch and drew up a rocker beside her.

"They are all out for a walk," she explained.

"I'm glad," he said frankly. "I wanted a quiet talk with you. I did not care to meet any one. My name must be odious to your people."

Both were silent, feeling a certain awkwardness. They seemed to have drifted apart in some way since those delightful days in Paris and on the ship. This he said:

"I'm going away, but I couldn't go until I saw you."

"You are going away?" exclaimed Shirley, surprised.

"Yes," he said, "I cannot stand it any more at home. I had a hot talk with my father yesterday about one thing and another. He and I don't chin well together. Besides this matter of your father's impeachment has completely discouraged me. Ah the wealth in the world could never reconcile me to such methods! I'm ashamed of the role my own flesh and blood has played in that infernal affair. I can't express what I feel about it. But what are you going to do?" he asked. "These surroundings are not for you." He looked around at the cheap furnishings which he could see through the open window, and his face showed his concern.

"I shall teach or write, or go out as governess," replied Shirley, with a tinge of bitterness. Then smiling sadly she added: "Poverty is easy. It is unrestricted disgrace which is hard."

The young man drew his chair closer and took hold of the hand that lay in her lap. She made no resistance.

"Shirley," he said, "do you remember that talk we had on the ship? I asked you to be my wife. You led me to believe that you were not indifferent to me. I ask you again to marry me. Give me the right to take care of you and yours. I am the son of the world's richest man, but I don't want his money. I have earned a competence of my own—enough to live on comfortably. We will go away where you and your father and mother will make their home with us. Do not let the sins of others embitter the lives of the children."

"Mine has not sinned," said Shirley bitterly.

"I wish I could say the same of mine," replied Jefferson. "It is because the clouds are dark about you that I want to come into your life to comfort you."

The girl shook her head.

"No, Jefferson, the circumstances make such a marriage impossible. Your family and everybody else would say that I had inveigled you into it. It is even more impossible now than I thought it was when I spoke to you on the ship."

Emotion stopped her utterance, and she buried her face in her hands, weeping silently.

"Shirley," said Jefferson tenderly, "you are wrong. If you will not say 'Yes' now, I shall go away as I told my father I would, and one day I shall come back and then if you are still single I shall ask you again to be my wife."

"You may not want me then."

"I shall always want you," he whispered hoarsely, bending over her. In the dim light of the porch he saw that her face stained few was drawn and pale. He rose and held out his hand.

"Goodby," he said simply.

"Goodby, Jefferson." She rose and put her hand in his. "We will always be friends."

He held her hand to his lips.

"Goodby, Shirley. Don't forget me. I shall come back for you."

He went down the porch, and she watched him go out of the gate and down the road until she could see his figure no longer. Then she turned back and sank into her chair, and, burying her face in her handkerchief, she gave way to a torrent of tears which afforded some relief to the weight on her heart. Presently the others returned from their walk, and she told them about the visitor.

"Mr. Ryder's son, Jefferson, was here. We crossed on the same ship. I introduced him to Judge Stott on the dock."

The judge looked surprised, but he merely said:

"I hope for his sake that he is a different man from his father."

"He is," replied Shirley simply, and nothing more was said.

Two days went by, during which Shirley went on completing the preparations for her visit to New York. It was arranged that Stott should escort her to the city. Before they started for the train a letter arrived for Shirley. Like the first one, it had been forwarded by her publishers. It read as follows:

Miss Shirley Green:

Dear Madam—I shall be happy to see you at my residence—Fifth avenue—any afternoon that you may mention. Yours very truly,

JOHN BURKETT RYDER.

Per B.

Shirley smiled in triumph as, unseen by Stott, she slipped the note into her pocket. It ever to Stott. She at once sat down and wrote this reply:

THE STRENUOUS LIFE

PULLS SO HARD ON THE STOMACH IT MUST HAVE HELP

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in the city and country makes stomach troubles. Five people suffer to-day where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, dullness, distress after eating, sour stomach, sore eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness, and the many other symptoms of indigestion. All who are suffering with stomach troubles, and that means at least two out of three in Napanee and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Nothing else is as sure, yet effective; nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na.

So reliable is Mi-o-na that T. B. Wallace with every 50 cent box he sells, gives a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy cures.

SURE REGULATION—Mandrake is a mild but effective tonic and laxative, acting directly on the liver and kidneys, restoring them to healthful activity, inducing a free flow of bile, and thereby imparting to the organs complete power to perform their functions. Possibly that is the secret of its entering into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, and why they are so mild, agreeable and salutary medicine. Ask druggists for the pills or advertise to them in their action.

When going away from home, or at any change of habitat, be sure to have your numbers among the belongings a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial. —Mr. P. J. Gleeson met with an accident on Wednesday, breaking a bone in one of his ankles. He was pulling on a rope that some men were hauling a stick out of the canal with when the rope broke and Mr. Gleeson fell over a piece of lumber. We are pleased to say he is doing nicely.

—G. B. Joy has started the manufacture of cement blocks for building purposes on his recently acquired property. He has an unlimited supply of the very finest sand and has installed the best machinery procurable and intends making blocks for coping, and for any building purpose also. This will prove quite an acquisition to our industries.

—The Napanee baseball team leave to-morrow noon for Gananoque, where they will play a scheduled game with the team of that town. A return rate of $1.30 has been secured and a large number are going down with the boys and cheer them on to victory. You are cordially invited to go along.

The wedding was a very quiet one. The newly wedded couple left on the 12.36 G.T.R. train for the east.

—Among the names of the successful candidates at the recent examinations of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, we notice that of Miss Luella E. Hall, who graduated with honors in Organ and passed in intermediate Harmony. This result is highly creditable, seeing that Miss Hall completed her Organ work at the Conservatory in one year, a result very seldom accomplished with less than two years' instruction.

—On Friday last The Gibbard Furniture Co. shipped about $600.00 worth of dressers, chiffoniers, stands and dressing tables to the Governor-General's quarters, The Citadel, Quebec. This furniture was purchased for use during the Tercentenary Celebration. The goods were shipped by express. The only nourishment that bread affords is that which the flour contains.

Bread baking is merely putting flour in appetising form.

Flour making is merely putting the nutritious part of wheat in shape for bread making.

Good milling is the kind that takes from the wheat all that is nutritious, nothing else.

Royal Household Flour

is made from carefully selected Manitoba Hard spring wheat.

Every pound is almost a pound of food; clean, white, pure and nutritious.

It goes farther, does better baking and is more satisfactory in every way than any other flour.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Mr. Editor:—Your correspondent in last week's issue of The Beaver, under the heading of "Good Roads," says, I am not at all surprised to know there is still one man in the united counties who has no ambition or pride in good road making, and one who seems to revel in it, as he signs his name W. J. Is mage." Now, sir, I am also sorry for, one thing, that your correspondent was ashamed of his name, and had to get behind the bush to fire his gun. Now for he may be, I would like to acquaint him of this one fact, that W. J. Delmage is one of the men in the united counties that is not willing to accept of shoddy and pay for a genuine article. Evidently he is one of the men that has been scooping in some of the money that has been squandered on our public highways. If I had no ambition or pride for good road making as Umpire says about me, I should have made no objection to the work in question, but I wish to inform Umpire and also Mr. Anderson, County Road Superintendent, that good road making is part of my profession, notwithstanding the sarcastic remarks of my friend, Anderson, with regard to my occupation. Such remarks are ungentlemanly and uncalled for in a question of this kind, and I hope in future, Mr. Anderson will be guided by better methods in order to cover up and smooth over what only can be considered a bad job. I am glad, however, that Mr. Anderson assumes all responsibility for the work in question; and that he was man enough to put his signature to the article in last week's Beaver. If I have a grievance I like to face my opponent squarely, and Mr. Anderson acknowledges that he is the man responsible for the work completed of, and I am very thankful to Mr. Anderson for this information, for I was particularly anxious to find out where the responsibility rested.

Mr. Anderson claims that he was working under instructions from the County Council, and that those instructions were in accordance with the Highways Branch of the Public Works Department; also, in accordance with the report of A. W. Campbell, Deputy Minister of Public Works, dated Feby. 1st, 1908, which contains the report of the Inspector of Highways, and refers me to page 29, clause 8 of that report, which reads as follows, with reference to road grading. "Where roads have heretofore had gravel or broken stone placed an them, they should be constructed or repaired by cutting off the shoulders with a grader and adding a sufficient amount of gravel or broken stone to fill ruts and depressions, properly crown and make a road sufficiently strong to accommodate the traffic."

Now, sir, if Mr. Anderson had done his work according to these instructions, he has claims to have been working under. Our readers would never have heard from me in this matter; and it makes no difference to me what Mr. Anderson's record may be for the nine years he has been squandered on our public highways, if I had no ambition or pride for good road making as Umpire says about me, I should have made no objection to the work in question, but I wish to inform Umpire and also Mr. Anderson, County Road Superintendent, that good road making is part of my profession, notwithstanding the sarcastic remarks of my friend, Anderson, with regard to my occupation. Such remarks are ungentlemanly and uncalled for in a question of this kind, and I hope in future, Mr. Anderson will be guided by better methods in order to cover up and smooth over what only can be considered a bad job. ST. OLA.

The farmers are busy harvesting their hay crop, which promises to be an average yield.MThe Orange celebration held in the Village of St. Ola on Saturday last, was a success in every way. The lodges from Coe Hill and Ormsby joined with the home lodge to celebrate the Battle of the Boyne. The St. Ola lodge furnished the dinner, which was served on the Methodist church grounds. The crowd was large considering the fact that celebrations were held in Bancroft at the north and Marmora and Madoc at the south. The Orangemen of St. Ola will clear about $200, which will be used in the erection of a much needed new hall. One fact is worthy of note in connection with the day, and that is the absence of drinking intoxicants and the dancing platform. Any one who has attended Orange celebrations where the license bar exists and then be present at a celebration in St. Ola, where the citizens have persistently and successfully kept the bar closed for years, could not help but notice a very marked contrast.” The orderliness of the crowd and the home of all those things which so often mar the day for the better thinking people, is something which the writer never witnessed before in connection with any public demonstration. Several of the speakers of the day drew attention in their addresses to the facts which we have just stated. Herein is an argument that ought to have much weight in connection with the movement to banish the bar.

Mr. James Spracklett, of Gilmour, and Miss Clara Faul, of Cashel, were married on the evening of July 1st, at the latter's home, by Rev. A. C. Huffman, in the presence of about forty of the immediate relatives. The young couple spent their honeymoon visiting relatives in the southern part of the County, returning home on Wednesday evening, 8th inst, when a reception was held at Mr. Spracklett's father's. There were about sixty present and a most enjoyable evening was spent.—Mr. R. T. KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentry and stomach troubles are alarmingly frequent at this time and too often a precious little life is lost after a few hours illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of Baby's Own Tablets prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly — as it generally does—the Tablets will bring the little one through safely. Mrs. George Howell, Sandy Beach, Que., says: “My baby was suffering with colic, vomiting and diarrhoea, but after giving him Baby's Own Tablets the trouble disappeared. I would advise all mothers to keep a box of Tablets always at hand.” Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE BALANCE SHEET.

Not as an answer to its critics, or with the hope of satisfying the constant persistent demand for lower rates, but just as a matter of news, the interesting fact has been given out that the Grand Trunk has, within the past few years expended $15,000,000, in double tracking its main line from Montreal to Chicago, that they are now over 400 miles, exclusive of double line—the longest continuous double track under one management in the world.

At the same time they have been laying down 80 pound steel where in former days there was 65 and 72 pound rails. And now, having set a new and heavier standard, they are replacing the 80 pound steel with new rails weighing 100 pounds, to the yard. In other ways they are bringing the system up to a standard which will enable it, in all respects, a first-class railway. Every new bridge put in is made to carry the heaviest load.

All this money, or the most of it, finds its way back to the pockets of the people, for the work is done largely in Canada, and the materials entering into the work are largely the products of Canadian mills and Canadian hands.

And all for the vast system, from Niagara on the south, North Bay at the north—from Portland to Chicago they are building new bridges, ground houses, stations and other buildings. In the double track alone the company have provided additional safety that no mere block system could secure. No doubt as business justifies other lines will be double tracked especially the lines leading down from the Great Lakes, the outlet for the wheat of the Northwest.

CAUSE FOR ALARM.

EPIDEMIC INFLUENZA, GRIPPE, CATARRHAL TROUBLES, PNEUMONIA INCREASING.

A marked increase in troubles of the breathing organs is noted in many localities. Do not delay but have Hyomei at hand to use with the first attack of Cold in the Head, Pneumonia, Colds, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Croup, in fact any workaday affections, as trouble will be quickly overcome.

If the attack is neglected and becomes severe, speedy relief will come in most cases and a persistent use of Hyomei will cure.

The directions for using it vary, but the principal is always the same, that of destroying all the germs in the air you breathe and having it reach the air passages with every inhalation. Just add a few drops of Hyomei to fresh air and breathe it through the inhaler.

Remember that liquids or moisture is barred from the Bronchial Tubes and Lungs. It's the dry air of Hyomei that reaches the spot. T. B. Wallace guarantees it.

WEDDING BELLS.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place at All Saints church on Tuesday afternoon, June 30th, when Miss Almedia (Minnie) Shaw, eldest daughter of the late Edward Shaw, of Bedford Mills, was united in marriage to Herbert Conway, Winnipeg, Rev. F. C. Heathcote officiating. The bride was charmingly gowned in lace over white silk, and wore a crown of lily-of-the-valley and carried roses. After the ceremony the immediate friends repaired to their newly finished home, 673 Alverstone street, where a sumptuous repast was awaiting. Many valuable presents were received from friends in Winnipeg, Delorraine, Calgary, Toronto, Gananoque and Newburgh.

THIEVES CAPTURED.

On Sunday night about 1 o'clock Chief Graham received a call to the G. T. R. station to investigate a case of robbery that had taken place there that evening. A gentleman from Belleville, who was waiting for a train, had taken off his coat and laid down on one of the seats. He fell asleep, and upon awakening discovered that his coat and a sum of money were missing. Chief Graham at once got on track of the thieves, and after a sharp tussle arrested the pair of them and placed them in the cells. The coat and money were found on their persons. They gave their names as Jefferson Mahoney and Angus Sheppard. The Magistrate remanded them for a week in order to look up their past record. They both claim the United States as their home.

RIVERSIDE CEMETERY.

The Napanee Cemetery Company has this week made several improvements in the Eastern cemetery, and changed the name to "Riverside". A new iron fence has been erected along the entrance in front of the caretaker's house and an iron arch entrance, with the name "Riverside" forming the arch, has been placed in position. The handsome appearance of the plots, drives, walks, etc., show the interest taken in the cemetery by the company. The work has been done under the direction of Mr. F. W. Smith, President, and Mr. W. T. Waller, Sec. Treas., and the expressions of admiration are heard on every hand.

CANOE CLUB RACES.

The weekly races of the Napanee Canoe Club held on Thursday evening of last week were as usual of great interest to all, especially the unique event of the turtle race, which proved to all appearances to take the place of a good shower bath. All events were keenly contested, and it was gratifying to all to have the races started on time, which allowed the club to run off five races during the evening. The results were as follows:

Singles—1 Chenoweth, 2 Dafoe, 3 Carrol.

Crab—1 Dafoe, 2 Chenoweth, 3 Loynes.

Doubles—1 Loynes and Jemmett, 2 Chenoweth and Edelstein, 3 Barker and Carrol.

Turtle—1 Dafoe, Jemmett, Steacy and Miller. 2 Carrol, Kenney, Loynes and Grange. 3 Hanah, H. Steacy, Watt and Holmes.

The Tilting was not finished, owing to the absence of several who were in the finals and who yet have to duck for a towel and pole or go to the diver's regions.

On Friday the club held its first moonlight excursion per steamer Brockville, and it was gratifying to the members and their many friends to have such a nice evening for the event. A large moon, the Napanee Band, and a jovial crowd seemed to promote an enjoyable evening for all.

DEATH OF FRED. P. DOUGLAS.

The sad news of the death of our esteemed and respected townsman, Frederick Parker Douglas, was heard with regret on Sunday morning, July 12th, after a short illness of but three weeks' duration. Deceased was a son of the late Richard P. Douglas, of Tamworth, and was born in the Township of Camden on March 17th, 1862. In 1886 he embarked in the patent medicine business and has made the name of Douglas' Egyptian Liniment known on general continents. In 1889 he married Miss Carrie M. Fuller, daughter of the late John W. Fuller, Tamworth, and shortly after moved to Napanee in order to carry on his business on a larger scale, which he was very successful in doing. All that medical skill and loving hands and hearts could do to comfort him in his days of no avail and he passed peacefully away on Sunday morning, aged 46 years, 4 months and 25 days. The funeral service was held at the family residence, Centre street, Napanee, on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, by Rev. F. T. Dibb. The pallbearers were Messrs. W. J. and Harold Fuller, Tamworth; W. J. Detlor, Yarker; E. H. and Chas. Hoyck, Tweed, and W. J. Stewart, Desmond. Deceased was a member of the Commercial Travellers' Association of Canada, and of the Independent Order of Foresters. Beautiful wreaths and floral sprays placed on the casket by the I. O. F. and other friends. He leaves a brother, John and two daughters, Estelle and Helen, deceased leaves a mother, Mrs. Margaret Douglas, Tamworth; one brother, Mr. A. E. Douglas, Belleville, N. Y., and two sisters, Mrs. W. J. Detlor, Yarker, and Mrs. E. H. Hoyck, Tweed. The family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their sad bereavement. The remains were interred in Riverside cemetery.

FARMS FOR SALE—I have a number of farms at Desoronto and vicinity for sale; among the properties for sale are the late Wilson farm, the Chambers farm, the Bowen farm, the late Rev. Tyre Rankin, and many others, totalling about fifteen hundred acres, all of which are under a first class state of cultivation. The owners of the different parcels want to dispose of them, as they have not a farmer son to work them, though parties requiring large lands can get the value for a song. Also a well known hotel in connection with Tyendinaga, Ongar's Island, and a quantity of Beach Lots. There is no better farm lands. I would be pleased to have them inspected by intending purchasers. Call solicited. JOHN McCULLOUGH, Desoronto. 27tf

SUCCESSFUL WINNIPEG NOVELIST.

(Winnipeg Free Press.)

Mr. A. R. Davis, of this city, whose novel, "The Old Loyalist," was reviewed in these columns recently, is in receipt of many letters indicating that the story of the Bay of Quinte districts has made a considerable impression.

Rev. Chas. W. Gordon, D.D., (Ralph Connor), of St. Stephen's church, writes to Mr. Davis: "Allow me to congratulate you upon your book, "The Old Loyalist." It is a fine thing to see Canadians looking up the splendid history of their country and putting it down in readable form. I am frankly convinced that the right way to teach history is to tell it in story. The field into which you have entered is one far too little known by Canadians. Your book touches upon a theme that ought to be far better known than it is. It gives a most interesting picture of a element in Canadian life that Canada could ill afford to lose. The heroism, the courage and endurance of the U. E. Loyalists and the sacrifices they made for our empire should be better known to all true Canadians."

Writes Dr. William Spartling, pastor of Grace church: "I found great, pleasure and profit as well in reading "The Old Loyalist." In fact I was borne along from chapter to chapter, reluctant to lay the book aside until I saw how it turned out. The rest is the home life pictured often is reclaimed that book is well written. No doubt some of the charm it had for me because I was somewhat familiar with the scene of the story. But the story was a real subject—some of the most heroic makers of Canada. The Old Loyalist story is most interestingly told throughout. Its moral tone is refining and elevating. There is a bit of Canadian history that one cannot read without being more of a loyalist than I rejoice in your success. You have played yourself among a growing number of worthy Canadian authors."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Vonda, Saskatchewan,
July 16th, 1908.

Editor Napanee Beaver,
Napanee, Ont.

Dear Editor,—If you will allow me the space in your paper, I would be pleased to place before your readers a few facts concerning Vonda and the farming district surrounding.

The prospect for a bumper crop in 1908 in the West is of the brightest, as a matter of fact, though I have been in the west for some years, I can truthfully say that in no other season of my residence here has the prospects been so good.

Prospective buyers are coming in from all points, and are so impressed with the outlook, that they are investing now preparatory to coming west in the spring with the intention of making Saskatchewan their home.

The Town of Vonda is but a little over three years old and is the centre of a most beautiful farming district.

Notwithstanding the late spring of 1907, this district was particularly fortunate in its crop, and no less than seventeen cars of seed grain was purchased by the Government, from our district, for distribution throughout the Province this spring for seeding purposes. The prices obtained by the farmers ranged as high as $1.10 per bushel.

Feeling that it would be to their benefit, I extend an invitation to those who are still undecided, to come and see the country, and, as I am a representative of the Canada Land and Investment Company, I will be in a position to offer my friends investments distinctly to their advantage, at prices that cannot fail to suit them.

Notwithstanding the immense increase of acreage this year over that of 1907, there is still hundreds of thousands of acres of virgin prairie ready to respond to the plow shear, and the old adage, "First come, first served", applys. The sooner you come the better you will be served. The great prairie and fruit belt valleys of the great Province of Saskatchewan are a fitting place to receive, not only the overflow population of our Eastern provinces, but the best of the farmers, for the latter class will find here ample scope to exemplify their powers, either in mixed farming or in wheat growing.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space,

I remain yours truly,
J. A. SHIER.

Headlands, Sask.,
July 19th, 1908.

Dear Mr. Editor,—I thought perhaps my friends in Ontario would like to hear from me, so if you have a little space in your Beaver, I will just say that I have prospered in the west. We had a beautiful spring for seeding, about three weeks earlier than the year before. I can say that crops in this district never looked better. The weather has been all that could be wished for, with beautiful showers all through June; and now the weather is just delightful, nice bright sunny days, which makes the grain grow very rapid. The Saskatchewan is noted for a rapid growth in June and July. Barley is headed out and oats as well, and wheat in some parts is headed out too; flax is growing very fast at present. I must say that this west is certainly a fine country, and very healthy. It is just delightful to step out in the morning and get the cool breeze I have had good health since I came west. I often think of the good friends that I left behind in Ontario, and that beautiful town of Napanee. Mr. Editor, we take the Beaver, and could not do without it, as we hear from our good friends we left behind. Kindly hear all that could be wished for, with beautiful showers all through June; and now the weather is just delightful, nice bright sunny days, which makes the grain grow very rapid. Sir, I now send one dollar, being payment for this year. Send The Beaver along, as we cannot do with out it. We expect to go east this coming autumn to see our good friends we left behind.

Yours truly,
JOHN J. FELLOWS.

DISTRIBUTING THE REVENUE.

The reports of the various departments of a great Railway system, which if made public, often surprise the readers of current news. It has been gathered that the Grand Trunk Railway System has expended, within the past few years, not less than fifteen million dollars in double tracking and improving its line. The pioneer Canadian Railway now operates the longest stretch of double track under one management, in the world.

In addition to this they have spent other millions in stations, shops and other improvements, thus increasing the carrying capacity of the road, contributing to the upbuilding of the country, and at the same time adding added security to the life and property of its patrons which the installation of block signals on a single tracked line would never secure. By the expenditure of all these millions in Canada, they are distributing the Revenue, or a good share of it, among the people.

BASEBALL.

THE NAPANEE BOYS APPLY A COAT OF WHITEWASH TO THE GANANOQUE TEAM.

By a score of 9-0 the locals defeated the Gananoque team on their own grounds on Saturday afternoon last, and the score about indicates the playing qualities of the two teams. A few ardent supporters of the Napanee boys went down to see the game and were well repaid for their trouble, as it is indeed nice to win away from home. The only occurence of the day to mar the game in any way was the downfall of rain which stopped the game in the sixth innings, but as five innings complete a game in a case of this kind it does not alter the result. If the game had gone the full nine innings the score would have run into double figures for Napanee, while the home team were drawing blanks all the time. Mr. Wm. Philips, Gananoque, umpired the game and he is a gentleman who is right on the job and "calls 'em when they're over."

Napanee started off with a rush — the same kind that put the Belleville aggregation to sleep here a couple of weeks ago. The first ups were Warner, McNeill and Rose, the two former securing a hit, while Rose walked on four balls. "Yankee" Shorts produced a smile and a two-bagger, scoring Warner and McNeill. Trimble was caught out. Allison hit for one base and Rose and Shorts scored. Schultz was out on a fly and Derry was thrown out at first—4 runs. Nothing doing again until the fifth. Warner, McNeill and Rose were the first three up again and each hit safely for one base. "Yankee" was using a two-base hit bat (guaranteed) and scored Warner and McNeill Rose was caught at the home plate. Trimble was out on a fly, and Allison thrown out at first. Score 6-0

It was 1, 2, 3 out with Gananoque except in the second innings. They got a two-bagger, Baker walked, Keyworth hit for one base. The bases were all occupied and not a man out. It looked bad, but the wise ones were neat and this is the way it ended: Hawke fanned, Richardson popped a fly which Rose caught, and Jimmy seeing Keyworth about fifteen feet off first nailed him, executing a fine double play. In the fifth Napanee struck out in the field and every one accepted hard chances without a failure. Not bat they were right in it too. Warner got two singles, McNeill a single and double, Rose single, Shorts two two-baggers, Allison a single, Shultz a single, Wood two two-baggers (he and "Yankee" were using the same bat). Trimble and Derry were hitting the ball good and hard but unfortunately were caught every time. Wood pitched a grand game, only two home hits being made off him during the entire game.

Following is the score :

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Derry's feature was a sacrifice hit, and it counted too.

Allison's was not very busy in left field, but he was waitin' for 'em.

Rose had two assists and six putouts to his credit. Goin' some, eh?

Warner gathered in two beautiful flys and batted for an average of .500.

That "two-base hit bat" that Shorts and Wood were using is a dandy.

Shultz's long throw to the home plate holding a runner on third, was a good one. He plays the game all the time.

McNeil and Trimble did some clever fielding in the pick-up line and their throwing to first was of the "pro" kind.

The Gananoque correspondent of The Kingston Whig says: On Saturday Napanee put it over the Garnocks in the opening game of the Eastern Ontario Baseball League series here by 6-0.

THE CANADIAN RIP VAN WINKLE.

Col. Clyde Visits Winnipeg, Having Last Been There in 1858—Then He Rode in From Fort Calgary.

Winnipeg, July 21.—Col. Clyde, late of the Fourth Hussars, and now commander of the second brigade of eastern Ontario, reached Winnipeg this morning. This is Col. Clyde's first visit to Winnipeg since 1870, when he rode west from Fort Calgary, where he had been on active service for three years under Col. French.

In 1873 Col. Clyde detrained at Fargo, and rode by way of Moose Mountain across the country to Fort Macleod. At that time the government was anxious to discover the agricultural qualifications of the Northwest Territories, and he was selected to make this test. His efforts did not meet with much success on account of the early frosts. Stand ing on a corner on one of the busy streets, the colonel was introduced to some of the men of the early west. Pioneering soon became the subject, but all the laurels faded when he claimed the name of turning the first furrow in Sunny Alberta.

Accompanying the colonel is his younger brother, Major Clyde, of the high school staff of Petrolea, Ont. They leave the city to-night at 6.15 on the C. N. R. for Edmonton and other western points, and previous to their departure yesterday after a tour of the city's environs were entertained at luncheon by Mr. Rodmond P. Roblin, premier of Manitoba.

MI-O-NA MEANS STOMACH COMFORT.

IT'S OF SPECIAL VALUE TO MANY HERE IN NAPANEE.

A notable discovery and one that appeals especially to many people in Napanee is the combination of stomach help in the Mi-o-na treatment. This preparation works wonders in case of indigestion or weak stomach.

It acts directly upon the walls of the stomach and bowels, strengthening and stimulating them so that they readily take care of the food that is eaten without distress or suffering.

So positive are the good effects following the use of Mi-o-na that the remedy is sold by J. R. Walker under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails to cure. Fifty cent box of Mi-o-na will do the good the stomach needs which is simply to make it do its own work.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, or Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—which are you yourself, not one small heart in a hundred but is actually diseased. It is almost impossible to find a man or woman who has not some symptom of heart trouble. Nervousness needs, and must have, more nerve stability, more nerve control, more nerve strength. Without that the heart must surely fail, and the stomach and kidneys also become more controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for so many people. It is a remedy for nerve ailments of all kinds, particularly those that distress the heart. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a particular prescription—a scientific remedy for weak and wasting nerve centers. In both strength and hunger, it relieves at once.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

Copyright, 1906, by C. W. Dillingham Co.

As Jefferson went downstairs something white on the carpet attracted his attention. He stooped and picked it up. It was a letter. It was Bagley's handwriting and had evidently been dropped by the man to whom the secretary had given it to post. But what interested Jefferson more than anything else was that it was addressed to Miss Katie Roberts. Under ordinary circumstances a king's ransom would not have tempted the young man to read a letter addressed to another, but he was convinced that his father's secretary was an adventurer, and if he were carrying on an intrigue in this manner it could have only one meaning. It was his duty to unveil a rascal who was using the Ryder roof and name to further his own ends and victimize a girl who, although sophisticated enough to know better, was too silly to realize the risk she ran at the hands of an unscrupulous man. Hesitating no longer, Jefferson tore open the envelope and read:

My Dearest Wife That Is to Be—I have arranged everything. Next Wednesday—just a week from today—we will go to the house of a dear friend of mine where a minister will marry us. Then we will go to city hall and get through the legal part of it. Afterward we can catch the 4 o'clock train for Buffalo. Meet me in the ladies' room at the Holland House Wednesday morning at 11 a. m. I will come there with a closed cab. Your devoted

KITE.

"Phew!" Jefferson whistled. A close shave this for Senator Roberts, he thought. His first impulse was to go upstairs again to his mother and put the matter in her hands. She would immediately inform his father, who would shortly settle matters with Bagley. But, thought Jefferson, why should he spoil a good thing? He could afford to wait a day or two. There was no hurry. He could allow Bagley to think all was going swimmingly and then unmask the villain at the moment when He would even let this letter go to Kate. There was no difficulty in procuring another envelope and imitating the handwriting, and when Bagley was just preparing to go to the rendezvous he would spring the trap. Such a cad deserved no mercy. The scandal would be a knockout blow, his father would discharge him on the spot, and that would be the last they would see of the aristocratic English secretary. Jefferson put the letter in his pocket and left the house rejoicing.

"Say, Bagley, what does this mean?"

While the foregoing incidents were happening John Burkett Ryder was secluded in his library. The great man had come home earlier than usual, for he had two important callers to see by appointment that afternoon. One was Sergeant Bellson, who had to report on his mission to Massapequa; the other was Miss Shirley Green, the author of "The American Octopus," who had at last deigned to honor him with a visit. Pending the arrival of these visitors the financier was busy with his secretary trying to get rid as rapidly as possible of what business and correspondence there was on hand.

The plutocrat was sitting at his desk poring over a mass of papers. Between his teeth was the inevitable long black cigar, and when he raised his eyes to the light a close observer might have remarked that they were less green, a color they assumed when the sum of millions was absorbed in scheming new business deals. Every now and then he stopped reading the papers to make quick calculations on scraps of paper. Then if the result pleased him a smile overspread his saturnine features. He rose from his chair and nervously paced the floor as he always did when thinking deeply.

"Five millions," he muttered, "not a cent more. If they won't sell we'll clean them."

Mr. Bagley entered. Mr. Ryder looked up quickly.

"Well, Bagley?" he said interrogatively. "Has Sergeant Bellson come?"

"Yes, sir. But Mr. Herts is downstairs. He insists on seeing you about the Philadelphia gas deal. He says it is a matter of life and death."

"To him—yes," said the financier dryly. "Let him come up. We might as well have it out now."

Mr. Bagley departed and returned almost immediately, followed by a short, fat man, rather loudly dressed and of a semitic appearance. He looked like a prosperous bower, while, as a matter of fact, he was president of a gas company, one of the shrewdest promoters in the country, and a big man in Wall street. There was also another big per man and that was John Ryder. But, today, Mr. Herts was not in good condition. His face was pale and his manner flustered and nervous. He was plainly worried.

"Mr. Ryder," he began with excited gesture, "the terms you offer are preposterous. It would mean disaster to the stockholders. Our gas properties are worth six times that amount. We will sell out for $20,000,000, not a cent less."

Ryder shrugged his shoulders.

"Mr. Herts," he replied coolly, "I am busy today and in no mood for arguing. Either you offer me my price or force you out. Choose. You have our offer. Five millions for your gas property. Will you take it?"

"We'll see you in tophet first!" cried his visitor, exasperated.

"Very well," replied Ryder, still unruffled, "all negotiations are off. You leave me free to act. We have an offer to buy cheap the old Germantown Gas company, which has charter rights to go into any of the streets of Philadelphia. We shall purchase that company, we will put $10,000,000 new capital into it and reduce the price of gas in Philadelphia to 50 cents a thousand. Where will you be then?"

The face of the Colossus as he uttered this stand and deliver speech was calm and inscrutable. Conscious of the relentless power of his untold millions, he felt no more compunction in mercilessly crushing this business rival than he would in trampling out the life of a worm. The little man facing him looked haggard and distressed. He knew well that this was no idle threat. He was well aware that Ryder and his associates by the sheer weight of the enormous wealth they controlled could ruin it out or destroy any industrial corporation in the land. It was plainly illegal, but it was done every day, and his company was not the first victim nor the last. Desperate, he appealed humbly to the tyrannical money power.

"Don't drive us to the wall, Mr. Ryder. This forced sale will mean disaster to us all. Put yourself in our place; think what it means to scores of families whose only support is the income from their investment in our company."

"Mr. Herts," replied Ryder unmoved, "I never allow sentiment to interfere with business. You have heard my terms. I refuse to argue the matter further. What is to be? Five millions or competition? Decide now or this interview must end!"

He took out his watch and with his other hand touched a bell. Beads of perspiration stood on his visitor's forehead. His face was livid when supprossed emotion he said hoarsely:

"You're a hard, pitiless man, John Ryder! You're a—five millions. I don't know what they'll say. I don't dare return to them."

"Those are my terms," said Ryder coldly. "The papers," he added, "will be ready for your signature tomorrow at this time, and I'll have a check ready for the entire amount. Good day."

Mr. Bagley entered. "Ryder bowed to Herts, who slowly retired. Then the door had closed on him, Ryder went back to his desk, a smile of triumph on his face. Then he turned to his secretary.

"Let Sergeant Bellson come up," he said.

A moment later the door opened, and Sergeant Bellson entered, followed by the secretary, who almost immediately withdrew.

"Well, sergeant," said Mr. Ryder cordially, "what have you to tell me? I can give you only a few minutes. I expect a lady friend of yours."

The plutocrat sometimes condescended to be jocular with his subordinates.

"A lady friend of mine, sir?" echoed the man, puzzled.

"Yes—Miss Shirley Green, the author," replied the financier, enjoying the detective's embarrassment. "That big novel of yours must be worked out all right. She's coming here today."

"I'm glad you've found her, sir."

"It was a tough job," answered Ryder, with a grimace. "We wrote her half a dozen times before she was satisfied with the wording of the invitation, but finally we landed her, and I expect her at 3 o'clock. Now, what about that Roosevelt girl? Did you go down to Massapequa?"

"Yes, sir, I have been there half a dozen times. In fact, I've just come from there. Miss Roosevelt is getting on all right, but his daughter has left for parts unknown."

"Left Massapequa?" cried the financier.

This was what he dreaded. As long as he could keep his eye on the girl there was little danger of her doing much harm, but if she vanished with her diamonds appearing was impossible.

"I could not find out, sir. The neighbors say that she left suddenly one day. They say they've bought and stock up. The only one I could get information from is the station agent at Deetts. He said it was a sad case, that they had nervous and a daughter who was like a child."

"Yes, yes," said Ryder impatiently, "we know all that. But where's the girl? Have you found her?"

"Much as it was to find her. I was told by the nervous. Our, what a case! She's a child, sir, and she didn't know what she was doing."

PILES

Mr. Alfred Sweet, of Montreal, says: "I suffered from Piles for years. I did not know what it was to be free from pain. I tried every cure I ever heard of, but failed. Everything I got only helped me for a time. A friend of mine had been cured of Piles by AM-BUK, and he advised me to try it. I did so, and after using two boxes I was entirely cured. I have had no return of the trouble, and I am thankful to say I am now perfectly well."

force on his desk, a habit he had when he wished to emphasize a point.

"Sergeant," he said, "I don't like your disappearance of that girl. You should have let me know at once. You did not find her, do you? You must find her if it takes all the detectives in the country. Had my son been seen there?"

"The person said he saw a young fellow answering his description sitting on the porch of the Roosevelt cottage the night before the girl disappeared, but he didn't know who he was and hasn't seen him since."

"That was my son, I'll wager. He knows where the girl is. Perhaps he's with her now. Maybe he's going to marry her. That must be prevented at any cost. Sergeant, find that Roosevelt girl and I'll give you $1,000."

The detective's face flushed with pleasure at the prospect of so liberal a reward. Rising, he said:

"I'll find her, sir. I'll find her."

Mr. Bagley entered, wearing the solemn, important air he always affected when he had to announce a visitor of consequence. But before he could open his mouth Mr. Ryder said:

"Bagley, when did you see my son Jefferson last?"

"Today, sir. He wanted to see you to say goodby. He said he was to be back."

Ryder gave a sigh of relief and addressing the detective said:

"It's not so bad as I thought." Then turning again to his secretary he said:

"Well, Bagley, what is it?"

"There's a lady downstairs, sir—Miss Shirley Green."

The financier half sprang from his seat.

"Oh, yes. Show her up at once. Goodby, sergeant, goodby. Find that Rossmore woman and the $1,000 is yours."

The detective went out, and a few moments later Mr. Bagley reappeared ushering in Shirley.

The mouse was in the den of the lion.

CHAPTER XII.

MR. RYDER remained at his desk and did not even look up when his visitor entered. He pretended to be busily preoccupied with his papers, which was a favorite pose of his when receiving strangers. This frigid reception invariably served its purpose, for it led visitors not to expect advance or to take a seat. She gave a little conventional cough, and Ryder looked up. What he saw so astonished him that he at once took from his mouth the cigar he was smoking and rose from his seat. He had expected a gaunt old maid with spectacles, and here was a stylish, good looking young woman, who could not possibly be over twenty-five. There was surely some mistake. This slip of a girl could not have written "The American Octopus." He advanced to greet Shirley.

"You wish to see me, madam?" he asked courteously. There were times when even John Burkett Ryder could be polite.

"Yes," replied Shirley, her voice trembling a little in spite of her efforts to keep cool. "I am here by appointment. Three o'clock, Mrs. Ryder's note said. I am Miss Green."

"You—Miss Green?" echoed the financier dubiously.

"Yes, I am Miss Green—Shirley Green, author of 'The American Octopus.'"

"Quite right," answered Shirley.

Ryder proceeded:

"You page 30 you say 'the machinery of his money making mind typifies the laws of perpetual unrest.' It must go on relentlessly, ruthlessly, ruthlessly making money, making money, and continuing to make money. It cannot stop until the machinery crumbles."

Laying the book down and turning sharply on Shirley, he asked her bluntly:

"Do you mean to say that I couldn't stop tomorrow if I wanted to?"

The affected to be not understood him.

"You?" she inquired in a tone of surprise.

"Well, it's a natural question," stammered Ryder, with a nervous little laugh. "Every man sees himself in both the hero and the villain of every woman's book. We are all heroes and heroines in our own eyes. But that was merely a figurative opinion of this woman. You drew the character. What do you think of him as a type—how would you classify him?"

"As the greatest criminal the world has yet produced," replied Shirley without the slightest hesitation.

Ryder looked at the girl in astonishment. He was not used to such candor.

"Criminal!" he exclaimed finally, recovering his voice. "Is everything opposite to your opinion? Is everything opposite to your opinion? Is everything opposite to your opinion?

PRICE & KINKADE.

In the great tidal wave of prosperity, progress and substantial improvement that has continually applied its operative forces to the ship of commerce in California, it is quite positive that no line of business men have contributed more energy and propelling power to this continual prosperity than those men of ability engaged in the real estate business. A concern that comes in for its meed of praise in Newman is the Newman Realty Company. This real estate firm is composed of Mr. H. E. Kinkade and Mr. T. S. Price. Mr. Price is the newly elected town clerk of Newman, which has just been incorporated, and he is held in the highest esteem by our business men. He was in the employ of Chas. St. Clair, as bookkeeper for a year and a half, and his record has been gilt edged in all the relations of life. Mr. Price has been a prominent man of affairs in the west for over 40 years. PROGRESS OF THE RURAL TELEPHONE.

As evidence of the rapidity with which rural telephones are being developed is furnished by the story told of the neighborhood line serving the sister villages of Ashland and Lake Linden, Mich. That system has been in operation for only two years, and during that time it has grown very fast, now having over 300 subscribers. It is not surprising that many companies have made equal progress, but something approaching this has been established in a number of cases. And a good thing it is, too, with the rural telephone in operation on the farm is at an end, the whole neighborhood is brought into direct contact, the local and social interests are greatly enhanced, conversation time is saved in a thousand ways, and all life is broadened and made more attractive.

CHEAP FARES FROM EVERYWHERE

POINTED WITH SCRIPTURE.

A bachelor rector of a Western church was alone in his study when his housekeeper brought him the card of one of his parishioners, a spinster of means and charm.

When the lady was seated on the opposite side of his study table the rector looked at her inquiringly, expecting to hear something concerning parish work, in which she was active. To his surprise, an embarrassed silence ensued, during which he vainly sought for something to say.

"Doctor Blank," began the lady, at last, in faltering tones, "do you think—can you fancy conditions under which a woman is—justified in proposing?"

"Why, yes," said the rector, after some deliberation.

"Thou art the man!" said the lady, resolutely. She was right.

"Have you?" laughed Shirley nervously. "What a coincidence! Why, I've just read a story another coincidence," said Ryder smugly. He turned to another part of the book and read, "the same eternal long black cigar always between his lips."

"General Grant smoked, too," interrupted Shirley. "All men who think deeply along material lines seem to smoke."

"Well, we'll let that go. But how about this?" He turned back a few pages and read: "John Broderick had loved when a young man a girl who lived in Vermont, but circumstances separated them." He stopped and stared at Shirley a moment, and then he said: "I loved a girl when I was a lad and she came from Vermont, and circumstances separated us. That isn't coincidence, for presently you make John Broderick marry a young woman who had money. I married a girl with money."

"Lots of men marry for money," remarked Shirley.

"I said with money, not for money," retorted Ryder. Then, turning to the book, he said: "Now, this is what I can't understand, for no one could have told you that I'm a poet. Listen." He read aloud: "'With all his physical bravery and personal courage, John Broderick was intensely afraid of death. It was on his mind constantly.' Who told you that?" he demanded roughly. "I swear I've never mentioned it to a living soul."

"Most men who amass money are afraid of death," replied Shirley with outward composure, "for death is about the only thing that can separate them from their money."

Ryder laughed, but it was a hollow, mocking laugh, neither sincere nor hearty. It was a laugh such as the devil may have given when driven out of heaven.

"You're quite a character!" He laughed again, and Shirley, catching the infection, laughed too.

"It's me and it isn't me," went on Ryder, flourishing the book. "This fellow Broderick is all-right; he's successful and he's great, but I don't like his finish."

"It's logical," ventured Shirley.

"It's cruel," insisted Ryder.

"So is the man who reverses the divine law and hates his neighbor instead of loving him," retorted Shirley.

She spoke more boldly, beginning to feel more sure of her ground, and it amused her to fence in this way with the man of millions. So far, she thought, he had not got the best of her. She was fast becoming used to him, and her first feeling of intimidation was passing away.

"Um!" grunted Ryder. "You're a curious girl. Upon my word you interest me!" He took the mass of papers lying at his elbow and pushed them over to her. "Here," he said, "I want you to make as clever a book out of this chaos as you did out of your own imagination."

Shirley turned the papers over carelessly.

"So you think your life is a good example to follow?" she asked, with a tinge of irony.

"Isn't it?" he demanded.

The girl looked him square in the face.

"Suppose," she said, "we all wanted to follow it; suppose we all wanted to be the richest, the most powerful personage in the world?"

"Well, what then?" he demanded.

"I think it would postpone the era of the brotherhood of man indefinitely, don't you?"

"I never thought of it from that point of view," admitted the billionaire. "Really," he added, "you're an extraordinary girl. Why, you can't be more than twenty or so."

"I'm twenty-four or so," smiled Shirley.

Ryder's face expanded in a broad smile. He admired this girl's pluck and ready wit. He grew more amiable and tried to gain her confidence. In a coaxing tone he said:

"Come, where did you get those details? Take me into your confidence."

"I have taken you into my confidence," laughed Shirley, pointing at her book. "It cost you $1.50." Turning over the papers he had put before her, she said presently, "I don't know about this."

"You don't think my life would make good reading?" he asked, with some asperity.

"It might," she replied slowly, as if unwilling to commit herself as to its commercial or literary value. Then she said frankly: "To tell you the honest truth, I don't consider most people in money making or politics worth the time for reading a novel. You see, when a man is a bad egg, it would have no moral."

Ryder let the not very flattering insinuation contained in this last speech, the plainest continued to wrap her in his magnetic influence. "Name your price if you will do the work," he said. "Two, three or even five thousand dollars. It's only a few months' work."

"Five thousand dollars!" echoed Shirley. "That's a lot of money." Smiling, she added: "It appeals to my commercial sense. But I'm afraid the subject does not arouse my enthusiasm from an artistic standpoint."

Ryder seemed amused at the idea of any one hesitating to make $5,000. He knew that writers do not run across such opportunities every day.

"Upon my word," he said, "I don't know why I'm so anxious to get you to do the work. I suppose it's because you don't want to. You remind me of my son. Ah, he's a problem!"

Shirley started involuntarily when Ryder mentioned his son. But he did not notice it.

"Why, is he wild?" she asked, as if only mildly interested.

"Oh, no; I wish he were," said Ryder. "Fallen in love with the wrong woman, I suppose," she said.

"Something of the sort. How did you guess?" asked Ryder, surprised.

Shirley coughed to meet her embarrassment and replied indifferently:

"So many boys do that. Besides," she added, with a mischievous twinkle in her eyes, "I can hardly imagine that any woman would be the right one unless you selected her yourself."

Ryder made no answer. He folded his arms and gazed at her. Who was this woman who knew him so well, who could read his inmost thoughts, who never made a mistake? After a silence he said:

"Do you know you say the strangest things?"

"Truth is strange," replied Shirley carelessly, "I don't suppose you hear it very often."

"Not in that form," admitted Ryder. Shirley had taken on her lap some of the letters he had passed her and was perusing them one after another.

"All these letters from Washington consulting you on politics and finance —they won't interest the world."

"My secretary picked them out," explained Ryder. "Your artistic sense will tell you what to use."

"Does your son still love this girl? I mean the one you object to," inquired Shirley as she went on sorting the papers.

"Oh, no, he does not care for her any more," answered Ryder hastily.

"Yes, he does. He still loves her," said Shirley positively.

"How do you know?" asked Ryder, amazed.

"From the way you say he doesn't," retorted Shirley.

Ryder gave his caller a look in which admiration was mingled with astonishment.

"You are right again," he said. "The idiot does love the girl."

"Bless his heart!" said Shirley to herself. Aloud she said:

"I hope they'll both outwit you."

Ryder laughed in spite of himself. This young woman actually interested him more than any other he had ever known.

"I don't think I ever met any one in my life quite like you," he said.

"What's the objection to the girl?" demanded Shirley.

"Every objection. I don't want her in my family."

"Anything against her character?"

"To better conceal the keen interest she took in the personal turn the conversation had taken, Shirley pretended to be more busy than ever with the papers.

"Yes—that is, no—not that I know of," replied Ryder. "But because a woman has a good character, that doesn't necessarily make her a desirable match, does it?"

"It's a point in her favor, isn't it?"

"Yes, but"— He hesitated as if uncertain what to say.

"You know men well, don't you, Mr. Ryder?"

"I've met enough to know them pretty well," he replied.

"Why don't you study women for a change?" she asked. "That would enable you to understand a great many things that I don't think are quite clear to you now."

Ryder laughed good humoredly. It was decidedly a novel sensation to have some one lecturing him.

"I'm studying you," he said, "but I don't seem to make much headway. A woman like you whose mind isn't spoiled by the amusement habit has great possibilities—great possibilities. Do you know you're the first woman I ever took into my confidence—I mean at sight?" Again he fixed her with that keen glance which in his business life had taught him how to read men. He continued: "I'm acting on sentiment—something I rarely do, but I can't help it. I like you, upon my soul I do, and I'm going to introduce you to my wife—my son"—

He took the telephone from his desk as if he were going to use it.

"What a commander in chief you would have made—how natural it is for you to command!" exclaimed Shirley in a burst of admiration that was half real, half mocking. "I suppose you always tell people what they have to do and how they are to do it. You are a born general. You know I've often thought that Napoleon and Cæsar and Alexander must have been great domestic tenors as well as inspired soldiers. They were so sure"—

Ryder listened to her in amazement. He was not quite sure if she were laughing at him or not.

"Well, of all"— he began; then interrupting himself he said suddenly, "I want you to do the best you can for my family."

Shirley smiled sweetly and bowed.

"I'll do you, Mr. Ryder, as well as the rest. Come now and send Bennett over the motorcycle to conduct the young lady to the station." With a satisfied air he finally clicks down the receiver. He was quick to see that it would be to his advantage to have this young woman's opportunities to find the object of her search. Ryder liked people who were quick to see things.

Then she said frankly: "To tell you the honest truth, I don't consider most people in money making or politics worth the time for reading a novel. You see, when a man is a bad egg, it would have no moral."

Ryder let the not very flattering insinuation contained in this last speech, the plainest continued to wrap her in his magnetic influence. "Name your price if you will do the work," he said. "Two, three or even five thousand dollars. It's only a few months' work."

"Five thousand dollars!" echoed Shirley. "That's a lot of money." Smiling, she added: "It appeals to my commercial sense. But I'm afraid the subject does not arouse my enthusiasm from an artistic standpoint."

Ryder seemed amused at the idea of any one hesitating to make $5,000. He knew that writers do not run across such opportunities every day.

"Upon my word," he said, "I don't know why I'm so anxious to get you to do the work. I suppose it's because you don't want to. You remind me of my son. Ah, he's a problem!"

Shirley started involuntarily when Ryder mentioned his son. But he did not notice it.

"Why, is he wild?" she asked, as if only mildly interested.

"Oh, no; I wish he were," said Ryder. "Fallen in love with the wrong woman, I suppose," she said.

"Something of the sort. How did you guess?" asked Ryder, surprised.

Shirley coughed to meet her embarrassment and replied indifferently:

"So many boys do that. Besides," she added, with a mischievous twinkle in her eyes, "I can hardly imagine that any woman would be the right one unless you selected her yourself."

Ryder made no answer. He folded his arms and gazed at her. Who was this woman who knew him so well, who could read his inmost thoughts, who never made a mistake? After a silence he said:

"Do you know you say the strangest things?"

"Truth is strange," replied Shirley carelessly, "I don't suppose you hear it very often."

"Not in that form," admitted Ryder. Shirley had taken on her lap some of the letters he had passed her and was perusing them one after another.

"All these letters from Washington consulting you on politics and finance —they won't interest the world."

"My secretary picked them out," explained Ryder. "Your artistic sense will tell you what to use."

"Does your son still love this girl? I mean the one you object to," inquired Shirley as she went on sorting the papers.

"Oh, no, he does not care for her any more," answered Ryder hastily.

"Yes, he does. He still loves her," said Shirley positively.

"How do you know?" asked Ryder, amazed.

"From the way you say he doesn't," retorted Shirley.

Ryder gave his caller a look in which admiration was mingled with astonishment.

"You are right again," he said. "The idiot does love the girl."

"Bless his heart!" said Shirley to herself. Aloud she said:

"I hope they'll both outwit you."

Ryder laughed in spite of himself. This young woman actually interested him more than any other he had ever known.

"I don't think I ever met any one in my life quite like you," he said.

"What's the objection to the girl?" demanded Shirley.

"Every objection. I don't want her in my family."

"Anything against her character?"

To better conceal the keen interest she took in the personal turn the conversation had taken, Shirley pretended to be more busy than ever with the papers.

"Yes—that is, no—not that I know of," replied Ryder. "But because a woman has a good character, that doesn't necessarily make her a desirable match, does it?"

"It's a point in her favor, isn't it?"

"Yes, but"— He hesitated as if uncertain what to say.

"You know men well, don't you, Mr. Ryder?"

"I've met enough to know them pretty well," he replied.

"Why don't you study women for a change?" she asked. "That would enable you to understand a great many things that I don't think are quite clear to you now."

Ryder laughed good humoredly. It was decidedly a novel sensation to have some one lecturing him.

"I'm studying you," he said, "but I don't seem to make much headway. A woman like you whose mind isn't spoiled by the amusement habit has great possibilities—great possibilities. Do you know you're the first woman I ever took into my confidence—I mean at sight?" Again he fixed her with that keen glance which in his business life had taught him how to read men. He continued: "I'm acting on sentiment—something I rarely do, but I can't help it. I like you, upon my soul I do, and I'm going to introduce you to my wife—my son"—

He took the telephone from his desk as if he were going to use it.

"What a commander in chief you would have made—how natural it is for you to command!" exclaimed Shirley in a burst of admiration that was half real, half mocking. "I suppose you always tell people what they have to do and how they are to do it. You are a born general. You know I've often thought that Napoleon and Cæsar and Alexander must have been great domestic tenors as well as inspired soldiers. They were so sure"—

Ryder listened to her in amazement. He was not quite sure if she were laughing at him or not.

"Well, of all"— he began; then interrupting himself he said suddenly, "I want you to do the best you can for my family."

Shirley smiled sweetly and bowed.

"I'll do you, Mr. Ryder, as well as the rest. Come now and send Bennett over the motorcycle to conduct the young lady to the station." With a satisfied air he finally clicks down the receiver. He was quick to see that it would be to his advantage to have this young woman's opportunities to find the object of her search. Ryder liked people who were quick to see things.

After suffering eight years, she woman was restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I found her letter in Mrs. A. D. Trudeau, Arnprior, Ontario, written to Mrs. Pinkham: I suffered terribly from ulceration of the female organs for eight years. I tried four doctors but got no relief, and thought I would have to die. One day I saw an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper. I sent for some, and believe I had about five bottles it was entirely cured. I hope every suffering woman will take my advice and use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if you need advice about your sickness. She will treat your letter in confidence and advise you free. Because of her vast experience she has helped thousands. Address, Lynn, Mass.

BREATHE HYOMEI AND BE CURED OF CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA.

Nature has a remedy for catarrh, epidemic colds and bronchitis that is far better than dosing the stomach with medicine and drugs.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which medicate the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs and restoring health to the mucous membranes.

Hyomei acts like a curative internal air bath, and has the same healing and antiseptic effect as the air where the Pine and Eucalyptic forests give off their fragrant and healing balsams.

Breathe healing Hyomei and see how quickly you will get relief from catarrh and head colds. If it does not help you there will not be a penny's expense, as T. B. Wallace agrees to refund the money. The complete Hyomei outfit costs only $1.00.

DRIFTING.

Is Lennox and Addington County Council Drifting?

Where? Well, like our sister County Frontenac? I hope not, as they don't know where they shall be ally land, as we have read of castle-building in the air, but they are building bridges from shore to shore without foundation or proper settlement. Now, what are we doing? Raising money by way of debentures and piling up further debts on our-selves and the coming generation. Have we not been a little fast in our calculations in financing? Would it not be better to raise the rate per mill on the dollar than to put our county in debt and be liable for interest at the rate of probably 5 per cent. or more. In 1900 the County consolidated the debt at $100,000 payable in thirty years, and that is not yet paid, and the Council of 1906 put a farther debt on of $18,000, at 4 per cent. payable in 1911-12; and in order to relieve the old debt we must pay $11,622.00 in 1908-09-10. Therefore we virtually owe $52,-860.00. I cannot see the need of raising $29,000 now by debenture sale. We don't need the money. According to the Auditors' report our County has assets composed of buildings and machinery to the extent of $59,500, unpaid taxes due to County to Dec. 31st, 1907, of $20,866.11, and due from Government on Justice account, $607.11, school, $24.70, and cash on hand $1,373.03. Leaving out the building and machinery we have as good as cash $22,570.95. Of this we owe to schools $6,961.70, and in January debenture debt of $8,700, and on coupons about $1,137.00. Total to be paid in January of $16,698.70. Now, providing all taxes due were paid to County the balance on February 1st, or after these debts are satisfied, the Treasurer would have $6,172.25 for current expenses, which is much more than I consider any too much on account of bridge building being so heavy this year, viz., Newburgh bridge at an estimated cost of $4,000. Yet the banks loan the County money at 5 per cent. until taxes are paid in, and that would be more pleasing to the people than to be heaping up a coming debt on their children, and I hear so many people say while the times are good let us get out of debt, for we know not how soon the County may be called upon to build a house of refuge after the year 1910. According to the Act of 1908, chapter 69, we must provide a place for the poor, on or before that date.

Again, one mill on the dollar will raise $8,457.00, and this would only raise the taxes $1.00 on every $1,000 assessment. Would it not be better to pay the $1.00 now than to pay about $1.60 in 1913, or five years from now? Further, there is no machinery to buy this year, which is a saving of $3,000 less than last on roads. But if we do sell debentures to the extent of $29,000, I would say make the County buildings a credit to our people by putting in a modern heating plant, and get rid of those detestable old smoky stoves, which are no better than fire bugs. You will plainly see by raising one mill on the dollar extra equals $8,457.00, and a saving of $3,000 on machinery, this will be $11,457.00, and the cost of Newburgh bridge at $4,000, and the difference in Government Grant of 1907-8 will be $7,000. Therefore, these calculations should come out very nicely without debentures.

In conclusion, allow me to say I am not making these remarks or suggestions to create criticism of the Council, because I think them a fine lot of good fellows, but from a business stand, I am not favorable to putting any more debt on the County until the old ones are wiped off. There was some over-expenditure in some municipalities in 1907, but that is no loss to the County as that same amount shall be deducted from their portion for roads in 1908. I congratulate the Council on their wisdom in increasing the salary of the Treasurer and Clerk, as they are a pair of the best officials in the Province of Ontario, and a credit to any county.

Hoping these remarks will cause each representative in Council to a careful consideration which may produce such action as will meet the endorsation of the ratepayers, and credit to themselves.

Thanks to The Beaver as usual for space in your progressive paper.

Faithfully yours,
L. L. GALLAGHER.

MR. PETER GOULD

Passed suddenly away on Saturday morning, July 18th, at his residence on Centre st. Deceased had been ailing for some time with asthma and heart trouble, but was able to be about till a short time before his death. During the past few months he felt that his time here would be short and frequently expressed this to a number of his friends, and we believe that he was living with this end in view and was not taken unawares when the Master came. Those who have known him longest have very pleasant memories of him. Of a kind and genial disposition he was always ready to give a helping hand in any time of need. He was the last of five brothers, now all dead, and was born on the old homestead near Selby, where he lived for many years ago. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Gould. He and his family have been residents of Napanee for more than twenty years. He leaves to mourn with his daughter to mourn his loss, and he will be missed by a large circle of friends and neighbors. The Rev. W. H. Emsley conducted the funeral service at the Western Methodist church on Monday afternoon.

LABOUR SAVING IN DAIRYING.

One of the recent regular monthly tests in the Innerkip, Oxf., cow testing association shows that 160 cows gave an average yield of 893 lbs. milk, testing 3.4, thus containing 34.6 lbs. fat. One excellent herd average is from 30 cows each giving 1390 lbs. milk, 3.3 test. The highest yield in this herd was 1650 lbs. milk for the month. In all but one of the 13 herds recorded are single cows giving 1000 lbs. milk or more.

Another district averaged only 664 lbs. milk per cow, while in a third district the average was 562 lbs. Some herds were as low as 417 lbs. milk, and in this district there are 9 cows. This is less than one third of the yield of the best herd above at Innerkip. There times the labor, nearly three times the feed, three times the stable room for no more profit! As I have frequently remarked before this cow testing work is the best labor saving association yet placed before the farmers of Canada. Better cows mean less work and more income, and cut the poor cows by this individual test and get rid of them, then give that feed saved to the better cows and watch the bank balance grow.

The Tortures Women Suffer

Can be Relieved by Keeping the Blood Supply Rich With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

A woman needs a blood building medicine regularly just because she is a woman. From maturity to middle life, the health and happiness of every woman depends upon her blood, its richness and its regularity. If her blood is poor and watery she is weak, languid, pale and nervous. If her blood supply is irregular she suffers from headaches, backaches, sides and the other unspeakable distress which only women know. Some women have grown to expect this suffering as their interitance and to bear it in hopeless silence. But women would escape much of this misery if they took a box or two of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to help them over each period. These Pills actually make new blood. They help a woman just when nature makes the greatest demand upon her blood supply. They have done this for thousands of women throughout Canada, why not for you?

Mrs. Joseph Kinney, Gilbert's Cove N. S., says:—"For two years I suffered from nervousness and those who know me, know that I am not so many women one of almost constant misery. At times I would be confined to my bed for weeks. I spent sleepless nights and seemed to lose all courage. I tried several doctors but they failed to give me any relief. The last doctor I consulted told me frankly that he could not undertake my case unless I would undergo an examination. It was then I decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. After taking six boxes I was much improved in health, but I continued to take the Pills for a couple of months more when I felt like a new woman, and was enjoying such health as I had not experienced for ten years before. I have had no return of this trouble since, but I have used the Pills once since that time for the after effects of a grippe and the result was all I hoped for. These are plain facts from my own experience and I have always felt that I cannot too strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to the many women who suffer as I did."

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE MOST POPULAR EXCURSION FROM NAPANEE IS THE ONE UNDER THE AUSPICES OF TRINITY CHURCH TO KINGSTON AND THE 1000 ISLANDS.

The first one proved a moderate success, as the people were not familiar with it. However, those who went praised the trip so highly and were so enthusiastic in recommending it to others that the second excursion was a tremendous success. This year the committee in charge have been able, with the experience gained by the former trips, to so arrange the trip that it will be more pleasant than ever.

The trip will leave Napanee at 7.43 a.m. on Thursday, August 6th, connecting at Kingston wharf with the steamer "Aletha," which has been specially chartered for the occasion. The sail will include a trip down the American Channel past Alexandria Bay and up the Canadian Channel, reaching Kingston in time for the train which arrives in Napanee at 8.11 p.m. A stop of two hours will be made at 1000 Island Park for dinner. Round trip tickets—Napanee to Kingston 75c., Napanee to 1000 Islands 71.00. 30a

Charcoal! Charcoal!! For Toasting, Broiling. Try it for your broilers. Two sacks for 25c. BOYLE & SON.

When the teeth are discolored, finely pulverized pumice stone is preferable to charcoal powder for removing the discoloration. If the gums are tender and bleed at the brushing of teeth, a few drops of tincture of myrrh dropped into the water with which the mouth is rinsed will be found excellent. The chalk and myrrh dentifrice, to be procured at almost any drug store, is delightful and very beneficial. The teeth should receive attention after each meal and the last thing before retiring. Wooden toothpicks should be kept within reach. A thread of white silk, sadler's coarse twist, is excellent to remove particles from between very close teeth.

Berger's English Paris Green in tin cans is the best. In Napanee, at Wallace's Drug Store.

ODESSA.

Mrs. Hawley, an aged resident of this village for the greater part of her life, died on Friday last. On Sunday the funeral was conducted in the C. M. church by the Rev. McCamus. A large number attended to bestow the last token of respect to a lady of the most estimable character. One who was honest, industrious, energetic a good neighbor, free from petty gossiping, of retentive memory, and therefore good company for either old or young, and altogether one who will be missed by many, though nearly eighty-eight years old. Death had no terrors for her. It may be said in the words of Longfellow,

"There is no death—what seems so is transition,
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life Elysian
Whose portal we call Death."

Congratulations to the boys and girls who successfully passed the Entrance exams., and to those who did not succeed. Don't be disheartened. You are young and a year at school will give you a better knowledge of the subjects. So cheer up and go to work after the vacation.

Mr. Nelson Booth and son, of Brooklyn, N.Y., at his father's, where he will leave his son for the summer.

Mrs. Cooke and children, Cobourg, spent a week or so at the Dominion, guests of Mr. John Cooke. Mr. E. Cooke came later for a few days, also all returned to their home.

Mr. Bedford and two children are spending a week with her aunt, Mrs. Jenny Ashworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford, of North Bay, have returned to their home, after spending some time here.

Eddie Gordon has gone to Hastings.

Query—While a funeral procession is passing to the cemetery, should not every one who sees the hearse uncover his head as a token of respect? Also, is it not customary to remove many for shorter distances at a funeral service?

The Kingston Whig-Standard says: "Mr. Thomas Wilson, of Napanee, has been appointed Clerk of the Peace of Lennox and Addington, in succession to the late Mr. Ruttan."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Yarker, Ont., July 27th, '08

To the Editor of the Beaver :—

Dear Sir,—Having read with interest and wonderment the articles that have appeared in your paper of late in regard to Road Construction on the County Roads in this Township, and wishing to see this matter settled in such a way that the ratepayers of Camden will know that their money is not being squandered, as some of them seem to think. I have made enquiries of parties who frequently drive the road north of Camden East, and I find as much difference of opinion as exists between Mr. Delmage and Mr. Anderson.

Some say the road will be a first class one, and others say as Mr. Delmage has it is the roughest kind of a road. Having known Mr. Delmage for a great many years I don't think he is a man to make a fuss over an imaginary grievance.

Now, I believe it would have been far better for to never have gone into print over this matter, but for Mr. Delmage to have approached the Superintendent in a friendly way when he was working near his place and made the suggestions which he professes would be a benefit to the road. If he had spoken to Mr. Anderson as I do, I am sure he would only be too glad to get knowledge from any source that would be a benefit or a saving to the country.

Now, there is only one way that every benefit can come out of this unfortunate affair, and that would be for Mr. Delmage and Mr. Anderson meet me as the representation of Camden East, and any suggestion can be made by the road superintendent during the day in the near future, and if this fail is as bad as pictured by Mr. Delmage, and can be improved, why let us as reasonable men consult together (on the ground where we can see the conditions as they exist) go on with the improvement, and get the best possible results.

Now if this is satisfactory to those gentlemen, all they will have to do is to drop me a card saying so, and if they will allow me to fix the date of meeting, I will answer them at once, and make the date suitable to all parties.

Be the way, Mr. Editor, if Umpire has been bold enough to have signed his name to his letter, I would certainly have given him an invitation to call with us, for he seems to know a thing or two about County affairs.

I also notice a letter in last week's Beaver headed "Drifting", by Ex-Warden Gallagher. I just wish to remind him that if he and a few others had worked as hard for a resolution that I made in County Council in 1907 (re County Roads By-law), as they did to have the By-law ratified by the Public Works Department, he would never have had occasion to write regarding Delmage's debt No. 2, and this is only the beginning of a larger County debt (thanks to the County Road system), but as we now have it, we should try and get value for what money we spend.

Pardon me for taking up so much of your valuable paper, but like the Irishman when in danger and under oath took to pray, "just grant me this one request and I may never bother you again.

I remain yours truly,
C. EDGAR,
Reeve of Camden.

DAYS OF DIZZINESS

COME TO MANY NAPANEE PEOPLE

There are days of dizziness, spells of drowsiness, headache, sleeplessness, backache.
Sometimes rheumatic pain after urinary trouble.
You are plainly told that the kidneys are sick.
Booth's Kidney Pills cure all Kidney ills.
Mrs. Benjamin Johnson, of Robert St., Napanee, says:
"Headaches were frequent and usually accompanied by spells of dizziness and spots before the eyes. I would be scarcely able to walk across the floor at times and would have to support myself to keep from falling. My back was weak and I dull, tiring down pain settled across the small of it, and in the region of the kidneys. I would become tired and lame out on walking than on going to bed as I was restless and would get but little sleep. Booth's Kidney Pills were recommended and procuring a box at Mr. Wallace's Pharmacy I commenced treatment. I soon found relief and it was but a short time until I was well and strong again and I have left better in every way."
Sold by dealers. Price 50 cents. The T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont., Sole Canadian Agents.

THAW BEHIND BARS.
Sheriff Says Slayer Got Too Much Attention.
Poughkeepsie, N.Y., July 23d.—By order of Sheriff Job Chanler, Harry K. Thaw was put behind the bars just like any ordinary prisoner in the main part of the county jail on the top floor of the court house. He is now in closer confinement than he has been in since he left the Tombs. Thaw feels confident that Judge Mills will grant him a jury trial at the next hearing on December 1st, and that he will be adjudged sane and granted his liberty.
Sheriff Chanler ordered Thaw put in close confinement after a stormy scene in the jail. He criticised things in general, said that Thaw was receiving so much attention that other duties were neglected, and the place was useless. He scolded the keepers and ordered Thaw put behind the bars.

TO LORD STRATHCONA.
(On first viewing the Royal Victoria Hospital at Montreal.)
Kobbe on bended knee and kind
And richly gifted with an inner grace
Thou animatest the features of your face.
Where life's unerring record well is traced
A fitting temple for a mighty mind:
First of an old indomitable race,
Whose sons have reached the world's remotest place;
Boots, though at home where e'er blows heaven's wind.
These spacious halls we thoughtfully behold
Whose massive portals wear your honored name,
A worthy monument to one whose days
Make glad by gracious deeds unweighed by gold.
So grateful hearts shall ever speak your praise,
While these strong towers reflect the sun's bright flame.

STORY OF THE GREAT RACE.
London, July 24th.—Canada, the greatest Longboat, and, in fact, the British Empire, were soundly beaten in the great Marathon. The much-feared, unknown dark horse did the trick. Duncan, Appleby, Jack, Lord United Kingdom's pride, and Canada's great brigade of distance runners, even had to bow to an unknown Italian, Dorando, a little ball of muscle and grit, who looks and runs like Freddie Young.
Wood, of Brantford, a quiet Canuck, who loafed in all the trials, and was not considered one of Canada's hopes, made Canada's best showing, finishing fifth. Wood came from behind, and he took time and ate them up in the last mile.
It was a cruel race, Jack, Duncan, Appleby and Lord all killed themselves in the first twelve miles, trying to lose Longboat.

LONGBOAT DROPPED SENSELESS.
The Indian was the bugaboo. He ran a mighty race, mowing them down one by one till the twentieth mile came, when with only Hefferon of South Africa between him and victory, he spun around, and dropped senseless. Medical officers refused him permission to go on. Longboat had beaten the Italian to this point and seemed to have the race well in hand.
Hefferon was quite 2 miles out when the Italian passed him, and came again and was third at the Stadium, but dropped senseless also. The Italian dropped three times on the track, but staggered over the tape a winner by half a lap.
The Yankee, Hayes, came up strong. Another Yankee, Forshaw, was third, and dead beat. Still another Yankee, Welton, was fourth, finishing strong. A Canuck, Wood, was fifth, also finishing strong.

SIMPSON FINISHED LIKE A WHIRLWIND.
Simpson came like a whirlwind at the end, beating twelve in the last five miles. Lawson was next, and was weakening.
Tewani, a Yankee Indian, was eighth, staggering. Svenberg, Sweden, was ninth, collapsing at the tape.
The race was run at a fierce pace. The Englishmen made an awful race. Runners collapsed everywhere. Goldsboro had early speed, but couldn't stay. Caffrey, Noseworthy, Lester, Cotter had endurance, but the fierce pace left them in the ruck.

CANADIANS NOT DISGRACED.
The Canadians were not disgraced. They beat England's cracks at the finish.
Flanagan is heartbroken over Long boat's collapse.
Longboat arrived in an auto after the fifth man. He was received with laughter from the Americans and cheers from the crowd.
The disqualification of Dorando places Hays, United States, first, Wood 6th, Simpson sixth, Lawson seventh, Caffery eleventh, Goldsboro sixteenth, Goulding twenty-second, Burn twenty-third, Lister twenty-fifth. Cotter, Noseworthy, Tait, and Longboat were the only Canucks who did not finish. The Canucks showing, eight finishes out of twelve, is favorably commented upon.
The Canadians say the moist heat made them weak. The slow time was due to the fact that the fast men all dropped by the roadside.
Lou E. Marsh.

BREATHE HELP FOR CATARRH.
DRUGGIST T. B. WALLACE IS HAVING SPLENDID REPORTS FROM HYOMEI USERS.
It's the poison germs in the air you breathe that creates and feeds catarrh. Hyomei simply catches these germs on their way to work and destroys them. The first breath of Hyomei air kills the catarrhal poison.
This makes the air you are breathing inward helpful, it goes on its way through the air passages, bronchial tubes and lungs destroying the germ destroying power that cannot be resisted, it soothes and heals the wounded and inflamed membranes.
That is why Hyomei is so instantly helpful for any distress of the breathing organs, colds, croup, bronchitis, asthma, or dreaded pneumonia, they are the germ life that Hyomei kills.
Complete guaranteed outfit, $1.00. Sold by T. B. Wallace, talk to him about it.

NATIVES OF QUEBEC IN CHAMPLAIN'S DAY.
Champlain, in his own account of his voyages, gives an interesting account of his intercourse with the Indians who visited him at the time of the establishment of his primitive settlement there. After recounting his experiences on the journey up the St. Lawrence from Tadousac, he tells of the building of his "abitation" and continues:
"Meanwhile a great many savages were in cabins near us, fishing for seals, which begin to come about September 15th and stay on until October 15th. At this time all the savages live on this manner, and dry enough of it to last through the winter to the month of February, when the season becomes too cold and half frozen, or thaw at times. And when the seals and other things that they collect are scarce, they go and hunt the beaver, which they do until the beginning of January. They were not very successful in the beaver hunt, for the water was too high, and the rivers had overflowed, as they told us. When their nets give out they have recourse to hunting the elk, moose and other wild beasts, which they can find, while waiting for the spring. At this time I was able to supply them with several things. I made a special study of their customs.
"All these people are so much in want that sometimes they are driven to lies on certain kinds of shellfish, and to eat their dogs and the skins with which they protect themselves against the cold. If some one should show them how to live and teach them how to till the soil, and other things, they would learn very easily, for there are a good many of them who have good judgment and reply intelligently to what is asked of them. There is an evil temper among them to be revengeful, and to be great liars, and one cannot rely upon their exact word or mention and when one is armed. They make promises enough but keep few of them, most of them being without law, as far as I could see, and, besides, full of false beliefs. I asked them what ceremonies they employed in praying to their God; they told me that they made use of none, except that each prayed in his heart as he wished. This is why they have no law, and do not know what it is to worship God and pray to Him, but live like brute beasts; but I think that they would soon be converted to Christianity if some people would settle among them and cultivate their soil, which is what most of them wish. They have among them some savages whom they call Pilotois, who they believe, talk with the evil one face to face, who tells them what they must do, whether in case of war or in regard to other matters; and if he should command them to carry out a certain enterprise they would obey his command at once. They believe, also, that all the dreams that they have are true; and in fact there are many of them who say that they have seen and dreamed things which have come to pass or will take place. I used to tell the truth about the matter, they are diabolical visions, which deceive them, and lead them astray. This is all that I have been able to learn about their brutish belief.
"All these people are well built, without deformity and are active. The women are equally well formed, plump and of a tawny complexion, because of certain pigments which they put on which make their look olive-colored. They are dressed in skins; a part of the body is covered, the rest bare but in winter they make up for it, for they are dressed in good furs, like elk, otter, beaver, seal, deer and roe, which they have in great quantity. In winter, when there is a great deal of snow, they make a sort of racquets, which are three or four times as large as those used in France (tennis racquets) which they attach to their feet, and in this way they can go in the snow without sinking in; without them they could not hunt or go in many places. They have an odd sort of marriage, namely, when a girl is 14 or 15 years old, and she has several suitors, she may associate with all of them that she likes. Then at the end of five or six years she makes her own choice from them of a husband, and they live together to the end of their lives. But if, after living some time together, there are no children, then the man may unmarry himself and take another wife. After marriage they are chaste, and the husbands are for the most part jealous. They give presents to the fathers or relatives of the girls, before they have married. These are the ceremonies and ways that they employ in their marriages.
"When their husbands, when a man or woman dies, the people dig a big grave, where they put all the possessions that they had, such as their furs, axes, bows, arrows, robes, and other things; then they put the body in the grave and cover it with earth, and put a great many large pieces of wood on top and cop piece erect. This they paint red on the upper part. They believe in the immortality of the soul, and say that they will be happy in other lands with their relatives and friends who are dead. In the case of captains and others in positions of authority, they celebrate the death three times a year for a celebration and dance, and sing on the grave.

FIRST WINTER IN QUEBEC.
"On the first of October I had my planted, and on the fifteenth rye.
"On the third of the month there was white frost in some places, and the leaves began to fall from the trees on the 24th.
"On the 24th of the month I had some vines planted, which came on finely. But after I left the settlement, to come to France, they were all spoiled from neglect, they was a great grief to me on my return.
"On November 18th there was a great snowfall, but it stayed only two days on the ground.
"On February 5th, 1609, it snowed hard.
"On the 26th of the month we saw some savages on the other side of the river, begging us to come to their side. But I let it be beyond our power to do so, on account of the great amount of driftwood in the river. Hunger pressed these poor miserable creatures so hard that, not knowing what to do, they resolved to die,—men, women and children—in the attempt to cross the river; in the hope that they could find what would come to their succor in their own country. Seeing their resolution, I took their children and got some their canoes, thinking to reach one side through an opening in the ice that the wind had made; but they were scarcely in the middle of the river before their canoes were caught and broken into a thousand pieces by the ice. They had the presence of mind to throw themselves, with their children, whom the women carried on their backs, upon a large cake of ice. While they were on it one could hear them crying out in such a way as to excite great pity; and they expected nothing but death. But fortune so favored these poor wretches that a big piece of ice struck so hard against the side of the one upon which they were that it threw them on the shore. When they saw this favorable turn, they reached the shore with as much joy as they had ever had in doing so, in spite of the great hunger from which they had suffered. They came to our settlement looking so thin and worn that they seemed like skeletons, most of them not able to stand up. I was astonished to see them and at the way in which they had crossed, when I thought of how feeble and weak they were. I gave bread and beans given to them, but they would not wait for them to be cooked to eat them; and I loaned them some bark of trees to cover their cabins. As they were making their cabins they discovered a piece of carrion that I had thrown out nearly two months before to attract foxes, of which we caught black and other kinds, like those in France, but having more fur. This carrion was a sow and a dog, which had been exposed to warm weather and the cold. When the weather was growing mild it smelled so strongly that one could not stay near it. Nevertheless they lost no time in seizing it and taking it to their cabin, where they devoured it at once half cooked.

AN OLD-FASHIONED WINTER.
"The snow and ice stayed on the ground five months; that is from the middle of November until the end of April, when it is almost all melted from Tadousac to Gaspe. Cape Breton, Newfoundland and the Great Bay (outer Gulf of St. Lawrence), the snow and ice continue in many places until the end of May, at which date sometimes the mouth of the great river is sealed with ice; but at Quebec there is not any, which shows a strange difference for the leagues of distance in longitude, for the mouth of the river is at latitude 49, 50 and 51, and our settlement is in latitude 46½. As for the country, it is beautiful and pleasant, and to our settlement looking so thin and worn that they seemed like skeletons, most of them not able to stand up. I was astonished to see them and at the way in which they had crossed, when I thought of how feeble and weak they were. I was astonished to see them and at the way in which they had crossed, when I thought of how feeble and weak they were. I gave bread and beans given to them, but they would not wait for them to be cooked to eat them; and I loaned them some bark of trees to cover their cabins. As they were making their cabins they discovered a piece of carrion that I had thrown out nearly two months before to attract foxes, of which we caught black and other kinds, like those in France, but having more fur. This carrion was a sow and a dog, which had been exposed to warm weather and the cold. When the weather was growing mild it smelled so strongly that one could not stay near it. Nevertheless they lost no time in seizing it and taking it to their cabin, where they devoured it at once half cooked.

GOT HIS HAIR BACK.

Was Perfectly Bold When He Started to Use Newbro's Herpicide.

Frederick Mansell, Maryland block, Butte, Montana, bought a bottle of Newbro's Herpicide, April 6, '08, and began to use it for entire baldness. The hair follicles in his scalp were not dead and in 26 days he had hair all over his head. On July 2 he writes, "and today my hair is as thick and luxuriant as any one could wish." Newbro's Herpicide works on an old principle and with a new discovery—destroys the cause and you remove the effect. Herpicide destroys the germ that causes dandruff, falling hair, and finally baldness, and that with the cause gone the effect cannot remain. Stop falling hair at once and a new growth starts. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

A Story of American Life Dramatized from the Play by ARTHUR HORNBLOW.

She had just come across her razor's missing letters, which had got mixed up, evidently without Ryder's knowledge, in the mass of papers she had handed her. Prepared as she was to find the letters somewhere in the house, she never dreamed that fate would put them so easily and so quickly into her hands; the sudden sight of their appearance and the sight of her father's familiar signature affected her almost like a shock. Now she had them, she must let them go again; yet how could she keep them unobserved? Could she conceal them? Would he miss them? She tried to slip them in her bosom while Ryder was busy at the phone, but he suddenly glanced in her direction and caught her eye. She still held the letters in her hand, which shook from nervousness, but he noticed nothing and went on speaking through the phone:

"Hello, Jefferson, boy! You want to see me. Can you wait till I'm through? I've got a lady here. Going away? Nonsense! Determined, eh? Well, I can't keep you. Come right up, you're my kind. You want to say goodby. Come up in about five minutes, and I'll introduce you to a very interesting person."

He laughed and hung up the receiver. Shirley was all unstrung, trying to overcome the emotion which her discovery had caused her, and in a strangely altered voice, the result of the nervous strain she was under, she said:

"You want me to come here?"

She looked up from the letters she was reading across to Ryder, who was standing watching her on the other side of the desk. He caught her glance and, leaning over to take some manuscript, he said:

"Yes, I don't want these papers to get—"

His eye suddenly rested on the letters she was holding. He stopped short, and reaching forward he tried to snatch them from her.

"What have you got there?" he exclaimed.

He took the letters, and she made no resistance. It would be folly to force the issue now, she thought. Another opportunity would present itself. Ryder locked the letters up very carefully in the drawer on the lefthand side of his desk, muttering to himself rather than speaking to Shirley:

"How on earth did they get among my private papers?"

"From Judge Rossmore, were they not?" said Shirley boldly.

"How did you know it was Judge Rossmore?" demanded Ryder suspiciously. "I didn't know that his name had been mentioned."

"I saw his signature," she said simply. Then she added, "He's the father of the girl you don't like, isn't he?"

"Yes, he's the—"

A cloud came over the financier's face, his head sank, his jaws snapped, and he clinched his fist.

"How you must hate him!" said Shirley, who marvelled at his passion.

"Not at all," replied Ryder, recovering his self possession and suavity of manner. "I disagree with his politics and his methods, but—I know very little about him except that he is about to be removed from office."

"About to be?" echoed Shirley. "So his fate is decided even before he is tried?"

The girl laughed bitterly. "Yes," she went on, "some of the newspapers are beginning to think he is innocent of the things of which he is accused."

"Do they?" said Ryder indifferently. "Yes," she persisted, "most people are on his side."

She planted her elbows on the desk in front of her, and looking him squarely in the face she asked him point blank:

"Whose side are you on—really and truly?"

Her winced. What right had this woman, a stranger both to Judge Rossmore and himself, to come here and catechise him? He restrained his impatience with difficulty as he replied:

"Whose side am I on? Oh, I don't know that I am on any side. I don't know that I give it much thought. I—"

"Do you think this man deserves to be punished?" she demanded.

She had resumed her seat at the desk and partly regained her self possession.

"What do you ask? What is your interest in this matter?"

"I don't know," she replied evasively. "Curiosity, I suppose me, that's all. It's rather romantic. Your son loves this man's daughter. He is to disgrace—many seem to think ineligible." Her voice trembled with emotion as she continued: "I have heard from one source and another you know I am acquainted with a number of newspaper men—I have heard that life no longer has any pleasure for him, that he is not only disgraced but beggared, that he is pining away slowly, dying of a broken heart, that his wife and daughter are in despair. Tell me, do you think he deserves such a fate?"

Ryder paused, thoughtful a moment, and then he replied:

"No, I do not."

Unbidden tears had touched his sympathies, Shirley followed up her advantage.

"Oh, then, why not come to his rescue —you, who are so rich, so powerful; you, who can move the stones of justice at your will—save this man from humiliation and disgrace!"

Ryder shrugged his shoulders, and his face expressed weariness, as if the subject had begun to bore him.

"My dear girl, you don't understand. His removal is necessary."

Shirley's face became set and hard. There was a contemptuous ring to her words as she retorted:

"Yet you admit that he may be innocent!"

"Even if I knew it as a fact, I could do no more."

"Do you mean to say that if you had positive proof?" She pointed to the drawer in the desk where she had placed the letters. "If you had absolute proof in that drawer, for instance, wouldn't you help him?"

Ryder's face grew cold and inscrutable; he now wore his fighting mask.

"Not even if I had the absolute proof in that drawer!" he snapped viciously.

"Have you absolute proof in that drawer?" she demanded.

"I repeat that even if I had I could not expose the men who have been my friends. It's noblesse oblige in politics as well as in society, you know."

He smiled again at her, as if he had recovered his good humor after their sharp passages at arms.

"Oh, it's politics! That's what the papers said. And you believe him innocent. Well, you must have some grounds for your belief."

"Yet necessarily."

"You said that even if you had the proofs you could not produce them without sacrificing your friends, showing that your friends are interested in having this man put off the bench"—She stopped and burst into hysterical laughter. "Oh, I think you're having a joke at my expense," she went on, "just to see how far you can lead me. I daresay Judge Rossmore deserves all he gets. Oh, yes, I'm sure he deserves it." She rose and walked to the other side of the room to conceal her emotion.

Ryder watched her curiously.

"My dear young lady, how you take this matter to heart!"

"Never forget it," she said.

She leaned against a chair, sick and faint from nervousness, her whole body trembling. At that moment there was a knock at the library door, and Jefferson Ryder appeared. Not seeing Shirley, whose back was toward him, he advanced to greet his father.

"You told me to come up in five minutes," he said. "I just wanted to say—"

"Miss Green," said Ryder senior, addressing Shirley and ignoring whatever it was that the young man wanted to say, "this is my son Jefferson. Jeff, this is Miss Green."

Jefferson looked in the direction indicated and stood as if rooted to the floor. He was so surprised that he was struck dumb. Finally, recovering himself, he exclaimed:

"Shirley!"

"Yes, Shirley Green, the author," explained Ryder senior, not noticing the note of familiar recognition in his exclamation.

Shirley advanced and, holding out her hand to Jefferson, said demurely:

"I am very pleased to meet you, Mr. Ryder. Then quickly in a low tone she added: "Be careful. Don't betray me."

Jefferson was so astounded that he did not see the outstretched hand. All he could do was to stand and stare first at her and then at his father.

"Why don't you shake hands with her?" said Ryder senior. "She won't bite you." Then he added: "Miss Green is going to do some literary work for me, so we shall see a great deal of her. We can lend your new story, can't we?" He chuckled at his own pleasantry.

"Father," blurted out Jefferson, "I want to speak to you—alone." His voice trembled with emotion as she continued: "I have heard from one source and another you know I am acquainted with a number of newspaper men—I have heard that life no longer has any pleasure for him, that he is not only disgraced but beggared, that he is pining away slowly, dying of a broken heart, that his wife and daughter are in despair. SICK HEADACHE.

CHAPTER XIII.

SHIRLEY GREEN felt her self-control slipping from her as she looked at Jefferson Ryder. She turned to her mother for support.

The girl's cousin had been an astonishing shock to her. She could not believe that it was only with the connivance of her own mother that Jefferson had been kept in ignorance of the whereabouts of his cousin. Shirley had written to the latter, she had received letters from her, she had written to the biography, and what is her was still more important, the latter had written to go and live in Ryder's house —all these incidents were so remarkable and unusual that it was only with difficulty that the girl persuaded herself that they were not figments of a disordered brain.

But it was all true enough. The next morning's mail brought a letter from Mrs. Ryder, who wrote to the effect that Mr. Ryder would like the work to begin at once and adding that a suit of rooms would be ready for her for the following afternoon. Shirley did not hesitate. Everything was to be gained by making the Ryder residence her headquarters, her father's very life depended upon the successful outcome of her present mission, and this unlooked for opportunity practically insured success. She immediately wrote to Mamie Pequo. One letter was to her mother, saying that she was extending her visit beyond the time originally planned. The other letter was to Stott. She told him all about the interview with Ryder, informed him of the discovery of the letters and after explaining the nature of the work offered to her, said that her address for the next few weeks would be in care of John Burnett Ryder. All was going better than she had dared to hope. Everything seemed to favor their plan. Her first step, of course, while in the Ryder house would be to secure possession of her father's letters, and these she would dispatch at once to Mamie—so they could be laid before the senate without delay.

So, after settling accounts with her landlady and packing up her few belongings, Shirley lost no time in transferring herself to the more luxurious quarters provided for her in the $10,000,000 mansion uptown.

At the Ryder house she was received cordially and with every mark of consideration. The housekeeper came down to the main hall to greet her when she arrived and escorted her to the suit of rooms, comprising a small working library, a bedroom simply but daintily furnished in pink and white and a private bathroom which had been specially prepared for her convenience and comfort, and here presently she was joined by Mrs. Ryder.

"Dear me," exclaimed the financier's wife, staring curiously at Shirley, "what a young girl you are to have made such a stir with a book! How did you do it? I'm sure I couldn't. It's as much as I can do to read a letter, and half the time that's not legible."

"Oh, it wasn't so hard!" laughed Shirley. "It was the subject that appealed rather than any special skill of mine. The trusts and their misdemeanors are the favorite topics of the hour. The whole country is talking about nothing else. My book came at the right time, that's all."

Although "The American Octopus" was a direct attack on her own husband, Mrs. Ryder secretly admired this young woman who had dared to speak a few blunt truths. It was a courage which, alas, she had always lacked herself, but there was a certain satisfaction in knowing there were women in the world not entirely cowed by the tyrant man.

"I have always wanted a daughter," went on Mrs. Ryder, becoming confidential, while Shirley removed her things and made herself at home. "Girls of your age are so companionable." Then abruptly she asked, "Do your parents live in New York?"

Shirley's face flushed, and she stooped over her trunk to hide her embarrassment.

"No—not at present," she answered evasively. "My mother and father are in the country."

She was afraid that more questions of a personal nature would follow, but apparently Mrs. Ryder was not in an inquisitive mood, for she asked nothing further. She only said:

"I have a son, but I don't see much of him. You must meet my Jefferson. He is quite a nice boy."

Shirley tried to look unconcerned as she replied:

"I met him yesterday. Mr. Ryder introduced him to me."

"Poor lad! He has his troubles, too," went on Mrs. Ryder. "He's in love with a girl, but his father wants him to marry some one else. They're quarreling over it all the time."

"Parents shouldn't interfere in matters of the heart," said Shirley decisively. "What it means is ruining the choosing of a life companion, and who are better entitled to make a free selection than they who are going to spend the rest of their days together? Of course it is a father's duty to give his son the benefit of his riper experience, but to insist on a marriage based only on business interests is little less than a crime. There are considerations more important if the union is to be a happy or a lasting one. The chief thing is that the man should feel real attachment for the woman he marries. Two people who are to live together as man and wife must be compatible in tastes and temper. You cannot mix oil and water. It is these selfish marriages which lead to the divorce court. Money alone won't buy happiness in marriage."

"Yes," sighed Mrs. Ryder. "No one knows that better than I."

The financier's wife was already most favorably impressed with her guest, and she chatted on as if she had known Shirley for years. It was rarely that she had heard so young a woman express such common sense views, and the more she talked with her the more convinced she was that this was the author of a much discussed book. Finally, thinking that Shirley might prefer to be left alone, she had begun bidding her make herself thoroughly at home and to ring for anything she might wish, a maid had been assigned to look exclusively after her wants, and she could have her meals served in her room or else have them with the family, as she liked. But Shirley, not caring to encounter Mr. Ryder's cold, searching eyes more than was necessary, said she would prefer to take her meals alone.

Left to herself, Shirley settled down to work in earnest. Mr. Ryder had sent to her room all the material for the biographical work, and she completely absorbed in the task of sorting and arranging letters, making extracts from records, compiling data, etc., laying the foundations for the important book she was to write. So engrossed was she in what they would call it, and she smiled as a peculiarly appropriate title flashed through her mind—"The History of a Crime." Yet she thought they could hardly infringe on Victor Hugo. Perhaps the best title was the simplest, "The History of the Empire Trading Company." Every one would understand that it told the story of John Burkett Ryder's remarkable career from his earliest beginnings to the present time. She worked feverishly all that evening getting the material into shape, and the following day found her early at her desk. No one disturbed her, and she wrote steadily on until noon. Mrs. Ryder only once putting her head in the door to wish her good morning.

After luncheon Shirley decided that the weather was too glorious to remain indoors. Her health must not be jeopardized even to advance the interests of the Colonel—so she put on her hat and left the house to go for a walk. The air smelled sweet to her after being confined so long in the library, and she walked with a more elastic and buoyant step than she had since her return home. PRODUCTS OF NATURE

Are the Most Nutritious, Delicious and Beneficial.

How quickly the human system rebels at nature's products which Providence did not design as a food or, medicine, yet how many of our most nourishing and delicious foods and fruits, as well as our most healing medicines are enveloped in unwholesome coverings, and it is left for the ingenuity of man to prepare them for use.

For instance, the nourishing egg must be broken from its shell, the succulent oyster, or the crab, taken from its shell. Nuts, oranges and bananas are encased in most unwholesome shells or coverings. The roots and herbs of the field contain some of our most potent and healing constituents which must be extracted for use. Just so, the cod's liver contains well-known curative elements especially in the treatment of pulmonary troubles.

For centuries people were obliged to swallow greasy cod liver oil and emulsions to get the benefit of these valuable curative elements. Physicians the world over recognized the usefulness of the oil, but how to separate the medicinal elements from the objectionable oil, has been the question.

After years of experimenting, two eminent French chemists have, by a scientific, extractive and concentrating process produced from fresh cod livers all of the medicinal, healing and body building elements of cod liver oil, omitting the oil entirely, and these combined with peptonate of iron make Vinol, which is more potent than any other known Cod Liver preparation. As a body builder, and strength creator and for all pulmonary troubles it has no equal.

We want all our readers who have a cough, cold or any lung trouble to try Vinol on our guarantee. T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ont.

TIRED OF LIFE.

Mr. Calvin Fyne, an old resident of Napanee for almost his entire life, evidently got tired of this world on Tuesday evening last, and as a result took his own life. Some time during the early evening of that day he drove some hooks in the wall, fastened a slip-knot with a piece of cotton cloth, and tied it around his neck quite securely, then stepped off a small box which he had fixed to do the job. He was not discovered until the next morning about 8 o'clock, when Master Arthur Kelly, going in his quarters, opposite the Campbell House, on an errand, was horrified to find the old man dangling from the wall. When found life was extinct, as he had evidently been dead for some hours. It was not for want of money that he did the rash act, as some $42.00 were found on his person, and it is reported that he has an account in one of the banks here. His wife predeceased him year ago, but one son located in the west, survives him.

CROYDON.

Most of the farmers are through haying, and report it a fair crop. —Rev. Mr. Dixon preached here on Sunday last to a large crowd. Owing to Quarterly meeting at Tamworth on Sunday next, there will be no service held here.—Mr. S. Keller met with a serious accident on Monday last. While going down a hill with a load of grain, the rack slipped ahead and caused the horses to run and kick, throwing Mr. Keller off, breaking three of his ribs and his shoulder. He is now under the doctor's care. We all hope for his speedy recovery. — Rev. Mr. W. Hradshaw and wife and little daughter Aileen, have returned to their home at Felts Mills, N.Y., after spending a month with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Campbell.—Mr. and Mrs. Haw.ey Bradshaw spent Sunday at Mr. Geo. Barnes'.—Miss Rachael Craig still continues very low.—Mr. Elmore Galbraith and sister Myrtle took in the excursion to Tweed on Wednesday last.

Best trip this year—Oddfellows' Excursion to Ottawa, via G.T.R., Wednesday, Aug. 12th, 1908. Special train both ways. Train leaves Napanee at 7.13 a.m.; fare, $2.05. All tickets good to return on any regular train on Aug. 13th.

SALMON POINT.

A sad accident occurred here on Thursday last. Mr. McDonell lost a valuable horse and his buggy. He is out about two hundred and fifty dollars.

Salmon Point baseball team played East Lake a game on Wednesday evening of last week. Salmon Point defeated East Lake twenty-eight runs to nine.

The farmers are all very busy in their harvest. There is more hay and grain this year than there was last, year on Salmon Point.

CHERRY VALLEY.

Harvesting is the order of the day. Everybody is glad to see the fine weather as it gives the farmers better chance in their harvest fields. Fruit is not a very extra crop, that is the apple crop; berries are very good.

We are sorry to say that Mr. B Spafford is very sick. He had a stroke last Friday night. We hope for his speedy recovery.

Mrs. C. Wood, Napanee, is visiting at her brother's, Wm. Woods, and other friends throughout this vicinity.

James E. Johnston, of Picton, visited at his sister's, Mrs. Wm. Woods, on Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson, Winnipeg, are visiting friends in this vicinity.

Many of the friends from this place took the excursion to Quebec last week. All report a good time.

A PRESENTATION TO WILLIAM SCANLIN AND FAMILY.

On July 13th, many of the employees of The Canadian Portland Cement Company assembled at the residence of William Scanlin, to bid him good-bye, on the occasion of his leaving here to accept a position with the Canadian Portland Cement Co. at Port Colborne, and to present him with the following address:

Marlbank, July 23d, '08.

It was with profound regret that we learned of your intention to sever your connection with the Canadian Portland Cement Company, and we cannot let you go without letting you know how deeply we feel your departure from amongst us.

In the eight years you have been a fellow worker with us you have won the esteem and good will of all with whom you have come in contact either in the performance of your duties or otherwise, and we can appreciate the gain to those to whom you are going by the feelings of our own loss, and we sincerely hope that Mrs. Scanlin, yourself, and family, will find health, happiness and prosperity in the new home to which you are going, and we would like you to accept of these chairs, not for their intrinsic value, but as a remembrance from those who will always have a warm feeling for the welfare of yourself and family.

Signed on behalf of the employees,

P. WISEMAN,
J. W. HAYES,
F. D. SHANGRAW.

Mr. Scanlin replied in a few well chosen words, thanking all on behalf of Mrs. Scanlin and himself for the many acts of kindness and courtesy to themselves and family during their residence in Marlbank.

THANKS! THANKS!

Our WALL PAPER trade this year has been of such dimensions as to overshadow every other line of goods sold, and only this Torrid weather has caused any lull in the sales. We wish to thank our many friends for their patronage and beg to say that we are preparing for next season on a larger scale than ever before attempted. Our stock is somewhat depleted at present of the cheaper grades but we have determined to meet your wants by giving you a High-Grade paper at a Low-Grade price, and in this way make room for the new papers which will begin to arrive in September. For bargains in REMNANTS OF WALL PAPER come early and get SOME SNAPS.

THERE are many kinds of flour sold. Some are made from spring wheat and some from winter wheat.

What you ought to know is which wheat makes the best flour, and why.

Winter wheat is put into the ground in the fall, grows a few inches, then gives up to the snow. When the snow melts it grows again, ripening in July. It matures slowly, is soft and very starchy.

Spring wheat is sown n late April or early May, and ripens in August. It matures rapidly and is therefore strong. It's a flinty, translucent wheat, rich in gluten and containing nearly twice as much real nutriment as the winter wheat.

Royal Household Flour

is made entirely from the hard, nutritious spring wheat, carefully selected from all the wheat of this kind grown in Canada.

Royal Household is fine, light and pure—milled by the most improved methods—in a mill as cleanly as your own kitchen.

Ask your grocer for Ogilvie's Royal Household—just enough to try. He may charge you a few cents more than you are used to paying, but you will forget that when you see the results in your bread and pastry.

de Dieu." At 4 p.m., review of the historic procession in front of the Champlain monument. Evening, illumination of the combined fleets, and the surrounding country, and great display of fireworks on the Heights of Levis opposite Quebec.

Friday, review on the Plains of Abraham before H. R. H. the Prince of Wales. Those who took part in the review were the sailors off the French, American and British Man-of-War, and all the troops in camp, cavalry, artillery, Infantry, R. S. C. A. H. G., engineers, R. W. M. P.

At 4 p.m. we struck tents and started for home, passing amongst the war ships on our way to Point Levis, where we took a special train for home, arriving in Napanee about noon on Saturday.

D. COMPANY 47th BATTALION AT QUEBEC TERCENTENARY.

The contingent of D. Company 47th Battalion Canadian Militia of Napanee, who went to the tercentenary celebration in Quebec, were Color Sergt. A. Douglas, Sergt. C. Conway, Sergt. A. O. VanLuven, Corporal Wm. Maggs, Pte. B. Larey, which left Napanee at 11.58 a.m., on on the 17th inst. At Kingston took special for Point Levis, picking up contingents at various stations on the way down, which formed the composite Regt. No. 2, composed of all the militia corps from Port Hope Lindsay, Peterboro', Prince Edward, and all the way down to the border of Quebec. We had a pleasant journey down, with no mishaps.

Arrived in Point Levis at 6 a.m. on the 18th, and took ferry across to Quebec, passing among the fleet of warships, six British and two French. Had no rations until Saturday evening. We landed at King's wharf, marched from wharf past the citadel out to Sanvard Park, about four miles, where our tents were pitched ready for us.

On Sunday we started out to take in the sights of the city. The first thing to attract one's attention was the very poor condition of the sidewalks, and next the narrow and crooked streets. Then we noticed the open stores. All provision stores were open on Sunday, but the city was dry, all the bars closed and the hotelkeepers gone to church.

As we came nearer the heart of the city we noticed more signs of the celebration, viz., flags, bunting, grand arches, and mottos, such as "Jacques Cartier, Champlain, Levis, Murray, Martyrs." "1576-1635 Champlain." "1534-1536 Jacques Cartier" "Gloria au Pere De La Nouvelle France." "Honneur a Champlain", "Champlain Hommed Eaglise," "Gloria a Laval," "Welcome," etc.

These mottos were all composed of innumerable small electric light bulbs. The principal buildings were decorated with rows of red, white and blue lights, which showed for miles.

On the streets were to be seen at all hours, day and night, heralds-at-arms, and rose-of-the-watch costumed as in the time of Champlain.

On Monday, the 20th, the heralds proceeded through the streets making official announcement in connection with the celebration, the arrival of official guests, the programme of the following day, etc.

On Wednesday the several thousand troops lined each side of the streets leading from the King's wharf to the citadel, all the cross streets leading to the line of route of the Prince were guarded by detachments of cavalry. Preceding the Prince was a mounted body guards followed by a special guard of honor composed of the N. W. Mounted Police, then the Royal carriage, carrying H. R. H. The Prince of Wales, Sir Frederick Earl Grey, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, surrounded by many body guards. The came Lord Roberts and other distinguished personages.

BABY'S GREAT DANGER DURING HOT WEATHER

More little lives are lost during the hot weather than at any other time of the year, diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera infantum and stomach troubles come without warning, and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. During the hot weather months Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in every home where there are small children. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles. Or if the trouble comes unawares the prompt use of this medicine will cure the child through. Mrs. Wm. J. Renard, New Glasgow, Que., says :—"One of my children had a severe attack of diarrhoea which Baby's Own Tablets promptly cured. I know of no medicine so good for stomach and bowel troubles." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Canada welcomes the Prince of Wales, son and heir of Edward VII., hoping that he will prove worthy of his sire, and be dearer as dear to the British people. The function of the Crown since George III. has been social rather than political, though his son called a leader of the minority to the Premiership. But the present reign has shown that there is still latent influence of the political kind. There certainly is in the case of a King with so strong a hold on the popular heart as Edward VII. Suppose in the semi-revolutionary state into which England seems to be working herself and with such a confused medley of parties on the Government side, there should come a deadlock, and the King should choose his man; the nation the majority of which must still be anti-revolutionary would almost certainly stand by him.

SOME WARM WEATHER SALADS

"One of the prettiest of the luncheon or supper salads is made by cutting the top from a green pepper, removing the seeds with a knife or stick—they burn the skin if touched with the fingers—and filling the basket thus made with chicken or lobster salad," says Christine Terhune Herrick in the August Woman's Home Companion. "Each pepper may be placed on a lettuce leaf and crowned with a spoonful of mayonnaise. Another salad is prepared by hollowing a tomato and filling it with dice of cucumber, of peeled cucumber, cutting it in half lengthwise, scooping out the inside, and filling this with dice of the tomatoes. Serve either tomato or cucumber on a lettuce leaf, and garnish with mayonnaise ribbons. These are made by shaving the peel from the outside of a cucumber and then cutting it thin. Take a slice—it should be rather thick—and with a sharp knife cut a spiral, as you would peel an apple. The shaving must be very thin, as it is not long before the cucumber is reached, and only the flesh of the cucumber will serve for the ribbons. Cucumber boats filled with shrimps are a satisfactory dish for a cold supper. Mayonnaise is served with this, or a boiled dressing. The cucumbers halved and filled with other sliced or diced vegetables, served on lettuce, garnished with cucumber ribbons and with a spoonful of scarlet mayonnaise over very thin, make a good dish."

COW TESTING ASSOCIATIONS.

What is a Good Average?

At Ste. Emelie, Que., in June, 142 cows gave an average yield of 24½ lbs. milk, 3.6 test, 20.9 lbs. fat. The best herd average was 651 lbs. milk, 3.5 test, 24.3 lbs. fat. The highest yield of any one cow was 1030 lbs. milk testing 3.5%. The poorest herd was one of 13 cows that averaged only 302 lbs. milk and 15 lbs. fat. If the 13 cows in this herd had given enough milk to raise the yield of them up to the average yield of all the 142 cows in the association they would have given enough milk in the month to make an extra 285 pounds of butter, worth $20.00. This is not be much improvement to add 2 lbs. of fat to them up to the average note the best herd; and if the cows are such that they cannot be made to yield an average quantity, should they be kept?

At Warsaw, Ont., in June, 118 cows gave an average yield of 929 lbs. milk, 3.2 test, 29.9 lb. fat. The best herd's average was 1062 lbs. milk, 32.3 lb. fat from a herd of 26 cows. This association record is in rather striking contrast to the one above, and indicates the great differences that exist between the results obtained in different sections of the country. Stated in another form, if 118 Ste. Anne cows were as good milkers as those at Warsaw they would have given an extra weight of 54,340 pounds during the month.

CUSTOMS REGULATIONS RESPECTING THE FREE ADMISSION OF ANIMALS FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF STOCK.

On July 1st there came into effect new regulations regarding the custom entry of animals imported into Canada for the improvement of stock. Heretofore all certificates of registration which were apparently genuine were accepted by customs officers for the purpose of free entry. Under the new regulations either a Canadian certificate of registration or an import certificate as the case may be must be presented.

Canadian certificates of registration must be presented at the Port of Entry for the following classes and breeds :—

Cattle—Shorthorn, Ayrshire, Hereford, French Canadian, Galloway, Aberdeen-Angus, Red Polled, Jersey, Guernsey and Holstein.

Horses. — Clydesdale, Hackney, Shire, Percheron, Thoroughbred Belgian and French Canadian.

Ponies. Shetland, Welsh. New Forest, Polo, and Riding. Exmoor, Connemara and Hackney.

Swine. — Yorkshire, Berkshire, Tamworth, Chester White, Poland, China, Duroc Jersey, Essex and Victoria.

Sheep.—Shropshire, Lincoln, Oxford Down, Dorset, South Down, Cotswold and Leicester.

The Canadian records for all above mentioned breeds with the exception of that for Holstein Cattle are conducted under the Canadian National System in the office of the Canadian National Records, Ottawa. The Holstein Records is located at St. Hyacinthe, Que. An application for the registration of an imported animal the foreign certificate of registration in addition to the usual application must be forwarded.

There are from time to time animals imported into Canada of breeds for which there are no Canadian Records. In such cases the Herd Books of Record of one of the following recognized foreign Associations.

Horses. — Suffolk Horse Society of Great Britain ; Shire Horse Society of Great Britain and Ireland ; Yorkshire Coach Horse Society of Great Britain and Ireland ; American Morgan Register Association ; American Saddle Horse Breeders' Association ; American Trotting Horse Register Association; Commission des Agriculteurs de France (French Draft) ; Commission des Stud Book des Chevaux de Demi-Sang (French Coach) ; Landwirtschaftlichen Hauptverein für Ostpreussen (German Coach) ; Zuchtverband des Sudlichen Zuchtsbeltaes (German Coach) ; Verband dur Zuchter des Oldenburger elegantes Schwren Kutschpferdes (German Coach) ; Verband der Pferdeuchter in Schleswig-Holstein Merchen) (Oldenburg) Cattle. — Highland Cattle Society of Scotland ; Kerry and Dexter Herd Book (Dublin, Ireland) ; Sussex Herd Book Society (Great Britain) ; Polled Shorthorn Breeders' Association (United States) ; National Polled Hereford Breeders' Association (United States).

Swine. — Large Black Pig Society (Great Britain).

Sheep. — Suffolk Sheep Society (Great Britain) ; Kent and Romney Marsh Sheep Breeders' Association (Great Britain) ; Cheviot Sheep Association (Great Britain) ; Wensleydale Longwool Sheep Breeders' Association (Great Britain) ; Bldek Welsh Mountain Breeders' Association (Great Britain).

Goats. — British Goat Society.

Asses. — Societe Centrale d'Agriculture des Deux Sevres (France) ; Stud Books of Jacks and Jennets of Spain.

To secure free custom entry for an animal so recorded it is necessary to forward to the Canadian National Records, Ottawa, the foreign certificate of registration. The Assistant of the Canadian National Records will return to the importer the foreign certificate to which will be attached an import certificate which will be satisfactory to the customs officer to admit the animal duty free. A nominal charge will be made by the National Record for this service.

If future information is desired such will be supplied on application to the "Assistant of National Live Stock Records, Ottawa.

THE LATE MRS. JAMIESON.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Thomas Jamieson took place Tuesday afternoon. Services were held in Trinity church, Rev. G. N. McColl officiating. The remains were interred in Riverside cemetery. Mrs. Jamieson had resided in Napanee for many years, and with her husband, Ex-Mayor Thos. Jamieson, conducted a successful business in Napanee.

A JUNE WEDDING.

At Whitby, on Monday, June 22d, a quiet but interesting wedding was performed by the Rev. D. O. Crosby at the Methodist parsonage, when Miss Marsellen Sprague, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Sprague, and granddaughter of the late John A. Sprague, Ex-M.P.P., Big Island, was united in marriage to Mr. Howard B. Wallbridge, second son of the late John F. and Mrs. Wallbridge, Massassaga.

IS IT RIGHT?

At a meeting of the Town Council prior to May 24th, 1908, a By-law prohibiting the use of firecrackers, bulbs, etc., within the limits of the town, was brought up, and as a result, printed cards were posted in different parts of the town, prohibiting same under penalty of a fine. Merchants of the town who dealt in those lines were stocked with hundreds of dollars worth of the goods, and hardly anything realized out of them. However, hardly in one single instance was the law prosecuted. But if this By-law holds good, is there not one in reference to using the sidewalks for "stacking" purposes? There are times, and quite often too, when the sidewalk is piled five and six feet high, and sometimes there is hardly room for two people to pass at the same time in front of some of our places of business. Tables are shunted out each and every morning, loaded with various kinds of produce, sacks of various kinds of feed are thrown out on the sidewalk waiting to be called for by farmers and others, and in some instances the contents of a whole car are placed upon the walk, and remains there for hours.

McCABE—BLACK.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Egerton R. McCabe was the scene of a very charming function on Tuesday evening last, when their daughter, Miss Bertha McCabe, organist of the Western Methodist Church, was united in marriage to Mr. Byrne M. Black, of The Robinson Co., of this town, by Rev. W. H. Emsley. The bride carried a beautiful bouquet of roses, and was gowned in grey silk voilene, her travelling dress being brown chiffon broadcloth. Numerous and many and beautiful gifts were some which testified to the popularity of Mr. and Black from the choir and friends of the church, a chaste and elegant silver tea service, Bible and silk umbrella. From The Robinson Co. a handsome velvet rug and a magnificent lamp and stand from the members of the staff, the groom's present to the bride being an exquisite pearl crescent. The bride has been organist of the Western church for the past four years, whilst Mr. Black's services in the choir of the church have been most highly appreciated. The young couple took the early morning train for Toronto, Niagara and other western points, carrying with them the best wishes of a wide circle of friends.

Berger's English Paris Green in tin cans is the best. In Napanee, at Wallace's Drug Store.

A YOUNG LIFE ENDED.

Much sympathy is expressed at Marysville and surrounding country, for Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Meagher, in the loss of their eldest son, Michael James, whose death from tuberculosis, took place at the home of his uncle, D. Sheehan, at Westbrook, where he went in the hope that a change would restore him to his former health, but despite the best medical treatment, and the careful attention of loving hearts and willing hands of friends, he passed peacefully away at 2.30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, comforted by the solemn rights of his Holy religion. Until a short time ago he had been a strong and active lad, the life of his home, and by his kindly disposition and generous nature, he won for himself many friends, especially among the aged, to whom he delighted to extend a helping hand, or give a cheery word or kindly smile. He untimely death at the early age of twenty-seven, has cast a shadow over the faces of all who knew him. His mother, who had been a constant attendant at his bedside the past two weeks, and his uncle, D. Sheehan, accompanied the remains to Marysville, and on Monday, at 10 o'clock, his funeral took place at St. Mary's Church, Marysville. The solemn mass of Requiem was celebrated by Rev. Father Michael Meagher, who was attended by an immense throng of people of all classes and creeds, the sacred edifice being crowded to the door. The Brotherhood of B. of L. F.E., of which deceased was a member, attended the funeral, and about forty of the members preceded the hearse on foot, a distance of two miles, and carried two beautiful wreaths, one from the B. of L. F.E., and one from Miss Marshall, of Belleville. The remains of deceased reposed in a massive silver grey casket, covered with and surrounded by heavy and beautiful gold trimmings. The following gentlemen acted as pall bearers: Messrs. James Toppings, Alexander Campbell, Robert Sutton, Patrick Lynch, Vincent Lynch, Chas. Sullivan. He leaves to mourn his death besides his father and mother, one sister, Mrs. J. B. Saunders, Marysville, and two brothers, Joseph and Frank, at home.

NAPANEE CANOE CLUB.

The weekly sports of the Napanee Canoe Club were held as usual on Thursday evening, 20th inst. The first race, consisting of Tours, was very closely contested, and resulted in a win for Messrs. Carrol, Loynes, Steacy and Miller, the seconds being Messrs. Chenoweth, Conway, Robinson and Steacy jr. The Tug O' War proved interesting and amusing, the winners only getting it after a very spirited contest. The filling with water of one of the canoes in the first tug, caused it to settle slowly, the occupants gradually settling with it, but outside a good mouthful of water to one of the crew, no one was the worst of it, even though the water leaves a bad taste in your mouth. The Tilting, which seems to prove most popular to both participants and spectator, was entered into with a good "go at it", and resulted as follows:

Anderson beat Carrol. Cleland beat Conway. Chenoweth beat Jemmett. Barker beat Steacy. Semi final, Chenoweth beat Cleland, leaving Messrs. Barker, Anderson and Chenoweth to finish next Thursday night.

The fours were as follows:

1.—Carrol, Loynes, Steacy, Miller.
2.—Chenoweth, Robinson, Steacy and Conway.
3.—Barker, Belle, Cleland, Ander son.

Tug of War—Chenoweth, Robinson, Conway, Steacy, jr.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Most housewives judge the purity of a flour by its whiteness. White somehow signifies purity. But while pure flours are always white, white flours are not always pure.

Royal Household Flour

is the whitest flour that is milled. It is also the purest. You may think the flour you are using is about as white as flour can be. AN INTERESTING GENTLEMAN.

Hon. R. P. Roblin, Premier of Manitoba, was in town on Sunday, after spending a few days with his father in Prince Edward County. In conversation with a Beaver reporter, the clever gentleman would not give anything for publication. He did say that the weather had been very dry and very hot. He is a very pleasant gentleman to talk to and spoke freely of his younger days and entre into politics. His first campaign was for a Wardenship, which he was successful in winning. An incident in the preliminaries to the election was when on a tour of the constituency and about one hundred miles from home he stopped over night at a farmhouse. After retiring, a knock came to the door and he was ushered in Mr. Roblin's opponent for the Wardenship and sharing the same bed as the house was crowded with the members. The two talked far into the night and the result was that the present Premier of Manitoba made a life-long friend where many a man would have made an enemy. Mr. Roblin speaks in glowing terms of the possibilities of the west.

WELLS—WAGER.

At Minetto, N.Y., on Wednesday evening, July 1st, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Wells, occurred the marriage of their son, Lloyd Herbert Wells, and Miss Hilda Annette Wager, of Oswego. The home was decorated with ferns and golden glow, the color scheme being green and white throughout. At eight o'clock, the bride and groom, attended by Miss Ada Wells and Miss Cora Nichols and Messrs. Arthur Baker and Charles Brower, entered the parlors and took their places in front of a bank of ferns, where the impressive marriage service was read by Rev. B. DeForest Snyder, the beautiful ring service being used. The bride was charmingly gowned in white embroidered swiss, wore a long veil and carried white carnations. The bridesmaids Misses Ada Wells and Cora Nichols, were prettily attired and carried pink carnations. During the entrance of the bridal party, Mrs. George Blodgett of Watertown gave a vocal selection. After congratulations, a wedding supper was served by Caterer O'Hara, of Oswego, to the fifty invited guests. The young couple received many beautiful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Wells left Thursday on a wedding trip to Watertown. They will be at home after July 12th at No. 66 East Fifth street, Oswego. Their many friends wish them a long and happy life.

BRUNT—JEWELL.

A very pretty wedding took place in the new Anglican Church of St. Thomas, Morven, on Sunday afternoon, after the regular church service, on July 19th, 1908, when Miss Emma Chalwill Jewell, of Hudson, North Cornwall, England, and Mr. Benjamin John Brunt, of Portland, also England, were the contracting parties. Rev. A. L. McTear, of Bath, performed the ceremony. The bride who was given away by Mr. Walter Clark, of Violet, was becomingly attired in a dress of white embroidered lawn with long white silk sash. Her bridal veil was of embroidered Brussels net, fastened with silver pins, and surmounted by a coronet or wreath of white flowers. Her carriage spray was secured with a quaint shamrock brooch set with Irish diamonds. Among her ornaments, which were the gifts of the bridegroom, her mother, brothers and friends, was a rope of Tasmania pearl, shells, and a New Zealand brooch set with green jade. Miss Mabel Clark, of Violet, made a very charming bridesmaid, and Mr. Fred. Burley performed the duties of groomsman. The bride and bridesmaid were each presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers, and the happy couple were showered with confetti as they left the church. The bride received many presents in old country, among which was a beautiful drawn thread linen bed spread worked and made by the natives of the Canary Islands. The members of St. Thomas' Church, together with other friends, met at the home of Mr. Clark, on the following Tuesday evening, and gave the happy couple a kitchen shower, which was enlivened by a charivari party. They were the recipients of a number of very useful household articles, besides a pig and a trio of poultry from their Canadian friends.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain means that a nerve is irritated, inflamed, or out of order. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and he knows if he has created a little pain remedy, called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets, which makes blood pressure away from pain nerves, relieves inharmony, pleasantly, delightfully, quickly, though safely; it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If it's monthly periods which worry you, it's blood.

If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood, lack of nourishing blood pressure. That always is certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply restore the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestive, blood pressure. You'll find it where you suffer. It's simply Congestion.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

Copyright, 1906, by C. W. Dillingham Company.

"But I want you to have the right," he replied earnestly. "I'm going to stop this Roberts nonsense in a way my father hardly anticipates. I'm just waiting a chance to talk to him. I'll show him the absurdity of announcing me engaged to a girl who is about to elope with his private secretary!"

"Elope with the secretary!" exclaimed Shirley.

Jefferson told all about the letter he had found on the staircase and the plan Henry Bagley's plans for a runaway marriage with the senator's wealthy daughter.

"It's a godsend to me," he said gleefully. "Their plan is to get married next Wednesday. I'll see my father on Tuesday. I'll put the evidence in his hands, and I don't think," he added grimly, "he'll bother me any more about Miss Roberts."

"So you're not going away now?" said Shirley, smiling down at him.

He sat up and leaned over toward her.

"I can't, Shirley, I simply can't," he replied, his voice trembling. "You are more to me than I dreamed a woman could ever be. I realize it more forcibly every day. There is no use fighting against it. Without you my work, my life, means nothing."

Shirley shook her head and averted her eyes.

"Don't let us speak of that, Jeff," she pleaded gently. "I told you I did not belong to myself while my father was in peril."

"But I must speak of it," he interrupted. "Shirley, you do yourself an injustice as well as me. You are not indifferent to me—I feel that. Then why raise this barrier between us?"

A soft light stole into the girl's eyes. Ah, it was good to feel there was some one to whom she was everything in the world!

"I don't ask me to betray my trust, Jeff," she faltered. "You know I am not indifferent to you—far from it. But!"—

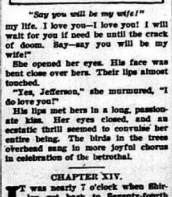
He came closer until his face nearly touched hers.

"I love you—I want you," he murmured feverishly. "Give me the right to claim you before all the world as my future wife!"

Every note of his rich, manly voice, vibrating with impetuous passion, sounded in Shirley's ear like a love scene. She closed her eyes. A strange feeling of languor was stealing over her; a mysterious drift seemed through her whole body. The eternal, inevitable sex instinct was disturbing for the first time a woman whose life had been singularly free from such influences, putting to flight all the calculations and resolves her cooler judgment had made. The sensuous charm of the place—the distant splash of the water, the singing of the birds, the perfume of the trees and grass—all these symbols of the joy of life conspired to arouse the love hunger of the woman. Why, after all, should she not know happiness like other women? She had a sacred duty to perform, it was true, but would it be less well done because she declined to stifle the natural leanings of her womanhood? Both her soul and her body called out, "Let this man love you; give yourself to him; he is worthy of your love."

Half unconsciously she listened to his ardent woolng, her eyes shut, as he spoke quickly, passionately, his breath warm upon her cheek:

"Shirley, I offer you all the devotion a man can give a woman. Say the one word that will make me the happiest or the most wretched of men. Yes or no! Only think well before you wreck



"Say you will be my wife!"

my life. I love you—I love you! I will wait for you if need be until the crack of doom. Say—say you will be my wife!"

She opened her eyes. His face was bent close over hers. Their lips almost touched.

"Yes, Jefferson," she murmured, "I do love you!"

His lips met hers in a long, passionate kiss. Her eyes closed, and an ecstatic thrill seemed to convulse her entire being. The birds in the trees chorused song to more joyful chorus in celebration of the betrothal.

SORE ACHING BLISTERED FEET

Farmers, farmers' wives, store girls, clerks, bricklayers, policemen and postmen—all who have to be on their feet all day, and sufferers from sorefeet, chafing, or blisters will find relief in Zam-Buk.

Mr. Wm. Ashley, 297 Dorchester St., Montreal, says:—"I suffered greatly from sore feet, which became raw and blistered. Some days I was hardly able to walk home from work, and others I had to leave off about 3 o'clock. Powders, salves and ointments of all kinds I tried in vain, but nothing relieved me like using with them in my boots. I was advised to try Zam-Buk, and in a few hours I experienced the smarting and soreness. I kept on with it, putting a little on each night. In a few days the soreness was all gone.

Of all druggists and stores, or post free at 50c. a box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Don't buy worthless imitations, which only disappoint. Insist on having Zam-Buk, which is unequalled for piles, sore feet, eczema, ulcers, abscesses, bad legs, varicose veins, scalp sores, and all skin injuries and diseases.

ZAM-BUK

sna after a hasty dinner worked until late into the night on her book to make up for lost time. The events of the afternoon caused her considerable uneasiness. She reproached herself for her weakness and for having yielded so readily to the impulse of the moment. She had said only what was the truth when she admitted she loved Jefferson, but what right had she to disgrace of her future with her father's fate was still uncertain? Her conscience troubled her, and when she came to reason it out calmly it was more impossible seemed their union from every point of view. How could she become the daughter-in-law of the man who had ruined her own father? The idea was preposterous, and hard as the sacrifice might be, it must somehow be made to see it in that light. Their engagement was the greatest folly. It bound each of them to keep silence, and unhappiness could possibly come of it. She was sure now that she loved Jefferson. It would be hard to give him up, but there are times and circumstances when duty and principle must prevail over all other considerations, and this she felt was one of them.

The following morning she received a letter from Stott. He was delighted to hear the good news regarding her important discovery, and he urged her to lose no time in securing the letters and forwarding them to Mannequan, when he would immediately go to Washington and lay them before the senate. Documentary evidence of that conclusive nature, he went on to say, would prove of the very highest value in clearing her father's name. He added that the judge and her mother were as well as circumstances would permit and that they were not in the least worried about her protracted absence. Her Aunt Milly had already departed for Europe, and Rockaway was still threatening to leave daily.

Shirley needed no urging. She quite realized the importance of acting quickly, but it was not easy to get at the letters. The library was usually kept locked when the great man was away, and on the few occasions when access to it was possible the lynx eyed Mr. Bigley was always on guard. Short as had been her stay in the Ryder household Shirley already shared Jefferson's antipathy to the English secretary, whose manner grew more supercilious and overbearing as he drew nearer the date he looked to expected to run off with one of the richest catches of the season. He had not sought the acquaintance of the girl, the secretary's biographer since her arrival and, with the exception of a rude stare, had not deigned to notice her. The attitude of haughty indifference was all the more remarkable in view of the fact that the Hon. Ryder was known to nothing untutored to cultivate a fleetitious intimacy with every attractive female he met. Shirley was aware that what with Mr. Ryder's demands upon his services and his own preparations for his coming matrimonial ventures, in which he had so much at stake, he had neither time nor inclination to indulge his customary amorous diversions.

Miss Roberts had called at the house several times, ostensibly to see Mrs. Ryder, and was introduced to Shirley she had condescended to give the latter a supercilious nod. Her conversation was generally of the petty, vicious sort concerning chiefly new dresses or bonnets, and Shirley at once read her character—frivolous, shallow, boring, empty headed, irresponsible—just the kind of girl to do something foolish without weighing the consequences. After chatting a few moments with Mrs. Ryder she would usually vanish, and one day after one of these mysterious disappearances Shirley happened to pass the library and caught sight of her and Mr. Bigley in conversation, evidently of eager tones. It was very evident that the elopement scheme was fast maturing. Shirley's wonder was how Jefferson could ignore his father and acquaint him with the facts without delay. It was obvious to her that the course he would make an effort to secure the letters. Meantime she must be patient. How much harry might speed every thing.

So the days passed. Shirley devoting almost all her time to the literary task had undertaken. She saw nothing of Ryder senior, but a good deal of his wife, to whom she soon became much attached. She found her an amiable, good natured woman, entirely free from the pretentiousness and overbearing condescension which usually mark the parvenu as distinct from the thoroughbred. Mrs. Ryder had no claims to distinguished birth; on the contrary, she was the daughter of a country grocer when the then rising oil man married her and of education or advantages she had had little or none. It was purely by accident that she was the wife of the richest man in the world, and, while she enjoyed the prestige her husband's prominence gave her, she never allowed it to turn her head. She even gave large sums for charitable purposes and, strange to say, when the gift came direct from her the money was never returned on the plea that it was "tainted." She shared her husband's dislike for entertaining and led practically the life of a recluse. The advent of Shirley, therefore, into her quiet and uneventful existence was as welcome as sunshine when it breaks through the clouds after days of gloom. Quite a friendship sprang up between the two women, and when tired of writing Shirley would go into Mrs. Ryder's room and chat until the financier's wife began to look forward to these little impromptu visits, so much she enjoyed them.

Nothing more had been said concerning Jefferson and Miss Roberts. The young man had not seen his father, but his mother knew he was only waiting an opportunity to demand an explanation of the engagement announcements. Her husband, on the other hand, desired the match more than ever, owing to the continued importunities of Senator Roberts. As usual, Mrs. Ryder confided these little domestic troubles to Shirley.

"Jefferson," she said, "is very angry. He is determined not to marry the girl, and when he and his father do meet there'll be another scene."

"What objection has your son to Miss Roberts?" inquired Shirley innocently.

"Oh, the usual reason," sighed the mother, "and I've no doubt he knows best. He's in love with another girl—a Miss Rossmore."

"Oh, yes," answered Shirley simply, "Mr. Ryder spoke of her."

Mrs. Ryder was silent, and presently she left the girl alone with her work.

The next afternoon Shirley was in her room busy writing when there came a tap at her door. Thinking it was another visit from Mrs. Ryder, she did not look up, but cried out pleasantly:

"Come in!"

John Ryder entered. He smiled cordially and, as if apologizing for the intrusion, said amiably:

"I thought I'd run up to see how you were getting along."

His coming was so unexpected that for a moment Shirley was startled, but quickly regained her composure and asked him to take a seat. He seemed pleased to find her making such progress—pleased also to receive an answer a number of questions she put to him. Shirley tried to be cordial, but when she looked well at him and noted the keen, hawk-like eyes, the cruel, vindictive lines about the mouth, the square, resolute jaw—she felt that she had gone wrong with the Colossus that day, and he was still wearing his war paint—she realized that this man must had done her father, and she felt how bitterly she hated him. The more her hatred grew the more she congratulated she was to think she should be there, a guest under his roof, and it was only with the greatest difficulty that she remained civil.

"What is the moral of your life?" she demanded bluntly.

He was quick to note the contemptuous tone in her voice, and he gave her a keen, searching look as if he were trying to read her thoughts and fathom the reason for her very evident hostility toward him.

"What do you mean?" he asked.

"I mean what can you show as your life work? Most men whose lives are big enough to call for biographies have done something useful. They have been famous statesmen, eminent scientists, celebrated authors, great inventors. What have you done?"

The question appeared to stagger him. The audacity of any one putting such a question to a man in his own house was incredible. He squared his jaws, and his clinched fist descended heavily on the table.

"What have I done?" he cried. "I have built up the greatest fortune ever accumulated by one man. My fabulous wealth has caused my name to spread to the four corners of the earth. Is that not an achievement to relate to future generations?"

Shirley gave a little shrug of her shoulders.

"Future generations will take no interest in you or your millions," she said calmly. "Our civilization will have made such progress by that time that people will merely wonder why we, in our day, tolerated men of your class so long. Now it is different. The world is money mad. You are a person of importance in the eyes of the unthinking multitude, but it only rivets you your fortune it does not admire you personally. When you die, people will count your millions, not your good deeds."

He laughed cynically and drew up a chair near her desk. As a general thing, John Ryder never wasted words

WATCH YOUR TONGUE.

IF FURRED AND COATED, IT'S A LOOKING GLASS STOMACH WARNING.

When it is the morning after the night before, you do not have to look at your tongue to know that the stomach is upset, the head is aching, no appetite, nerves on edge with all the sunshine of life clouded.

The real time to watch the tongue is all of the time. If it is coated with a white fur, or possibly with dark trimmings, even though the stomach does not tell you by the acute pains of indigestion that it needs help, yet the coating shows that you are getting into a bad way and that there is need of Mi-o-na.

HOW TO PROLONG LIFE

Advice of Our Beloved Poet, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes.

If there is one desire more strongly implanted in the human breast than another as we reach maturer years, that desire is to prolong life. Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, when asked how to live long replied: "Get a fatal disease and then take care of yourself."

We want to say to the people of Napanee who are reaching maturer years if you feel you are not as strong as you used to be you need not get a fatal disease to prolong life, but keep the digestive organs in good condition, and the bodily tissues from wasting by taking our delicious cod liver and iron preparation, Vinol.

Vinol is not a patent medicine, but a delicious modern cod liver preparation without oil, made by a scientific, extractive and concentrating process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate-of-iron all the medicinal, healing, body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil.

Mr. Joseph Banks of Decatur, Ill., in his seventy-eighth year says that owing to Vinol he feels stronger and younger than he has for many years.

There are hundreds of old people in this vicinity who testify to its strength maker and tissue builder as Vinol, and we ask them to try it on our guarantee that if it fails to give satisfaction, T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ont.

ON WOMEN.

Mr. Ryder ignored the insinuation and proceeded:

"What of our boasted free institutions if a man is to be restricted in what he may and may not do? If I am clever enough to accumulate millions, who can stop me?"

"The people will stop you," said Shirley calmly. "It is only a question of time. Their patience is about exhausted. Put your ear to the ground and listen to the distant rumbling of the revolution that is to come, and will be unchained in this land, provoked by the iniquitous practices of organized capital. The people have had enough of the extortions of the trusts. One day they will rise in their wrath and seize by the throat this knavish plutocracy which, confident in the power of its wealth to procure legal immunity and reckless of its danger, persists in robbing the public daily. But retribution is at hand. The growing discontent of the proletariat, the ever-increasing strikes and labor disputes of all kinds, the clamor against the railroads and the trusts, the evidence of collusion between both—all this is the writing on the wall. The capitalistic system is doomed; socialism will succeed it."

"What is socialism?" he demanded scornfully. "What will it give the public that it has not got already?"

Shirley, who never neglected an opportunity to make a convert, no matter how hardened he might be, picked up a little pamphlet printed for propaganda purposes which she had the morning received by mail.

"Here," she said, "is one of the best and clearest definitions of socialism I have ever read:

"Socialism is common ownership of natural resources and public utilities and the common operation of all industries for the general good. Socialism is opposed to monopoly, that is, private ownership of land and the instruments of labor, which is indirect ownership of men; to the wages system, by which labor is legally robbed of a large part of the product of labor; to competition with its enormous waste of effort and its opportunities for the spoliation of the weak by the strong. Socialism is industrial democracy. It is the government of the people, by the people and for the people, not in the present restricted sense, but as regards all the common interests of men. Socialism is opposed to oligarchy and monarchy, and therefore to the privileges of business cliques and money kings. Socialism is for freedom, not only from the fear of force, but from the fear of want. Socialism proposes real liberty, not merely the right to vote, but the liberty to live for something more than meat and drink.

"Socialism is righteousness in the relations of men. It is based on the fundamentals of religion, the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of men. It seeks through association and equality to realise fraternity. Socialism will destroy the motives which make for cheap manufactures, cheap workmanship and adulterations; it will secure the real utility of things. Use, not exchange, will be the object of labor. Things will be made to serve, not to sell. Socialism will banish war, for private ownership is back of strife between men. Socialism will abolish privilege, for private ownership is the source of privilege. Socialism will make for education, invention and discovery; it will stimulate the highest development of men. Crime will have lost most of its motive, and pauperism will have no excuse. That," said Shirley as she concluded, "is socialism."

Ryder shrugged his shoulders and rose to go.

August time tells on the nerves. But this distressing, no matter how it may be is easily and quickly altered by taking what is known by druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Within 48 hours it makes new nerves. Not a stimulant, but a nerve tonic and nerve food. Of course, health will not immediately return. The pain, however, will surely flicker. The best of all, you will realize and feel your strength and ambition as it is returning. Outside influence, depress first the "inside nerves" then the stomach, heart and kidneys will usually fail. Strengthen the nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and see how quickly health will be yours again. Sold by T. B. Wallace. 3td

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Mr. Chamberlain's love of the orchid is well known, and at one of his political meetings some years ago, his fondness for this flower was responsible for an amusing incident. In the midst of the proceedings an old man pushed his way through the crowd, and demanded of his nearest neighbor to be told which was Mr. Chamberlain. "That's 'im," was the answer; "that clean-shaven man with the eye-glass."

"Well, if that's Chamberlain, I think it's a regular fraud," said the old fellow, in a disappointed tone; "they told me as 'ow 'e wore a little orchard in his button-'ole an' I ain't nothin' more than a 'ater blossom, after all!"

IT IS A LIVER PILL.—Many of the ailments that man has to contend with have their origin in a disordered liver, which is the dominating power in controlling the disturbances that come from irregular habits of living. This is the reason why Dr. Hamilton's Pills are so effective for they act directly upon the liver regulators now pressed on the stomach. Many of these pills are now offered as superior to Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. Their assertion though gratis is effective, as the least delicate can use them.

BASEBALL

The attractive game of ball was played on the park on Wednesday afternoon between Napanee and Kingston and the latter won. A league game was scheduled to be played here between Belleville and Napanee, but the former defaulted. It is quite probable that the league is broken up for this year, as Gananoque and Belleville have both lost games by default. The local team will have exhibition games here as often as possible with visiting teams.

The game on Wednesday was a trifle different from other games that have been played here this season, 34 hits being made by the total of 18 men. Of these, 25 were scored after striking out 15 times. Tilson struck out 3 and Turcott 2. The locals enjoyed the greatest assortment of hits and fattened their batting averages accordingly. Beautiful hits were made during the game, Derry, Rose, Joyce and Coyne distinguishing themselves.

The Napanee team go to Kingston tomorrow (Saturday) for a return game there with the Victorias.

Following is the score:

"Hecla" Furnace
Means Perfect Heating without Gas, Dust or Smoke.

The "Hecla" Furnace is the only Furnace with Fused Joints.

These Joints are made by fusing the steel and cast iron parts together at white heat making an indestructible joint. Fused Joints are permanently airtight. Even after 20 years' use they will not work loose or leak. They insure absolute freedom from dust, smoke and gas.

The Steel-Ribbed Fire Pot used on the "Hecla" Furnace has three times as much radiating surface as any other style of fire pot. It will save fuel for you and give you more heat. It extracts from the fire, heat that would otherwise go up the chimney.

Let us show you the 1908 "Hecla" and explain all the latest improvements in detail.

THE NORTHWEST CROPS.

Winnipeg, July 30th, 1908.

To Editor Napanee Beaver :—

My next Sir,—In my last report of the wheat crop in the Northwest, I predicted a yield of not less than one hundred million bushels of wheat, but owing to the dry and hot spell that has prevailed for the last two weeks, I am now prepared to discount that quantity at least 10 per cent.

I see by the dailies that Mr. W. White, of the C. P. R., estimates a yield of 125,000,000, but I would like to know, how any one on a train, travelling not less than 60 miles per hour, can estimate what a field of wheat is going to yield. The Bankers and members of the Grain Exchange are off on their annual tour of inspection next week, and will call at all the large cities on the main line of the C. P. R., and be entertained by the Boards of Trades and Clubs en route, and I have no doubt, but they will return home, and per diet on the most abundant crops this country has ever harvested, but it will be largely owing to the increased acreage now under cultivation, and it is safe to say, that in Manitoba at least, we are beyond the danger from frost and hail.

On Wednesday last I met Mr. R. M. Wilson, of Marringhurst, one of the best farming districts in Manitoba, and he takes issue with those optimists whom he says wildly estimate a 125,000,000 bushels of wheat yield for this country this season, and gives his reason as follows :

A walk through representative grain fields will demonstrate that such a prophecy will never be fulfilled this year, and when prominent men are quoted as making an estimate for 120,000,000 or 125,000,000 bushels the effect it has on the foreign market in lowering prices is certainly not good for this country.

MUST GET INTO FIELD.

A person driving along the road beside grain fields might think the wheat in splendid condition and unless damaged by excessive heat and warm winds, but when you step into the field you can see that there is a difference. In many cases the stalks are dead quite a distance up, even here and there to the top joint. This means that the wheat is killed back, and rain won't do it much good. Another few days of such weather as we had, and a deluge wouldn't have done any good to such wheat as it would be dead to the top stalks. From the rig or the train the grain might look just as well as ever, but you just step into the field to get the real truth.

ON HIS OWN FARM.

On my farm where I have 625 acres of wheat for instance, I found that the grain crop on breaking did not appear to be badly damaged, but the summer fallow suffered severely. There seemed to be a softness from the heavy rains a few weeks previous, and it was not in any shape to stand a sudden hot spell. From the appearance of my grain, I think that it has decreased from 5 to 7 bushels an acre from the estimate I would have placed on it two weeks ago.

AVERAGE OF 18 BUSHELS.

Mr. Wilson expects to thresh between 16 and 18 bushels an acre this year. Last year, his average yield was 10. In this district, the general run of the land is light, but weeds are scarce, and he thinks that the resulting conditions can be taken as a general criterion. He has been in other districts where the land was heavier, and where weeds were more plentiful, and the yield in many sections there will be much the same as that in his own locality.

30,000 WANTED.

There will no doubt be a scarcity of men this year to take off the harvest, in an interview with a Government official on Monday last, he said as follows :

There are fresh requests for men from all over the west and they cannot be supplied. The farmers are unwilling to pay the expenses of laborers before they have seen the man, and many of the unemployed who are siegeing the employment bureaus are unable to pay their own fares. The official anticipated that the numerous farmers who have come into the city for the Exhibition would take a large number of men out with them, as they are not unwilling to pay the expenses when they have seen the manner of man they are engaging.

THOUSANDS FOR THE HARVEST

Asked to give an opinion as to how many men would be required for the harvest, the official declared that if the present indications were fulfilled it would be at least 25,000. From all points the reports anticipated a great demand for men. The wages before offered at present are fifteen to thirty-five dollars a month.

PRIVATE AGENT'S VIEWS.

At Lure and Higgins' employment agents' bureau, the manager stated that there was still a very considerable amount of unemployment in the city and that men could not get work. There were prospects of improvement but the situation had been very grave.

RECORD SAMPLE OF WHEAT AND BARLEY.

When in Yorkton last week, (as you know I am always at home in a printing office), and I saw on exhibition there a sample of wheat and barley from the farm of L. H. Kihlman, six miles west of the town, and it was headed out and in the wild stage. The wheat is forty eight inches high and the thirteen stalks shown were grown from one kernal. The barley is fifty-two inches high, and the twelve stalks were grown from one kernal. The former was down on April 20th, and the latter on May 26th.

I have had a great many letters from old friends in Lennox and Addington, asking my advice as to their emigrating to this country, and would say to all, that a man who has 100 or 200 acres of land in Ontario, out of debt, and small family to stay at home, but to a farmer with a large family of boys and a small farm this is no country for him.

Sincerely yours,
ALEX. HENRY.

P.S.—Mr. J. L. Boyes, of Napanee, and Mr. Brayender, formerly of Napanee Mills, were in the city this week, and favored us with a call.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., NEW YORK.

The Algonquin Park of Ontario is fast becoming popular for anglers and those fond of the woods and outdoor life. The Grand Trunk Railway System have received a letter from a high Government official of the State of Connecticut, who has just returned from a few days in the confines of that delightful Park. He says :

"Some weeks ago I sent for and obtained a Grand Trunk folder relating to Algonquin Park. The printed matter received was very interesting reading, but I had the opportunity of learning within a few days that the beauties of the Park were not overdrawn, and that the fishing obtained there was the best I have ever had the privilege to enjoy, although I have fished the trout waters of Prince Edward Island, through the Canadian Laurentian sections, and in Colorado and Wyoming in the United States.

"I arrived at Algonquin Park from Toronto on the 27th of June, and on the 29th I left the hotel for Smoke and Ragged Lakes, arriving at Smoke Lake late Sunday evening, June 28th. I started for Crown Lake the next morning, and fished at that lake and had good luck, catching square tailed trout. This lake is outside of the park. As I started for my headquarters at the Park, on June 30th, on my return trip I fished in Ragged and Smoke Lakes for salmon trout, using a deep water trolll and brown minnow for bait, between four and five o'clock I caught two salmon trout, one of them weighed eighteen pounds and measured thirty-two inches in length.

As my stay was only three days in the Park, I mean to know more about this place, and shall try to go in there again this fall. Descriptions of localities and prospectus of railroads are often times disappointing. Many times I think it is due to the fact that the pictures are greatly overdrawn, but from my own experience I should say that your folder does not describe this beautiful country, known as the Algonquin Park, in as bright colors as the facts warrant.

Since my return I met a friend of mine, United States Congressman, Edward W. Higgins, of Norwich, Conn., who upon my advice is now fishing in the Park, in company with his wife. He writes me that as I told him regarding the country is true, only that I should have said more."

HOUSE OF INDUSTRY.

Mr. W. A. Grange, Town Clerk, has sent the following to Mr. W. G. Wilson to be laid before the County Council, being a resolution passed by the Town Council :

"Moved by Councillor Storey, seconded by Councillor Osborne, and resolved, that this Council deplores the fact that there is no suitable accommodation in this County for the poor of the various municipalities, and that this Council considers it a disgrace to our listeners towards civilization that in this old County which was the birthplace of so many Christian and charitable institutions no suitable provision has been made for our deserving poor in their declining years, and are maintaining their necessitous poor and paupers with pride to the good work they are doing. Lennox & Addington is just as able to do the same but we have to hang our heads in shame when questioned as to what we are doing for our poor. It is a notorious fact that a very large proportion of the poor now living and from the Town of Napanee belonged originally to the rural districts, and when through age and infirmity they became unable to earn a living in their own local neighborhoods they came to town. From reasons similar to this the Town of Napanee is maintaining in whole or in part, and the County of Lennox & Addington in the maintenance of more than its fair proportion of the poor of the County. That there is urgent need for the erection of a House of Industry in the County, and this Council respectfully requests the various bodies in the County to use their influence to secure without delay some practical solution of this long felt want, and that a copy be sent to the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities.

In order to be in a position to participate in the movement of this year's wheat crop, the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway management is collecting cars in the west. As often as a new G.T.P. car can be loaded for the west it is wheeled westward, unloaded and held there for the threshing time when it is expected everything on wheels will be busy. Already 500 of these splendid big box cars have been gathered and distributed along the line west of Winnipeg.

MRS. ALEXANDER McDONALD.

Great indeed was the shock to the villagers of Mountain Grove, Saturday, August 1st, on hearing that death had stolen suddenly into the home of Mr. Alex. McDonald, carrying from thence the beloved wife and mother. Mrs. McDonald had for some time been troubled with heart affliction, but apparently in good health till a few days previous to her death.

Deceased, whose maiden name was Miss Ann Conboy, was born in the Township of Oso in 1843. Her worth in the village in which she lived for the last twenty years, was shown by the large concourse of people that followed her remains to the church, filling it to overflowing to pay their last respects. Mrs. McDonald was a member of the Methodist church for a number of years, but during the past year had entered into a closer relationship with her blessed Master.

The funeral was conducted in the Methodist church, Mountain Grove, on Monday, at 3 p.m. The text chosen was from Ezekiel XXXIII, II, "Why will ye die." The remains were then placed in the village cemetery. Besides a husband, she leaves six children, to mourn the loss of a kind and affectionate mother, George, of Toronto ; Mrs. Geo. York, of Kenora ; Alexander, of Montreal ; Daniel, of Mountain Grove, James and Miss Gertrude, at home.

"Life we have been long together,
Through pleasant and thro' cloudy weather ;
'Tis hard to part when friends are dear ;
Perhaps 'twill cost a sigh, a tear ;
Then steal away, give little warning
Choose thine own time,
Say not 'good night' but in some brighter clime,
Bid us 'good morning'.

HOUSE OF INDUSTRY.

Mr. W. A. Grange, Town Clerk, has sent the following to Mr. W. G. Wilson to be laid before the County Council, being a resolution passed by the Town Council:

Moved by Councillor Stoner, seconded by Councillor Osborne, and resolved, that this Council deplores the fact that there is no suitable accommodation in this County for the poor of the various municipalities, and that this Council considers it a disgrace to our profession towards civilization that in this old County which was the birthplace of so many Christian associations, institutions and societies, provision is made for poor unfortunates, while other counties have constructed and are maintaining their Houses of Industry and point with pride to the good work they are doing. Lennox & Addington is just as able to do the same, but we have to hang our heads in shame when questioned as to what we are doing for our poor. It is a notorious fact that a very large proportion of the poor receiving aid from the Town of Napanee tricked originally to the rural districts, and when through age and infirmity they became unable to earn a living in their own local neighborhood the burden was left on the ratepayers of the town. To say nothing of maintaining a whole or in part, and has for years been wantonly tax towards the maintenance of more than its fair proportion of the poor of the County. That there is urgent need for the erection of a House of Industry in the County, and this Council respectfully requests the various bodies in the County to use their influence to secure without delay some practical solution of this long felt want, and that this be sent to the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities.

In order to be in a position to participate in the movement of this year's wheat crop, the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway management is collecting cars in the west. As often as a new G.T.P. car can be loaded for the west it is wheeled westward, unloaded and held there for the threshing time when it is expected everything on wheels will be busy. Already 500 of these splendid big box cars have been scattered and distributed along the line west of Winnipeg.

MRS. ALEXANDER McDONALD.

Great indeed was the shock to the villagers of Mountain Grove, Saturday, August 1st, on hearing that death had stolen suddenly into the home of Mr. Alex. McDonald, carrying from thence the beloved wife and mother. Mrs. McDonald had for some time been troubled with heart affliction, but apparently in good health till a few days previous to her death.

Deceased, whose maiden name was Miss Ann Conboy, was born in the Township of Oso in 1843. Her worth in the village in which she lived for the last twenty years, was shown by the large concourse of people that followed her remains to the church, filling it to overflowing, to pay their last respects. Mrs. McDonald was a member of the Methodist church for a number of years, but during the past year had entered into a closer relationship with her blessed Master.

The funeral was conducted in the Methodist church, Mountain Grove, on Monday, at 3 p.m. The text chosen was from Ezekiel XXXIII, II, "Why will ye die." The remains were then placed in the village cemetery. Besides a husband, she leaves six children, to mourn the loss of a kind and affectionate mother, George, of Toronto; Mrs. Geo. York, of Kenora; Alexander, of Montreal; Daniel, of Mountain Grove, James and Miss Gertrude, at home.

"Life we have been long together,
Through pleasant and thro' cloudy weather;
'Tis hard to part when friends are dear;
Perhaps 'twill cost a sigh, a tear;
Then steal away, give little warning
Choose thine own time,
Say not 'good night' but in some brighter clime,
Bid us 'good morning'.

The Newburgh cemetery is rapidly assuming a very handsome appearance. Since the installation of the waterworks system it has been improved by Judge Detwiler, of Belleville, the Trustee Board of the Methodist church have been devising means of placing the cemetery in a condition to do credit to this gift. Considerable work has been done upon it, which now begin to show to great advantage. The undergrowth has been all removed, plots have been cleaned and trimmed, and paths have been re-arranged. Plot-holders are generally fell in with the proposition of the Board for the upkeep of the cemetery, and now will have reason to be proud of the success of the effort made. Superintendent C. E. Sagar is to be congratulated and highly commended on every enthusiastic way in which he has carried the undertaking to a successful issue. It is confidently expected that in a year or two the Newburgh cemetery will be second to none in the country in appearance and cleanliness. It is now expected that plot-holders will generously support the Board in accordance with their promises for this year. These contributions will be accepted by the Superintendent, C. E. Sagar, or Mr. J. H. Patterson, who are authorized with him in this respect. It is not intended by the Trustee Board to make the cemetery a source of revenue. It will receive considerable money to keep the cemetery in first class condition, and a competent man placed on the premises to devote his attention to it. Mr. Rogers' Anderson is now attending to these duties under the Superintendent, and in the spring a permanent official will be appointed

PRESENTATION.

On Saturday evening, August 1st, a supper of Strathcona Ladies called at Mrs. Sealin to bid her goodbye and wish her every success in her new home. After a few hours spent in music and conversation, the following address was read:—

Dear Mrs. Sealin,—It was with deep regret that we learned of your intended removal from Strathcona to Napanee. We have been among the few who have endeavored to show by your personal acts of kindness, as well as by the cordial support you have given Christian work done in the village. We have thought it fitting to present you with something which will convey to you not only our regret at the separation but also our best wishes for every prosperity in your future home.

Signed on behalf of the ladies.

Mrs. N. Richmond, Mrs. H. Pitchett.
Mrs. J. Stinson, Mrs. G. Ostling.
Mrs. E. Perry, Mrs. Carmichael.

The ladies then presented Mrs. Sealin with a beautiful silver tea set and server. Mrs. Sealin was completely surprised, but tried to thank the ladies for their kindness. She will prize the lovely silver set would always be her memory the many friends and pleasant days she had spent among them. They then returned to the dining room, where they partook of dainty refreshments. All the guests enjoyed themselves most heartily and at a late hour bid Mrs. Sealin adieu. Mrs. Sealin goes on Tuesday to join her husband at Port Colborne.

PRINGLE—THOMPSON.

St. Mary's Journal.

A quiet wedding took place at 8.45 Wednesday, July 29th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Thompson, Bolton Street, West Ward, when their daughter, Miss Gertrude, was united in marriage with Mr. Herbert Pringle, B.A., of Victoria, B.C. The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her brother, R. A. Thompson, B.A., B.D., principal of Hamilton Collegiate Institute. She wore a gown of cream silk mull, trimmed in lace braid, over cream silk, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and roses. The Rev. J. B. N. McCamus officiated and Miss Myrtle Murray played the wedding march. The drawing room was beautifully decorated for the occasion with palms, smilax and ferns. After the marriage ceremony the wedding party, composed of only the near relatives of the young couple, sat down to a dainty wedding luncheon. Mr. and Mrs. Pringle left on the afternoon train for Toronto and Hamilton, where they will visit for a few days before leaving for their home at Victoria. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ira Pringle, Napanee; Mrs. F. A. Thompson, Victoria, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Pringle, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Thompson, of North Bay; Mr. R. A. Thompson, Hamilton; Dr. and Mrs. Thompson, Clinton; Miss Myrtle Murray, Toronto, and Miss Doris Murray, Belleville. The bride was the recipient of many handsome presents, and carries with her to her western home the good wishes of a host of friends in town and country.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A PECULIAR ACCIDENT

A peculiar accident happened on Dr. Coogan's farm, near Switzerville. They were repairing a shed and had it jacked up when one of the men observed the jack leaning, thought he would take an axe and with a couple of blows straighten it. He struck once when the jack flew out and striking him, knocked him over. The axe he had in his hand flew out and struck the tenant's little boy, Willie Grange, who was standing outside the building, about ten feet away. The axe struck the boy above the knee in the fleshy part of the leg. Dr. Berney dressed the wound, but it was thought best to take him on to Kingston hospital, where he is doing well, and no serious results will follow. Had the blow struck the knee, the injury might have been very serious.

CENTREVILLE FAIR.

The above Fall Fair will be held at Centreville on Saturday, Sept. 12th, and that it will be a success is assured fact, as the officers are having nothing undone to make this annual event a little better than the previous one if possible. Wagar, President, best single turnout driven by a lady, $3.00; by Northern Crown Bank, Enterprise, silver cup for best cheese made and exhibited by manufacturer; by F. W. CRUISE OF THE DOLPHIN.

The Dolphin arrived in port at 7.30 a.m. on Monday morning, from Chaumont. In the run down the lake from Hamilton to Chaumont the Bridge Cup race, with the crack racers of both sides of the lake, she made a very creditable showing, not being left out in any way for a rarer. She crossed the finish line in twelfth position, just ahead of the four yachts which followed after. The skipper is quite satisfied with the little piece of hunting in the shape of a prize flat, which he won. The race was uneventful except for the fact that it was the first night came the yachtsmen were taking their last line on their opponents as they were all separated until within about 10 miles of the finish, when they began to assemble again.

On the run up the lake the Dolphin encountered a severe thunder and rain squall off Toronto, but as it was too dark to risk making the harbour in the gale, the skipper put her out to the lake and fought it out in fine shape clew reefed, and made Port Hope at 4 o'clock in the morning of the 11th.

The Dolphin left Napanee wharf with M. H. Mills and his two sons and Wm. Vanhalstine, and picked up at Port Hope Mr. Harrison, of Hooper's Drug Store. At this point Mr. Vanhalstine found that he was too ill to continue the trip, and returned to Napanee on the train. Although left with only his son George to relieve him at the wheel, Capt. Mills decided to make for Hamilton and run the race from there to Chaumont, as they had set out to do, which they accomplished as already stated, being very heavily handicapped for lack of help and sleep.

The Dolphin made a host of friends in both Hamilton and at Chaumont, and proved herself to be fully up to her builder's expectations, as on every second over a triangle course of 7 12 miles, Dolphin's yacht the Tantrum, which got first prize in her class by 2 seconds.

The Dolphin left port again at 4 o'clock Monday with Frederic Grout and family, of Cleveland, for their annual cruise down the Bay of Quinte. They will take in all the points of interest from Belleville to Kingston, and expect to be off about 10 days.

Dr. Rosa Thomas, of London, Ont., is the only lady down for the Lake Ontario Race with his friend, Mr. Wm. Harris, of Hamilton, as the Dolphin, and says he had the time of his life.

IMPROVED machinery will not, of itself, produce good flour.

You may be an excellent cook, but you cannot produce light, wholesome baking unless the flour you use be the kind that permits such results.

So in the milling, machinery alone cannot produce

Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour is made from hard spring wheat—a wheat that is rich in nutriment, that grinds fine and white, and produces bread and pastry that are wholesome and nourishing as well as light and crisp—it's a flour that begins to be good in the wheat fields, not in the mills.

A LOOK AT THE DIARY.

Which Was Written by George Cliff.

The City Surveyor and City Hall Clerk of Works—It Gives Minute Details of the Specifications of the Building.

Kingston Whig, Aug. 8th.

The burning of the dome of the city hall recently has recalled many interesting events of the time of its erection in 1843-44. From a diary wonderfully well preserved and beautifully kept by George Cliff, grandfather of George A. Cliff, Napanee, can be found the specifications of the interior work of the city hall and market house.

The diary starts with the following heading: "Specifications of Artisan work required to be done in erecting, finishing and completing a city hall and market house in the market square, Kingston, for his worship the mayor, aldermen and council according to plans, elevations, etc., designed and drawn by the undersigned architect, George Browne.

The work is minutely described and the material of every instance to be of the best quality. The coin of the realm was computed in N. S. D.

An article printed in The Whig of the present date, not being present at the time of the building of the city hall, but Mr. Cliff's diary specimens of good work done and how was to be finished. The diary contains about thirty pages closely written, descriptive of the interior work on the city hall.

The diary is dated February 1843, and is quite interesting to read. The writer, George Cliff, was at the time city surveyor and to some of the extent he appends his name as part of works. The book also contains specifications of work done for illuminations, whose names are associated with Kingston's honored and departed citizens, such as John Counsell, John Ashley, Thomas Rankin, Benjamin Wallace, Sheriff Cartwright, Thomas C. Pidgeon, James Shanly, Thomas Kirkpatrick, William Hamilton Merritt, Samuel Anglin, John Macdonald, William Dillon and others.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your home. If you have a cough, a simple cold may—and probably will—get beyond the reach of ordinary household remedies. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—think of it—Congress says "Put it on the label!" Congress has finally decided that the people, the mothers and fathers, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Don't accept substitutes. Dr. Shoop perhaps with others and none the otherwise. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALDNESS.

The Fatal Germ and Its Remedy Now Facts of Science.

It is the rarest thing in the world for a man to be necessarily bald. No man need be bald if his hair is dead at the roots, need be bald if he will use Newbro's Herpicide, the new scalp antiseptic. Herpicide destroys the germ that eats the hair off at the root; and cleans the scalp of dandruff and leaves it in a perfectly healthy condition. Mr. Mannett, in the Mansfield Block, Butte, Mont., was entirely bald. In less than a month Herpicide had removed the enemies of hair growth, and nature did its work by covering his head with thick hair an inch long and in a few weeks he had a normal coat of hair. THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

Copyright, 1906, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

"Delightful," he said ironically, "but in my judgment wholly utopian and impracticable. It's nothing but a gigantic pipe dream. It won't come in this generation, nor in ten generations, if, indeed, it is ever taken seriously by a majority big enough to put its theories to the test. Socialism does not take into account two great factors that move the world—men's passions and human ambition. If you eliminate ambition you remove the strongest incentive to individual effort. From your own account a socialistic world would be a dismal place to live in—everybody depressingly good, without any of the feverish turmoil of life as we know it. Such a condition would not appeal to me at all. I love the fray, the daily battle of rain and loss, the excitement of making or losing millions—that is my life."

"Yet what good is your money to you?" insisted Shirley. "You are able to spend but a small fraction part of it. You cannot even give it away, for nobody will have any of it."

"Money!" he said, bitterer than spoke. "I hate money. It means nothing to me. I have so much that I have lost all idea of its value. I go on accumulating it for only one purpose. It buys power. I love power—that is my passion, my ambition, to rule the world with my gold. Do you know," he went on, leaning over the desk in a dramatic attitude, "that if I chose I could start a panic in Wall street tomorrow that would shake to their foundations every financial institution in the country? Do you know that I practically control the congress of the United States and that by legislative means I becomes law unless it has my approval?"

"The public has long suspected as much," replied Shirley. "That is why you are looked upon as a menace to the stability and honesty of our political and commercial life."

An angry answer rose to his lips when the door opened and Mrs. Ryder entered.

"I've been looking for you, John," she said peevishly. "Mr. Bagley told me you were somewhere in the house. Senator Roberts is downstairs."

"Good evening, Jefferson and his daughter, I suppose," muttered Ryder. Well, I'll see him. Where is he?"

"In the library. Kate came with him. She's in my room."

They left Shirley in her writing, and when he had closed the door the financier turned to his wife and said impatiently:

"Now, what are we going to do about Jefferson and Kate? The senator insists on the matter of their marriage being settled one way or another. Where is Jefferson?"

"He came in about half an hour ago. He was anxious to see me, and I thought he was looking for you," answered the wife.

"Well," replied Ryder determinedly, "he and I have got to understand each other. This can't go on. It shan't—"

Mrs. Ryder put her hand on his arm and said pleadingly:

"Don't be impatient with the boy, John. Remember he's all we have. He is so unhappy. He wants to please us, but"—

"But he insists on pleasing himself," said Ryder completing the sentence.

"I'm afraid, John, that his liking for that Miss Rossmore is more serious than you realize"—

The financier stamped his foot and replied angrily:

"Rossmore! That name seems to confront me at every turn—for years my father, now the daughter! I'm sorry, my dear," he went on more calmly, "that you seem inclined to listen to Jefferson. It only encourages him in his attitude toward me. Kate would make him an excellent wife, while what do we know about the other woman? Are you willing to sacrifice your son's future to a mere boyish whim?"

Mrs. Ryder sighed.

"It's very hard," she said, "for a mother to know what to advise. Miss Green says"—

"What?" exclaimed her husband, "you have consulted Miss Green on the subject?"

"Yes," answered his wife, "I don't know how I came to tell her, but I did. I seem to tell her everything. I find her such a comfort, John. I haven't had an attack of nerves since that girl has been in the house."

"She is certainly a superior woman," admitted Ryder. "I don't think we want that Rossmore girl off. I wish she"—He stopped abruptly as if not venturing to give expression to his thoughts even to his wife. Then he said: "If she were Kate Roberts she wouldn't let Jeff slip through her fingers."

"I have often wished," went on Mrs. Ryder, "that Kate were more like Shirley Green. I don't think we would have any difficulty with Jeff then."

EMERGENCY DANGER

WHEN A HARSH CATARRHAL COLD FASTENS ON THE BREATHING ORGANS A LIFE IS THREATENED.

There are times when a Hyomei outfit is worth a fortune and have often said would save a life, no safer precaution can be suggested than calling at T. B. Wallace's drug store and getting a supply for use in following cases.

When a child shows the first sign of croup a breath of Hyomei through the inhaler will check the trouble perhaps entirely.

When through catching cold you seem to be choking up, difficulty to breathe, pain or soreness over the lungs and other symptoms of pneumonia, the instant relief from Hyomei air is marvelous.

It penetrates quickly to the inner recesses of the bronchial tubes and lungs where no liquid or moist medicine can reach.

When an asthmatic condition presents unusual wheezing and oppressed breathing, Hyomei will bring rest, complete outfit, $1.00.

in the library."

"Yes; I want to see him," answered the young man grimly, and after a few moments' more badinage with Kate he left the room.

It was not a mere coincidence that had brought Senator Roberts and his daughter and the financier's son all together under the Ryder roof at the same time. It was part of Jefferson's well prepared plan to expose the rascality of his father's secretary and at the same time to end forever all of the embarrassing entanglement with Kate Roberts. If the senator were confronted publicly with the fact that his daughter, while keeping up the fiction of being engaged to Ryder junior, was really preparing to run off with the Hon. Fitzroy Bagley, he would have no alternative but to retire gracefully under the circumstances or run off with the Ryder. The critical moment had arrived. Tomorrow, Wednesday, was the day fixed for the elopement. The secretary's little game had gone far enough. The time had come for action. So Jefferson had written to Senator Roberts, who was in Washington, asking him if it would be convenient for him to come at once to New York and meet himself and his father on a matter of importance. The senator thus orally jumped to the conclusion that Jefferson and Ryder had reached an amicable understanding, and he immediately hurried to New York and, with his daughter, came round to Seventy-fourth street.

When Ryder senior entered the library, Senator Roberts was striding moodily up and down the room. From his face, it was an important day. The ambition of his life seemed on the point of being attained.

"Hello, Roberts," was Ryder's cheerful greeting. "What's brought you from Washington at a critical time like this? The Rossmore impeachment needs every friend we have."

"Just as if you didn't know," smiled the senator uneasily, "that I am here by appointment to meet you and your son."

"To meet me and my son?" echoed Ryder, astonished.

The senator, perplexed and beginning to feel real alarm, showed the financier Jefferson's letter.

Ryder read it, and he looked pleased.

"That's all right," he said, "if the lad asked you to meet us here it can mean only one thing—that at last he has come round to his mind to this marriage."

"That's what I thought," replied the senator, breathing more freely. "I wrote to him from Washington at such a time, but I'm a father, and Kate is more to me than the Rossmore impeachment. Besides, to see her married to your son Jefferson is one of the dearest wishes of my life."

"You can rest easy," said Ryder. "That is practically settled. Jefferson's sending for you proves that he is now ready to meet my wishes. He'll be here any minute. How is the Rossmore case progressing?"

"Not so well as it might," growled the senator. "There's a lot of mandlin sympathy for the judge. He's a pretty sick man by all accounts, and the newspapers seem to be taking his part. One or two of the western senators are talking corporate influence and trust legislation, but when it comes to a vote the matter will be settled on party lines."

"That means that Judge Rossmore will be removed?" demanded Ryder sternly.

"Yes, with five votes to spare," answered the senator.

"That's not enough," insisted Ryder. "There must be at least twenty. Let there be no blunders, Roberts. The man is a menace to all the big commercial interests. This thing must go through."

The door opened, and Jefferson appeared. On seeing the senator talking with his father, he hesitated on the threshold.

"Come in, Jeff," said his father pleasantly. "You expected to see Senator Roberts, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir. How do you do, senator?" said the young man, advancing into the room.

"I got your letter, my boy, and here I am," said the senator, smiling affably. "I suppose you've come to your mind regarding this marriage."

Jefferson let his father finish his speech, and then he said calmly:

"I think there must be some misapprehension as to the reason for my communication to you from Washington, New York. It had nothing to do with my marrying Miss Roberts, but to prevent her marriage to some one else."

"What!" exclaimed Ryder senior.

"Marriage with some one else!" echoed the senator. He looked as he had not heard aright, yet at the same time he had grave misgivings. "What do you mean, sir?"

Taking from his pocket a copy of the letter he had picked up on the staircase, Jefferson held it out to the girl's father.

"Your daughter is preparing to run away with my father's secretary. To-morrow would have been too late. That is why I summoned you. Read this."

The senator took the letter and as he read his face grew ashen and his hand trembled violently. At one blow all his ambitious projects for his daughter had been swept away. The handsome secretary, the carefully laid plans of a lifetime. The only consolation which remained was that the calamity might be averted before serious harm was done. This timely warning had saved his family from perhaps an even greater scandal. He passed the letter in silence to Ryder senior.

The financier was a man of few words when the situation called for prompt action. After he had read the letter through there was an ominous silence. Then he rang a bell. The butler appeared.

"Tell Mr. Bagley I want him."

The man bowed and disappeared.

"Who the devil is this Bagley?" demanded the senator.

"Bagley has blood—no money," was Ryder's laconic answer.

"That's the only kind we seem to get over here," growled the senator. "They furnish the money; they furnish the blood. Hang his blue blood! I don't want him in mine." Turning to Jefferson, he said: "Jefferson, whatever the motives that actuated you, I can only thank you for this warning. I think it would have broken my heart if my girl had gone away with that adventurer. Of course, under the circumstances I must abandon all idea of your becoming my son-in-law. I release you from all obligations you may have felt yourself bound by."

Jefferson bowed and remained silent. Ryder senior eyed his son closely, an amused expression hovering on his face. After all, it was not so much he who had desired this match as Roberts, and as long as the senator was willing to withdraw he could make no objection. He wondered what part, if any, his son had played in bringing about this sensational denouement to a match which had been so distasteful to him, and it gratified his paternal vanity to think that Jefferson after all might be smarter than he had given him credit for.

At this juncture Mr. Bagley entered the room. He was a little taken aback on seeing the senator; but, his most men of his class, his self conceit made him confident of his ability to handle any emergency which might arise, and he had no reason to suspect that this hasty summons to the library had anything to do with his matrimonial plans.

"Did you ask for me, sir?" he demanded, addressing his employer.

"Yes, Mr. Bagley," replied Ryder, fixing the secretary with a look that filled the latter with misgivings. "What steamers leave tomorrow for England?"

"Tomorrow?" echoed Mr. Bagley. "I said tomorrow," repeated Ryder, slightly raising his voice.

"Let me see," stammered the secretary. "There is the White Star, the North German Lloyd, the Atlantic Transport"—

"Have you any preference?" inquired the financier.

"No, sir, none at all."

"Then you'll go on board one of the ships tonight," said Ryder. "Your things will be packed and sent to you before the steamer sails tomorrow."

The Hon. Fitzroy Bagley, third son of a British peer, did not understand even yet that he was discharged as one dismisses a housemaid caught kissing the policeman. He could not think what Mr. Ryder wanted him to go abroad for unless it were on some matter of business, and it was decidedly inconvenient for him to sail at this time.

"But, sir," he stammered, "I'm afraid I'm afraid"—

"Yes," rejoined Ryder promptly, "I notice that—your hand is shaking."

"I mean that I"—

"You mean that you have other engagements?" said Ryder sternly.

"Oh, no—no, but"—

"No engagement at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning?" insisted Ryder.

"With my daughter?" chimed in the senator.

Mr. Bagley now understood. He broke out in a cold perspiration, and he paled visibly. In the hope that the full extent of his plans were not known, he attempted to bluster.

"No, certainly not, under no circumstances," he said.

Ryder senior rang a bell.

"Perhaps she has an engagement with you. We'll ask her." To the butler, who entered, he said, "Tell Miss Roberts that her father would like to see her here."

The man disappeared, and the senator took a hand in cross examining the now thoroughly uncomfortable secretary.

"So you thought my daughter looked pale and that a little excursion to Buffalo would be a good thing for her?

YOUR SKIN IN SUMMER

FACTS FOR OUR WOMEN FOLK!

When you find your skin rough, red and patchy, or dry, scaly and coarse, with sore and inflamed spots here and there, remember there is a reason. There are 2,000 pores on one square inch of that same skin of yours, and these contain secrets of life-long, all provided to clear away harmful and waste excretions, but which get out of order when the skin is unhealthy. The value of Zam-Buk lies in the fact that its herbal essences and juices can be absorbed by these minuscule "Skin Mouths."

Applied to a rough or inflamed patch, cut, bruise, boil, or eczema, Zam-Buk first lubricates, soothes the hot surface, then heals. That is why children like Zam-Buk. It stops pain so quickly. Applied to eczema, ulcers, and festering sores, Zam-Buk first kills the disease germs which cause suppuration and inflammation. Then it builds up fresh tissue.

In this way an eczema patch, ulcer, abscess, ringworm or open sore is removed completely by Zam-Buk, and a cure is soon healed.

For insect stings, sore feet, bruises, cuts, piles, ulcerations, abscesses, blood poison, chronic sores, and for piles, Zam-Buk is without equal. Fifty cents a box at all stores and druggists, or from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Three boxes for dollar twenty-five. This offer is for family use.

NAPANEE CONVALESCENTS REED VISOL

It Hastens Recovery By Creating Strength

There is just one thing the matter with a person who has been sick—that is, weakness.

To all such people in Napanee we recommend cod liver oil and iron preparation. Visol, as the very best strength creator we have ever sold in our store.

Visol strengthens the digestive organs, creates an appetite, promotes good sleep, makes rich, red blood, and builds up a depleted system to health and vigor.

This is because Visol contains in a highly concentrated form all of the medicinal and strength creating elements of cod liver oil, actually taken from fresh cods' livers, with the useless, nauseating oil eliminated and tonic iron added.

We return money to those who try Visol and receive no benefit. T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ont.

"Did you want to see me, father?" she inquired boldly.

"Yes, Kate," answered the senator gravely, "we have just been having a talk with Mr. Bagley, in which you were one of the subjects of conversation. Can you guess what it was?"

The girl looked from her father to Bagley and from him to the Ryders. Her aristocratic lover made a movement forward as if to exculpate himself, but he caught Ryder's eye and remained where he was.

"Well?" she said, with a nervous laugh.

"Is it true?" asked the senator, "that you were about to marry this man secretly?"

She cast down her eyes and answered:

"I suppose you know everything."

"Have you anything to add?" asked her father sternly.

"No," said Kate, shaking her head. "It's true. We intended to run away. Didn't we, Fitz?"

"Never mind about Mr. Bagley," thundered her father. "Haven't you a word of shame for this disgrace you have brought upon me?"

"Oh, papa, don't be so cross. Jefferson did not care for me. I couldn't be an old maid. Mr. Bagley has a lovely castle in England, and one day he will be the house of lords. He'll explain everything to you."

"He'll explain nothing," rejoined the senator grimly. "Mr. Bagley returns to England tonight. He won't have time to explain anything."

"Returns to England?" echoed Kate, dismayed.

"Yes, and you go with me to Washington at once."

The senator turned to Ryder.

"Goodby, Ryder. The little domestic comedy is ended. I'm grateful it didn't turn out a drama. The next time I pick out a son-in-law I hope I'll have better luck."

He shook hands with Jefferson and left the room, followed by his crestfallen daughter.

Jefferson, who had gone to write something at his desk, strode over to where Mr. Bagley was standing and handed him a check.

"Here, sir. This settles everything to date. Good day."

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALDNESS.

The Fatal Germ and Its Remedy Now Facts of Science.

It is the rarest thing in the world for a man to be necessarily bald. No man or woman whose hair is not dead at the roots need be bald if he will use Newbro's Herpicide, the new scalp antiseptic. Herpicide destroys the germ that cuts the hair off at the root, and cleans the scalp of dandruff and leaves it in a perfectly healthy condition. Mr. Mannett, in the Maryland Block, Butte, Mont., was entirely bald. In less than a month Herpicide had removed the enemies of hair growth, and nature did its work by covering his head with thick hair an inch long and in six weeks he had a normal suit of hair. "Delightful," he said ironically, "but in my judgment it is very stupid and impracticable. It's nothing but a gigantic pipe dream. It won't come in this generation, nor in ten generations, if, indeed, it is ever taken seriously by a majority big enough to put its theories to the test. Socialism does not take into account two great factors that move the world—men's passions and human ambition. If you eliminate ambition you remove the strongest incentive to individual effort. From your own account a socialistic world would be a dreadfully tame place to live in—everybody dispassionately good, without fear of the feverish turmoil of life as we know it. Such a world would not appeal to me at all. I love the fray, the excitement of making or losing millions. That is my life!"

"Yet what good is your money to you?" insisted Shirley. "You are able to spend only an infinitesimal part of it. You cannot even give it away, for nobody will accept it."

"Money!" he hissed rather than spoke. "I hate money. It means nothing to me. I have so much that I have lost all idea of its value. I go on accumulating it for only one purpose. It buys power. I have power—that is my passion, my ambition, to rule the world with my gold. Do you know," he went on, leaning over the desk in a dramatic attitude, "that if I chose I could start a panic in Wall street tomorrow that would shake to their foundations every financial institution in the country? Do you know that I practically control the finances of the United States and that no legislative measure becomes law unless it has my approval?"

The public has long suspected as much," replied Shirley. "That is why you are looked upon as a menace to the stability and honesty of our political and commercial life."

An angry answer rose to his lips, when the door opened and Mrs. Ryder entered.

"I've been looking for you, John," she said peerishly. "Mr. Bagley told me you were somewhere in the house. Senator Roberts is downstairs."

"He's come about Jefferson and his daughter, I suppose," muttered Ryder. "Well, I'll see him. Where is he?"

"In the library. Kate came with him. She's in the room."

They left Shirley to her writing, and when he had closed the door the financier turned to his wife and said impatiently:

"Now, what are we going to do about Jefferson and Kate? The senator insists on the matter of their marriage being settled one way or another. Where is Jefferson?"

"He came in about half an hour ago. He was upstairs to see me, and I thought he was looking for you," answered the wife.

"Well," replied Ryder determinedly, "he and I have got to understand each other. This can't go on. It shan't."

Mrs. Ryder put her hand on his arm and said pleadingly:

"Don't be impatient with the boy, John. Remember he is all we have. He is so unhappy. He wants to please us, but"—

"But he insists on pleasing himself," said Ryder completing the sentence.

"I'm afraid, John, that his liking for that Miss Rossmore is more serious than you realize"—

The financier stamped his foot and replied angrily:

"Rossmore! What name seems to confront me at every turn—for years the father, now the daughter! I'm sorry, my dear, to have went on more quietly, when you seem inclined to take to Jefferson. It only encourages him in his attitude toward me. Kate would make him an excellent wife, while what do we know about the other woman? Are you willing to sacrifice your son's future to a mere boy-ish whim?"

Mrs. Ryder sighed.

"It's very hard," she said, "for a mother to know what to advise. Miss Green says"—

"What's" exclaimed her husband, "you have consulted Miss Green on the subject?"

"Yes," answered his wife, "I don't know how I came to tell her, but I did. I seem to tell her everything. I find her such a comfort, John. I haven't had an attack of nerves since that girl has been in the house."

"She is certainly a wonder woman," admitted Ryder. "I wish she'd warn that Rossmore girl off. I wish she"—

He stopped as he caught sight of Kate coming to give expression to his thoughts, even to his wife. Then he said: "If you were Kate Roberts she wouldn't let Jeff slip through her fingers."

"I have often wished," went on Mrs. Ryder, "that Kate were more like Shirley Green. I don't think we would have any difficulty with Jeff then."

Kate is the daughter of Senator Roberts, and if this marriage is broken off in any way without the senator's consent, he is in a position to injure my interests materially. If you see Jefferson, send him to me in the library. I'll go and keep Roberts in good humor until he comes."

He went downstairs, and Mrs. Ryder proceeded to her apartments, where she found Jefferson chatting with Kate. She at once delivered Ryder senior's message.

"Jeff, your father wants to see you in the library."

"Yes; I want to see him," answered the young man grimly, and after a few moments' more badinage with Kate he left the room.

It was not a mere coincidence that had brought Senator Roberts and his daughter and the financier's son all together under the Ryder roof at the same time. It was part of Jefferson's well prepared plan to expose the rascality of his father's character, and at the same time rid himself of the embarrassing entanglement with Kate Roberts. If the senator were confronted publicly with the fact that his daughter, while keeping up the fiction of being engaged to Ryder junior, was really preparing to run off with the Hon. Fitzroy Bagley, he would have no alternative but to retire peacefully under fire and relinquish all idea of a marriage alliance with the house of Ryder. The critical moment had arrived. Tomorrow, Wednesday, was the day fixed for the elopement. The secretary's little game had gone far enough. The time had come for action. So Jefferson had written to Senator Roberts, who was in Washington, asking him if it would be convenient for him to come at once to New York and meet himself and his father on a matter of importance. The senator naturally jumped to the conclusion that Jefferson and Ryder had come to an amicable understanding, and he immediately hurried to New York and, with his daughter, came round to Seventy-fourth street.

When Ryder senior entered the library, Senator Roberts was striding nervously up and down the room. This, he felt, was an important day. The ambition, if not the passion of his life seemed on the point of being attained.

"Hello, Roberts," was Ryder's cheerful greeting. "When have you come from Washington at a critical time like this? The Rossmore impeachment needs every friend we have."

"Just as if you didn't know," smiled the senator uneasily, "that I am here by appointment to meet you and your son!"

"To meet me and my son?" echoed Ryder, astonished.

The senator, perplexed and beginning to feel real alarm, showed the financier Jefferson's letter. Ryder read it, and he looked pleased.

"That's all right," he said, "if the lad asked you to meet us here it can mean only one thing—that at last he has made up his mind to this marriage."

"But what I thought," replied the senator, breathing more freely. "I was sorry to leave Washington at such a time, but I'm a father, and Kate is more to me than the Rossmore impeachment. Besides, to see her married to your son Jefferson is one of the dearest wishes of my life."

"You can rest easy," said Ryder. "That is practically settled. Jefferson's sending for you proves that he is now ready to meet my wishes. He'll be here any minute. How is the Rossmore case progressing?"

"Not so well as it might," growled the senator. "There's a lot of maudlin sympathy for the judge. He's a pretty sick man by all accounts, and the newspapers appear to be taking his part. One or two of the western senators are talking corporate influence and trust domination, but when it comes to a vote the matter will be settled on party lines."

"That means that Judge Rossmore will be removed?" demanded Ryder sternly.

"Yes, with five votes to spare," answered the senator.

"That's not enough," instead Ryder. "There must be at least twenty. If there be no blunders, Roberts. The man is a menace to all the big commercial interests. This thing must go through."

The door opened, and Jefferson appeared. On seeing the senator talking with his father, he hesitated on the threshold.

"Come in, Jeff," said his father pleasantly. "You expected to see Senator Roberts, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir. How do you do, senator?" said the young man, advancing into the room.

"I got your letter, my boy, and here I am," said the senator, smiling affably. "I suppose we can guess what the letter contained?"

"That he's going to marry Kate, of course," chimed in Ryder senior. "Jeff, my lad, I'm glad you've come round to see my way of looking at things. You're doing more to please me lately, and I appreciate it. You stayed at home when I asked you to, and now you've made up your mind regarding this matter."

Jefferson let his father finish his speech, and then he said calmly:

"I think there must be some misapprehension as to the reason for my summoning Senator Roberts to New York. He had nothing to do with my marrying Miss Roberts, but to prevent her marriage with some one else."

"What!" exclaimed Ryder senior.

"Marriage with some one else!" echoed the senator. He thought he had not heard right, yet at the same time he had grave misgivings. "What do you mean, sir?"

Taking from his pocket a copy of the letter he had picked up on the staircase, Jefferson held it out to the girl's

The English aristocrat began to wilt. His assurance of manner quite deserted him, and he stammered pitifully as he floundered about in excuses.

"Not with me—no, no," he said. "You never proposed to run away with my daughter?" cried the irate father.

"Run away with her?" stammered Bagley.

CHAPTER XV.

It was now December, and the senate had been in session for over a week. Jefferson had not forgotten his promise, and one day about two weeks after Mr. Bagley's spectacular departure from the Ryder residence, he had brought Shirley the two letters. She did not ask him how he got them. If he forced the drawer or procured the key. It sufficed for her that the precious letters, the absolute proof of her father's innocence, were at last in her possession. She at once sent them off by registered mail to Stockton, demanding acknowledged receipt and at the same time announced his departure for Washington that night. He promised to keep her constantly informed of what he was doing and how her father's case was going. It could, he thought, be only a matter of a few days now before the result of the proceedings would be known.

The approach of the crisis made Shirley exceedingly nervous, and it was only by the exercise of the greatest self control that she did not betray the terrible anxiety she felt. The Ryder biography was nearly finished, and her stay in Seventy-fourth street would soon come to an end. She had a secret talk with Jefferson, who could find no time to see a good deal of her, entirely unsuspected by his parents, for Mr. and Mrs. Ryder kept up no pretense to hide that their son had any more than a mere bowing acquaintance with the young authoress. It was clear that Mr. Bagley was no longer there to spy upon their actions these clandestine interviews had been comparatively easy. Shirley brought to bear all the arguments she could think of to convince Jefferson of the hopelessness of their engagement. She insisted that she could never be his wife; circumstances over which they had no control made that dream impossible. It were better, she said, to part now rather than incur the risk of being unhappy later. But Jefferson refused to be convinced. He argued and pleaded, and he uttered wild —strange, desperate words that Shirley had never heard before and which alarmed her not a little—and the discussion ended usually by a kiss which put Shirley completely hors de combat.

Meantime, Jefferson's mother increased worrying about his son. The removal of Kate Roberts as a factor in his future had quite overlooked the danger of Jefferson taking the bit between his teeth one day and contracting a secret marriage with the daughter of his enemy, and when he thought of the mere possibility of such a thing happening the unfortunate lady burst into tears. Jefferson was not the kind of a girl to allow any man to inveigle her into a secret marriage. The Rossmore, who judged the world's morals by his own, was not, of course, aware of this, and he worried himself about it, thinking what he could do to prevent his son from marrying the daughter of the man he was ruining.

The more he pondered over it the more he regretted that there was not some pretty girl in whom Jefferson could fall in love and marry. He need not seek a rich girl—there was certainly enough money in the Ryder family to provide for both. He wished they knew a girl, for example, as attractive and clever as Miss Green. Ah, the thought, there was a girl who would make a man of Jefferson—brainy, ambitious, active! And the more he thought of it the more the idea grew on him that Miss Green would be an ideal daughter-in-law and at the same time snatch his son from the clutches of the Rossmore woman.

Jefferson during all these weeks was growing more and more impatient. He knew that any day now Shirley might take her departure from their house and return to Massapequa. If the impeachment proceedings went against her father it was more than likely that he would lose her forever, and if, on the contrary, the judge were acquitted Shirley never would be willing to marry him without his father's consent, and this, he felt, he would never obtain. He resolved therefore to have a final interview with his father and declare boldly his intention of making Miss Rossmore his wife regardless of the consequences.

August time tells on the nerves. But that spiritless, no ambition feeling can be easily and quickly cured by taking what is known by druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Within 48 hours after beginning to use the Restorative, indigestion, biliousness, sick headache, dull feeling, will most positively leave. The first 48 hours will tell the story. The rest of the way you will realize and feel your strength and ambition as it is returning. Notable influences derive from the "nerve nerves" then the stomach, heart, and liver are soon usually felt. Strengthen the failing nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and how quickly health will be yours again. Sold by T. B Wallace. 324

The Best Flour.

Dafoe's Nonesuch,
Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flours in the market.

When buying flour, ask for them, and patronize your home mill, thereby producing bran and shorts that you can purchase cheaper than the product of the Western mills, which has to be transported those ...ands of miles at great expense, and usually ... as it reaches you in poor quality. ... the proper complaint if the farmer or the ... dealer does not keep it in stock, and ... for it as an article he can get at his home ...store just as good, but he does not hesitate to buy flour from mills hundreds of miles away, and sells you an inferior flour for more money than you can purchase the home product for, every bag of which is guaranteed.

Chelsea Cornmeal and Buckwheat Flour always on hand. Grinding a specialty, with the best feed mills known to the trade. A full stock of the best Anthracite Coal always in the market for the purchase of all kinds of grain.

—The Napanee baseball team were defeated at Kingston on Saturday, August 8th, by the Victorias. The score stood 8-5 in favor of Napanee at the beginning of the ninth innings. The language used by the spectators would have put to shame many a city that does not pretend to be so law-abiding as Kingston.

MAYOR'S LETTER.

Napanee, Aug. 20th, 1908.

A few days ago I was waited upon by a deputation from the citizens of Napanee with reference to the Scarlet fever which has existed in our town for a few months past. I have given the matter my personal attention, and after due investigation I find there are only sixteen homes in which the disease has existed, and which have come to the notice of The Board of Health, and none of the cases have proved fatal or very serious; that there have been no new cases reported since August 1st and that every precaution in reason has been taken to stamp out the disease. As the schools will reopen in a short time, I would request that the children of the homes where scarlet fever has existed absent themselves from school and other congregations until such time as their physician pronounces it perfectly safe for them to mingle with the public.

Who Gets the Most Out of Life?

Not the wealthiest, not the most learned, nor the idler—but the man who has good health and works for his living. This truth is trite, but not trivial.

Every man should guard his health as his most valuable possession. The more so because health is easier to retain than regain.

Keep your grip on health by regular exercise, reasonable care in eating and requisite sleep. Take Beecham's Pills occasionally, to tone the stomach and keep the liver and bowels in good working order. And don't worry.

Observe these simple rules and you will agree that the one who gets the most from life is

International Newspaper Bible Study Club

GOLD AND SILVER MEDALS, BIBLES, BOOKS.

Persons may join the Club at any time during the year, but must, of course, answer the 52 questions hereinafter published, to qualify for the prizes. It is, however, desirable that the questions be answered as the lessons are studied.

The International Newspaper Bible Study Club is for the purpose of promoting, in an unbiased way among the masses, a wider study of the Bible, the basal principles of which are the Golden Rule, which embraces Christianity. The Bible is not sectarian; all those who join a Local Club, and take up the simple course herein outlined, learning only ordained clergymen. We have the unqualified co-operation of the latter, but it is not considered fair to have them compete for the prizes. Sunday School teachers, Bible class scholars, and church-goers generally, may belong to this Bible Study Club, also non-churchgoers, of all shades of opinion, and all who are not at present entirely inclined to do so and to enter for the prizes.

The Beaver has secured the right to publish the International Sunday School Lesson questions by Rev. Dr. Linscott, which have aroused so much interest elsewhere, and they will be published. One of these questions each week is to be answered in writing, and the answers entered for the prizes to be awarded.

The Beaver is authorized to form a Local Newspaper Bible Study Club in readily accessible centres, and all who join and fulfil the conditions, that original work be performed shall be faithfully carried out.

CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST.

1. Each contestant, or his or her family, must be a subscriber to this paper, during the contest, or become such during the time. It is usually best mentioned in the International Newspaper Bible Study Club and the Local Club.

2. Each contestant in this Local Club must forward each of the written questions for 12 consecutive weeks, commencing for Sunday, August 2d, 1908, and the answers must all be in the possession of this paper within two weeks of the close of this period, which allows two weeks grace after the close of the contest.

3. Each question must be answered separately, and only on one side of the sheet of paper. No answer must exceed one hundred words in length and may be less. It will be a convenience if students will write their answers on letter paper, about 81 inches by 11 inches.

4. Each answer must have the name and address of the writer at the bottom of the answer, so it can be identified, given a number, and the name and the name re-ported to the examiner may know it by number only.

5. Students should be careful to understand the question before answering. To do this, the whole text must be read and especially the verse, or verses, upon which the question is based.

6. The answers from this Local Club must be delivered to this office, and they will be collated at the close of the contest, and forwarded to headquarters for independent examination by competent examiners. The prizes will then be awarded according to the highest number of marks, won by individuals in the International Newspaper Bible Study Club, and prizes which may be awarded to members of this Local Club will be given out from this office.

THE PRIZES.

First Series—A gold medal to each of the first ten contestants.

Second Series—A silver medal to each of the next ten contestants.

Third Series—Self-Pronouncing Bible, prize Illustrated Bible, prize $2.50, value $1.50.

Fourth Series—"The Inner Secret of Christianity," prize $1.50, value $1.00, and next thirty-five contestants.

Fifth Series—A developed mind, an expanded imagination, a richer experience and more profound knowledge of the Bible and of life, to all who take this course and win-ning any other prize or not.

Each medal will be suitably engraved, giving the name of the winner, and for what it is awarded, and on the reverse side the Bible and book will be inscribed.

All the prizes and many have ideas, are urged to take up these studies regardless of the prizes, as the information to be gained will be not valued from any standpoint, but from the point of view of the cogency of their reasoned ideas.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON BY REV. DR. LINSCOTT FOR THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL.

AUGUST 23d, 1908.

Friendship of David and Jonathan. (1 Sam. xx.)

Golden Text—A friend loveth at all times and a brother is born for adversity. (Prov. xvii. 17.)

What had David done to provoke the enmity of Saul?

In the first place, in three days, that a man's very goodness, coupled with success as in David's case, provokes enmity and jealousy, and so how do you account for it?

Is it not a remarkable fact that "blood is thicker than water?"

Is it often that two men, of no blood relation, form a confidential friendship and vote for each other, carrying the day by their votes?

What was the bond or affinity which drew David and Jonathan so close together? (See verses 17, 23, 42; Chap. xviii. 3.)

Was the love of David and Jonathan a purely human love, that is a love which is possible for all normal human beings?

Is it possible for spiritual souls to have friendship as existed between David and Jonathan, or is it necessarily a spiritual relationship?

Is such love and friendship as existed between David and Jonathan possible to two persons who are irreligious?

Was it possible for David and Jonathan to have loved another, as they loved each other?

Do such friendships as existed between David and Jonathan exist to-day in a way?

When an intimate friendship exists between a spiritual man and a married man, both of whom are of spotless character, should the wife of the married man have any reasonable reason for suspicion?

Is there a limit to all true friendship concerning the sexes?

Is every friendship formed in God, as stated of that of David and Jonathan?

Verse 17—Why was Jonathan so anxious for David to keep reminding him of his love for him?

Should we cultivate the habit of telling our intimate friends how much we think of them, or should we allow our actions to tell our love?

Was David's heart turning on the altar of friendship, if it is not fed by words, or deeds, or demonstrations?

Is this story of David and Jonathan for our deeper and intensely friendship?

What are the advantages or disadvantages of David and Jonathan's friendship?

What is the most God-like portion of a mother's love, the love of husband and wife, or pure sexless friendship? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the Club.)

Lesson for Sunday, Aug. 30th, 1908.—David Spares Saul's Life. (1 Sam. xxvi.

Business Girls Lose Strength

They Risk Health Rather Than Lose Employment and Eventually Break Down.

Thousands of earnest intelligent young women work to earn their livelihood away from home in public offices, and large business establishments are silent sufferers victims of overtaxed nerves and deficiency of strength. Weak, breathless and nervous they work against time with never a rest when headaches and backaches make every hour like a day. Little wonder their cheeks lose the tint of health and grow pale and thin; their eyes are dull and shrunken and lonely but surely fades. Business girls and women, because of their work and worry, look older than their years. What they seriously need is the frequent help of a true strengthening remedy to carry them through the day. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are like actual food to the starved nerves and tired brain of the business girl. By making rich, red blood they supply just the help that these girls need to preserve their health and their good looks. They bring bright eyes, high spirits and thus make the day's duties lighter.

Miss Alexandrine Bedard, a stenographer residing at St Hubert's Sta., Quebec, says:—"For the past couple of years I felt my constitution being gradually undermined through constant indoor work and the great tax on my nerves through the long tedious hours at my typewriter. But it was only some six months ago that my health came when one afternoon I lost consciousness through extreme weakness. The real seriousness of my condition was then pathetically apparent to me. I was confined to my home, hardly even the strength to walk about. I was attended by a doctor, but after being a considerable time on the sick list got no improvement. It was at this stage that one of my relatives read of the case of a young girl whose case bore a striking resemblance to my own by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I began the use of these Pills the next day, and to attribute my complete recovery entirely to them. I had not taken more than three boxes when I began to get better, and after taking the pills for about a month I felt as strong and well as ever I did at any period in my life."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50. from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Who Gets the Most Out of Life?

Not the wealthiest, not the most learned, nor the idler—but the man who has good health and works for his living. This truth is trite, but not trivial.

Every man should guard his health as his most valuable possession. The more so because health is easier to retain than regain.

Keep your grip on health by regular exercise, reasonable care in eating and requisite sleep. Take Beecham's Pills occasionally, to tone the stomach and keep the liver and bowels in good working order. And don't worry.

Observe these simple rules and you will agree that the one who gets the most from life is

AS OTHERS THINK.

EVERYONE IN NAPANEE HAS A RIGHT TO HIS OWN OPINION.

While everyone has a right to his own opinion, yet it is wise to always consider what others think and profit by it. Nothing makes life so unbearable, or interferes so widely with the usefulness of the average person, as indigestion, and it is well for us to give fair consideration to what others think about this remarkable affliction.

T. B. Wallace is positive that in Mother Seigel's Syrup he has an absolute cure for indigestion and the many disagreeable symptoms that follow this disease, such as dizziness after eating, coated tongue, bad taste in the mouth, dizziness, flatulence and nervousness.

He sells Mother Seigel's with satisfaction guaranteed or money back. He believes in it and so may you.

A Love Episode

When "CAPT. D'ARCY" on furlough was relieved
To "THE OLD FOLKS AT HOME"
he a visit conceived,
He was "LONGING FOR HOME," his dear home "NAPANEE"—
"IS MY SWEETHEART STILL TRUE TO ME?" soon I will see.
For a stroll he went out, I was so nice "IN THE GLOAMING"
Met sweet "ANNIE LAURIE" so winsively roaming,
"EVERY GIRL SHOULD HAVE A BEAU," she reflected
An old chum of "SCHOOLDAYS" was here unexpected.
Why linger? "IT'S LONESOME TONIGHT" said the spark,
She replied, "I'M AFRAID TO COME HOME IN THE DARK."
"THERE'S ONLY ONE SWEETHEART FOR ME" said he, slyly
And "ARE YOU SINCERE?" she then whispered so shyly,
"OH! PROMISE ME," Jack, you will always be true,
He said, steady "THE MOON HAS HIS EYES ON YOU."
She longed for "SWEET KISSES" he fumed and he raced
Said, the dear "MERRY WIDOW" and I are engaged.
There are "NO WEDDING BELLS" for you just now time,
T'will be "SOME OTHER DAY" when you hear their sweet chime.

MATRIMONIAL.

VINE—DONALDSON.

A very pretty house wedding occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Vine on Wednesday evening, when their daughter, Miss Helena Maud, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. J. Franklin Donaldson, of Peterboro', in the presence of about seventy-five relatives and friends of the contracting parties. At 8.30 p.m., to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by her cousin, Miss Ruby Sigsworth, of Hartington, the bride entered the room on her father's arm, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. W. H. Emsley. The bride was becomingly attired in white silk, as was also the bridesmaid, Miss Mabel Donaldson, sister of the groom. Mr. Stanley Embury, of Bellcville, performed the duties of best man. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold bracelet set with pearls and garnets, to the bridesmaid a pearl brooch, and to the groomsman a tie pin. The bride's travelling dress was a suit of brown. The happy couple left on the midnight train for Peterboro', where they will reside. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, showing the high esteem in which she was held. The heaver joins with their many friends in wishing the young couple health and prosperity.

DEATH OF MRS. DENNIS LUCAS.

Mrs. Dennis Lucas, who died on Saturday morning, August 8th, after a serious illness of only a few weeks. Her sudden death was a terrible shock to her many friends in this vicinity. She leaves a husband and four children, all grown up, to mourn the loss of a loving companion and mother. Mrs. Lucas was a woman of unusual intellectual power in her own home, always taking an interest in the welfare of her family and companion. She was the eldest daughter of the late Isaac Brown, her age being only 51 years, dying in the prime of life. Her firmly established Christian faith enabled her to meet death in the same calm and cheerful spirit that had upheld her in the trials of life. Her practical sense in every day affairs, her unswerving faith in God's guidance and her artistic nature were elements of character which cause her to be held in loving remembrance in the church and outside amongst neighbors and relatives. In religion she was a Methodist, belonging to Odessa church. Rev. Mr. McCall, of Napanee, spoke very highly of the deceased during his four years in Odessa circuit, and her pastor, Rev. Mr. McCannus, also spoke in glowing terms of her home and life in the church. She belonged to the Women's Missionary Society, also the C. O. C. F., both at Odessa. The funeral was held to Odessa on Monday afternoon and was largely attended. The remains were placed in Wilton vault. The bereaved husband and children have the sympathy of the entire community.

BASEBALL.

KINGSTON 11, NAPANEE 2.

The locals were defeated at the Driving Park on Wednesday afternoon by the Victorias, of Kingston, in a very closely played game of baseball. The balloon went up a little earlier than scheduled time and Kingston gathered in three runs in the first innings. One more was annexed in the second, and in the fifth and sixth they made three and four respectively.

Napanee scored one each in the third and ninth. Wood was not in his usual good form, being hit freely at all stages. But even at that the score would not have been so large had he been given any kind of support at all. Errors and loose fielding were in evidence at times, and the whole team seemed to be up in the air at times. Only in the same team that Napanee had the best of in Kingston on the 6th inst. to the tune of 9-5 until the ninth innings, when the crowd rushed on the field and interfered with the players.

The Victorias are Napanee's hoodoos, having beaten the locals three times this season.

Napanee has played ten games this season, winning six and losing four. Following is the score:

MATRIMONIAL.

VINE—DONALDSON.

A very pretty house wedding occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Vine on Wednesday evening, when their daughter, Miss Helena Maud, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. J. Franklin Donaldson, of Peterboro', in the presence of about seventy-five relatives and friends of the contracting parties. At 8.30 p.m., to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by her cousin, Miss Ruby Sizeworth, of Hartington, the bride entered the room on her father's arm, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. W. H. Emsley. The bride was becomingly attired in white lawn, as was also the bridesmaid, Miss Mabel Donaldson, sister of the groom. Mr. Stanley Embury, of Bellcville, performed the duties of best man. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold bracelet set with pearls and garnets, to the bridesmaid a pearl brooch, and to the groomsman a tie pin. The bride's travelling dress was a suit of brown. The happy couple left on the midnight train for Peterboro', where they will reside. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, showing the high esteem in which she was held. The Beaver joins with their many friends in wishing the young couple health and prosperity.

DEATH OF MRS. DENNIS LUCAS.

Mrs. Dennis Lucas, who died on Saturday morning, August 8th, after a serious illness of only a few weeks. Her sudden death was a terrible shock to her many friends in this vicinity. She leaves a husband and four children, all grown up, to mourn the loss of a loving companion and mother. Mrs. Lucas was a woman of unusual intellectual power in her own home, always taking an interest in the welfare of her family and companion. She was the eldest daughter of the late Isaac Brown, her age being only 51 years, dying in the prime of life. Her firmly established Christian faith enabled her to meet death in the same calm and cheerful spirit that had upheld her in the trials of life. Her practical sense in every day affairs, her unswerving faith in God's guidance and her artistic nature were elements of character which made her to be held in loving remembrance in the church and outside amongst neighbors and relatives. In religion she was a Methodist, belonging to Odessa church. Rev. Mr. McCall, of Napanee, spoke very highly of the deceased during his four years on Odessa circuit, and her pastor, Rev. Mr. McCamus, also spoke in glowing terms of her at her home and in the church. She belonged to the Women's Missionary Society, also the C. O. F., both at Odessa. The funeral was held at Odessa on Monday afternoon and was largely attended. The remains were placed in Wilton vault. The bereaved husband and children have the sympathy of the entire community.

BASEBALL.

KINGSTON 11, NAPANEE 2.

The locals were defeated at the Driving Park on Wednesday afternoon by the Victorias, of Kingston, in a very closely played game of baseball. The balloon went up a little earlier than scheduled time and Kingston gathered in three runs in the first innings, the more was annexed in the second, and in the fifth and sixth they made three and four respectively.

Napanee scored one each in the third and ninth. Wood was hit in his usual good form, being hit freely at all stages. But even at that they could not have been so large had he been given any kind of support at all. Errors and loose fielding were in evidence at all times, and the whole team seemed to be up in the air at times. This is the same team that Napanee had the best of in Kingston on the 8th inst. to the tune of 9-5 until the ninth innings, when the crowd rushed on the field and interfered with the players.

The Victorias are Napanee's hoodoos, having beaten the locals three times this season.

Napanee has played ten games this season, winning six and losing four.

Following is the score:

Charm of novelty, care in selection, harmony of colorings, quality and amplitude of assortment, are, each in turn, strong reasons for your interest in a fall display, which it is our pleasure to invite you to enjoy.

With the return of each recurring season the proverb "Madill's for Dress Goods," takes on added force and meaning. We have this fall the equal of our former displays so far as regards values, qualities, selectness, and we have an even greater variety. The almost infinite variety of shades, weaves, textures, weights and mixtures, possible with modern looms, has never been so satisfactorily demonstrated in Napanee before. Novelties exclusive to us are here by the score. Again we may say without fear of serious or sincere contradiction, Madill's Dress Goods are supreme."

BASEBALL.

On Saturday, Aug. 15th, the Shamrocks of Croydon drove over to Robin to meet the hunky nine of that place. The Croyden team are a newly organized bunch, and few expected to see them held the Black Knights down as well as they did. Had the Shamrocks put up the same article of ball in the first two innings as they did the remainder of the game, the result would have been different, and the Shamrocks would have gone back to the little village of Croydon, nestling on the banks of the old Salmon, with a win to their credit. Wm. Galbraith, the veteran second baseman, put up sensational game for Croydon, figuring in a couple of fast double plays. Robbin used two pitchers and Croydon three. Harold Galbraith, the little south paw, pitched three fine innings for Croydon, not a run being chalked down against him. Spencer and Bradshaw put up a star game for Robbin's Black Knights, stopping many hot liners, which looked good for the home. Robbin practically won the game in the opening innings piling up 7 runs, and in the second added 4 more. Then the Shamrocks settled down, and played their opponents off their feet, but could not overcome the big lead over them, the latter end of the 9th inning having stood, Robbin 16, Croydon 7. Mr. Alfred Sayles, of Croydon, umpired the game in a highly satisfactory manner, and a word of praise is made to the decisions, as umpire, and his decisions met with approval from both teams. The return ball game will be played at Robbin on Saturday, August 29th. The teams lined up as follows:

DEATH OF THOMAS FROST

An Old Editor, Author, Journalist and Chartist.

The grave has not closed over Thomas Frost, a tireless worker with his pen in various literary enterprises. For a time he conducted the Sheffield Evening Post, and he also edited a Barnsley paper. In his "Forty Years' Recollections and also in his Reminiscences of an Old Bibliomaniac, two really valuable volumes, he introduces some graphic pages on Weedgiding Life. Mr. Frost had been a leader writer for some metropolitan papers in Birmingham, Liverpool and other towns. He did hard work in London and was editor of the Magazine of Arts, Gentleman's Journal and other publications, and contributed latterly to the periodicals, wrote for Chambers' Papers for the People, and many other works, and his ready pen. Mr. Frost is most remembered by the reading public for his many books, which include Half Hours with Early Explorers, The Lives of Highwaymen, Curious Life and Curious Celebrities, Lives of the Conjurers, of the Lord Lyttleton and Secret Societies of European Revolutions. These books obtained much notice from the critical press. A pleasant and kindly vein was in Knot with Charles Dickens. He wrote guide books, etc., and contributed some important articles to the Bygone Series, edited by Mr. William Andrews, of Hull. He wrote for the stage, and relates some amusing stories of theatrical managers. Early in life Mr. Frost was a chartist and drafted some of its more important manifestoes. He was ever on the side of the people, and always declined to write in favor of the Tory cause, which he regarded as hopeless for the advancement of the people. Mr. Frost had a keen appreciation of the beauties, of nature, and in the neighborhood of our city he found much to admire and introduce into his literary work. He was genial and gifted and made many friends. He was born at Croydon in 1821, and died at Littlestone, Kent, on the 24th of July. He passed away peacefully in his sleep. Mr. Frost leaves a widow and two sons, Mr. Albert Frost, of Wales, and Rev. Arthur Frost, now in South Africa, both connected with the Anglican church. He also leaves two daughters, Mrs. Frith, of Napanee, and Mrs. Hale, of Toronto.—From the Sheffield Independent.

POTTED REVENGE.

When the social climber heard that her ultra fashionable rival was to give the swellest supper of the year her jealousy knew no bounds. The next day, however, she was smiling sweetly when they met.

"Revenge!" she whispered. "Revenge is sweet! When that supper comes off, there will not be a single guest present."

"Greatness!" gasped her maid. "What has madam done?"

"What have I done? Why, I have simply bribed the butler to tamper with the announcement and change 'potted plants' to 'potted hams.' And yet they say that women have no brains."

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

On Saturday evening, Aug. 15th, a few friends and associates gathered at the home of Mr. J. G. Rombough, and presented Mrs. E. Card with a handsome rocker, as a token of appreciation for her services as organist in the Methodist church for the past seven years. Following is the address:

Dear Mrs. Card,—We have gathered here to-night as your old friends and associates, to show you how gladly we would welcome you into our midst again. How sincerely our hearts go out in the best wishes for your future joy and happiness, but more especially as a kind remembrance to you, that our life among us has not been without esteem and your work without appreciation. Services such as yours have been, rendered as freely and unreservedly, cannot but fail to touch the heartfelt thankfulness of those who have been benefitted thereby, and to establish forever the ring of a noble example. For several years you were our organist, and your efforts in that capacity toward the best interest of our choir were untiring. Services such as yours are heath His love and care.

RESULTS OF CO-OPERATIVE EXPERIMENTS WITH AUTUMN SOWN CROPS.

Three hundred and seven farmers throughout Ontario conducted experiments in the autumn sowing of grain during the past year, results based on returns from seventy-three counties of the Province. Those experiments which furnished the most number of good reports of successful conduct, were certain ones in Norfolk, Wentworth, Grey and Halton. The experiments deserve much credit for the good work they have done for themselves and for the province generally. Average results of the carefully conducted co-operative experiments with autumn sown crops are here presented in a very concise form:

Fall Wheat.—Twelve varieties of winter wheat were distributed last autumn to those who obtained the highest number of standing varieties of their own farms. The following are the averages in yield of straw and grain per acre: Imperial Amber, 1.4 tons and 25.9 bus.; Abundance, 1.2 tons and 24.3 bus.; Dawson's Golden Chaff, 1.1 tons and 22.2 bus.

Noteworthy about the Imperial Amber give the greatest yield per acre in the co-operative experiments conducted in Ontario in the year 1907, but only second in point of popularity. Average results of the co-operative experiments in variety tests life among us has not been without esteem and your work without appreciation. Services such as yours have been, rendered as freely and unreservedly as ever the heart of man, the heartfelt thankfulness of those who have been benefitted thereby, and to which I forever bear witness as a noble example. For several years you were organist and your efforts in that capacity toward the best interest of our choir were unpressing—faithfulness to duty and zeal in its accomplishment seemed ever to be your watchwords. It is a realization of this, that we have met here to-night, and that you may have a visible proof that our appreciative remembrance of your efforts and co-workers in the choir, our best wishes for both you in your future life, and may the Father, who watches over us all, keep you best near His love and care.

Mrs. Card thanked the choir for their kindness. A few familiar hymns were sung and other music rendered, after which ice cream and cake were served.

CATARRH NOW CURABLE.

BUT NEVER BY MEDICINE SWALLOWED, SNUFFS, SPRAYS, OR DOUCHES.

Catarrh is not a blood disease and that is why it cannot be cured by any medicine taken into the stomach Catarrh is a local disease contracted from the germ-laden air you breathe inward. These germs fasten themselves in the tissue and air cells of the breathing organs, multiply by millions, cause sneezing, coughing, raising of mucus, discharge from the nose, difficulty in breathing, hoarseness, dryness and stoppage of the nose, tickling in the throat and other symptoms that can only be reached by the dry air principal of Hyomei.

It medicates the air you breathe with the curative properties of the Australian Eucalyptus Forests where catarrh is unknown.

The reason you get relief in a minute or two from Hyomei is because it destroys every catarrhal germ in the air you breathe, and its dry penetrating aroma will reach the innermost recesses of the air passages, killing millions of germs a minute. Their destruction means freedom for oppressed respiratory organs. T. H. Wallace sells Hyomei under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. Price, $1.00.

for co-operative experiments. The Dawson's Golden Chaff, was distributed for co-operative experiments throughout Ontario during the past twelve years, from 1897 to autumn of 1908, and which is probably grown more extensively in Ontario at the present time than all other varieties of grain combined. Experiments have been included for comparative tests since 1901. Oats.—Of the two varieties of winter oats distributed, 25 bus. each, Abundance and the Mammoth White stood first in average yield for a period of 12 years, each, and Abundance second, with 28.6 bushels per acre. Last year the Mammoth White surpassed the Common rye by an average of 6 bushels per acre throughout Ontario.

Fertilizers with Winter Wheat.—In this experiment the following fertilizers were applied in the spring of the year, for the past four years, and the average yield for the past five years as follows: Mixed Fertilizer, 2 cwt. Nitrate of Soda, 33.8 bus.; Nitrate of Potash, 33.5 bus.; Muriate of Potash, 33.5 bus.; Dissolved Bone Meal phosphate, 25.3 bus. The unfertilized land yielded an average of 22.4 bushels per acre. The Superphosphate was applied at the rate of 320 pounds and the Muriate of Potash and the Nitrate of Soda each 160 pounds per acre. The Mixed Fertilizer consisted of one-third the quantity of each of the other three fertilizers as mentioned. The usual cost of the fertilizer, as used by the experimentalists, is from $4 to $5 per acre.

Fodder Crops.—In each of five years, the seed of Hairy Vetches and of Winter Rye has been distributed throughout Ontario for co-operative experiments in testing these crops for fodder purposes. In the average of the five years' experiments, the Hairy Vetches produced slightly the largest yield of green fodder per acre, but in 1908 the largest yield was produced by the Winter Rye.

HELD AT WATERTOWN.

Edward Randall Taken in Charge—On a Charge of Attempting to Pass Fraudulent Money Order—Is Also Wanted at Strathcona.

Chief Graham, Napanee, went over to Watertown, N.Y., on Friday, to take in charge Edward Randall, who was arrested on a charge of passing a fraudulent express money order, made out on a Dominion Express company Bank for $20, on Max Solomon, a Watertown clothier.

The Watertown Standard, in referring to the case, states that Randall, who had a good bet, is supposed to have plenty of gas, and was recently employed in the Strathcona orchard of the Bay of Quinte railway, five miles from Napanee. The police are given to that Randall went to Mr. Solomon's store and purchased a suit of clothes on partnership terms. The money, it is alleged, the express order, and received some change back. Then he went away and Mr. Solomon deposited the order in the bank. Randall went to the Salvation Army barracks and, upon thinking the matter over was filled with remorse and confessed to the officers of the army. The police were notified and Randall gave himself up and also returned the suit of clothes to Mr. Solomon, settling the transaction with him and telling him of the bogus money order. When Randall reached the police station a pay envelope marked Bay of Quinte Railway Company was found on his person and also a book of blank forms for Dominion Express company. Several orders to the book have been filled out and he had been showing to whom they were made and for what amounts. These were in Randall's handwriting and it is not supposed that he filled out more than one, the last one for which he made out a blank.

The book he admitted he had no right to. He said that he left Strathcona last Sunday night with some money belonging to Lake and some other money taken from the office in which he worked. He then went to Kingston and from there to Cape Vincent, coming directly to Watertown.

Napanee, Aug. 25.—Edward Rendell, the Strathcona agent who absconded last week with Dominion Express orders and some funds belonging to the Bay of Quinte railway company, and who was apprehended in Watertown, has work and brought to Napanee on Saturday, by Chief Graham, was up before Magistrate Rankin, on Monday, and pleaded guilty on both charges. He was sentenced to six months in the Central Prison. His counsel asked the magistrate to give him a long sentence, so that on taking up the case into consideration, that he had confessed the theft and was willing to come back and had given the paid for clothes that he had purchased with the forged money order back, the magistrate was inclined to be lenient. The young man has no relatives in this country.

AN ELECTION THIS FALL

The announcement that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is to undertake a tour of Ontario in the second half of September for the purpose of delivering a series of political addresses may be taken as conclusive proof that a Dominion election will take place this fall. It is probable the Ontario tour will be followed by a few meetings in the West, and this again by a series in Quebec. If this program is carried out the second half of September and nearly the whole of October will be occupied in an oratorical campaign. This will bring polling day late in October or early in November.

That is how it looks now—a September-October campaign with voting at the end of the latter month, and the first session of the new Parliament at the usual time in November.

For what is impending independent electors should prepare themselves, to the end that they may have their due influence in shaping the course of legislation in the new Parliament.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn and Indigestion as real diseases. They are symptoms only of a certain specific form of disease—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop to originate his famous Restorative, known to thousands as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that nerve aid to favor Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that optional and highly vital principle, no such assistance to digestion were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend it.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

A Story of American Life Revealing Startling Facts Dug by ARTHUR HORNBLOW.

Copyright, 1906, by C. W. Dillingham Company.

The opportunity came one evening after dinner. Ryder senior was sitting alone in the library reading; Mrs. Ryder had gone to the theater with a friend; Shirley, as usual, was writing in her room, giving the final touches to her now completed "History of the Empire Trading Company." Jefferson took the bull by the horns and boldly accosted his redoubtable parent.

"May I have a few minutes of your time, father?"

Ryder senior laid aside the paper he was reading and looked up. It was unusual for his son to come to him on any errand, and he liked to encourage it.

"Certainly, Jefferson. What is it?"

"I want to appeal to you, sir. I want you to use your influence with Shirley to induce her to marry Jesse Rossmore. A word from you at this time would do wonders in Washington."

The financier swung half round in his chair, the smile of greeting faded out of his face, and his voice was hard as he replied coldly:

"Again? I thought we had agreed not to discuss Jesse Rossmore any further?"

"I can't help it, sir," rejoined Jefferson, undeterred by his father's hostile attitude. "That poor old man is practically on trial for his life. He is as innocent of wrongdoing as a child unborn, and you know it. You could save him if you would."

"Jefferson," answer I Ryder senior, biting his lip to restrain his impatience, "I told you before that I could not interfere even if I would, and I won't, because that man is my enemy. Important business interests which you cannot possibly know anything about, demand his dismissal from the bench."

"Surely your business interests don't demand the sacrifice of a man's life!" retorted Jefferson. "I know modern business methods are none too squeamish, but I should think you'd draw the line at deliberate murder!"

Ryder sprang to his feet and for a moment stood glaring at the young man. His lips moved, but no sound came from them. Suppressed wrath rendered him speechless. What was the world coming to when a son could talk to his father in this manner?

"How dare you presume to judge my actions or to criticise my methods?" he burst out finally.

"You force me to do so," answered Jefferson hotly. "I want to tell you that I am heartily ashamed of this whole affair and your connection with it, and since you refuse to make reparation in the only way possible for the wrong you and your associates have done Judge Rossmore—that is, by saving him in the senate—I think it only fair to warn you that I take back my word in regard to not marrying without your consent. I want you to know that I intend to marry Miss Rossmore as soon as she will consent to become my wife—that is," he added, with bitterness, "if I can succeed in overcoming her prejudices against my family!"

Ryder senior laughed contemptuously.

"Prejudices against a thousand million dollars!" he exclaimed skeptically.

"Yes," replied Jefferson decisively, "prejudices against our family, against you and your business practices. Money is not everything. One day you will find that out. I tell you definitely that I intend to make Miss Rossmore my wife."

Ryder senior made no reply, and as Jefferson had expected an explosion, his unnatural calm rather startled him. He was sorry he had spoken so harshly. It was his father, after all.

"You're forced me to defy you, father," he added. "I'm sorry!"

Ryder senior shrugged his shoulders and resumed his seat. He lit another cigar and with affected carelessness he said:

"All right, Jeff, my boy, we'll let it go at that. You're sorry—so am I. You've shown me your cards—I'll show you mine."

His composed, unruffled manner startled. He suddenly threw off the mask—and revealed the tempest that was raging within. He leaned across the desk, his face convulsed with uncontrollable passion, a terrifying picture of human wrath. Shaking his fist at his son he shouted:

"When I get through with Judge Rossmore at Washington, I'll start after his daughter. This time tomorrow he'll be a disgraced man, a week later she will be a notorious woman. Then we'll see if you'll be so eager to marry her!"

"Father!" cried Jefferson.

"There is sure to be something in her life that won't bear inspection," sneered Ryder. "There is in everybody's life. I'll find out what it is. Where is she today? She can't be found. No one knows where she is—not even her own mother. Something is wrong—the girl's no good!"

Jefferson started forward as if to resent these insults to the woman he loved, but, realizing that it was his own father, he stopped short and his hands fell powerless at his side.

"Well, is that all?" inquired Ryder senior, with a sneer.

"That's all," replied Jefferson, "I'm going, Goodby."

"Goodby," answered his father indifferently. "Leave your address with your mother."

Jefferson left the room and Ryder

senior, as if exhausted by the violence of his own outburst, sank back limp in his chair, his face as pale as dreaded had come at last. His son had openly defied his authority and was going to marry the daughter of his enemy. He must do something to prevent it; the marriage must not take place, but what could he do? The boy was of age and legally his own master. He could do nothing to restrain his actions unless he put him in the lunatic asylum. He would rather see his son there, he mused, than married to the Rossmore woman.

Presently there was a timid knock at the library door. Ryder rose from his seat and went to see who was there. To his surprise it was Miss Green.

"May I come in?" asked Shirley.

"Certainly, by all means. Sit down." He drew up a chair for her, and his manner was so cordial that it was easy to see she was a welcome visitor.

"Mr. Ryder," she began in a low, tremulous voice, "I have come to see you on a very important matter. I've been waiting to see you all evening, and as I shall be here only a short time longer I want to ask you a great favor, perhaps the greatest you were ever asked. I want to ask you for mercy—for mercy to"—

She stopped and glanced nervously at him, but she saw he was paying no attention to what she was saying. He was pulling heavily at his cigar, entirely preoccupied with his own thoughts. Her sudden silence aroused him. He apologized:

"Oh, excuse me! I didn't quite catch what you were saying."

She said nothing, wondering what had happened to render him so absentminded. He read the question in her face, for, turning toward her, he exclaimed:

"For the first time in my life I am face to face with self-confessed of the most ignominious kind—incapacity—inability to regulate my own internal affairs. I can rule a government, but I can't manage my own family—my own son. I'm a failure. Tell me," he added, appealing to her, "why can't I govern my own household, why can't I govern my own child?"

"Why can't you govern yourself?" said Shirley gently.

Ryder looked keenly at her for a moment without answering her question; then, as if prompted by a sudden inspiration, he said:

"You can help me, but not by preaching to me. This is the first time in my life I ever called on a living soul for help. I'm only accustomed to deal with men. This time there's a woman in the case, and I need your woman's wit"—

"How can I help you?" asked Shirley, and she knew her answered with suppressed excitement. "As I told you, I am up against a blank wall. I can't see my way." He gave a nervous little laugh and went on: "I'm ashamed of myself—ashamed! Did you ever read the fable of the lion and the Mouse? Well, I want you to gnaw with your sharp woman's teeth at the cords which bind the son of John Barkett Ryder to this Rossmore woman. I want you to be the mouse—to set me free of this disgraceful entanglement."

"How?" asked Shirley calmly.

"Ah, that's just it—how?" he replied. "Can't you think—you're a woman—you have youth, beauty—brains." He stopped and eyed her closely until she reddened from the embarrassing scrutiny. Then he blurted out: "By George! Marry him yourself—force him to let go of this other woman! Why not? Come, what do you say?"

This unexpected suggestion came upon Shirley with all the force of a violent shock. She immediately saw the falseness of her position. This man was asking for her hand for his son under the impression that she was another woman. It would be dishonorable of her to keep up the pretense any longer. She passed her hand over her face to conceal her confusion.

"You—you must give me time to think," she stammered. "Suppose I don't love your son. I should want something—something more than"—

"Something to compensate?" echoed Ryder, surprised and a little disconcerted. "Why, the boy will inherit millions—I don't know how many."

"No—no, not money," rejoined Shirley. "Money only compensates those who love money. It's something else—a man's honor, a man's life! It means nothing to you."

He gazed at her, not understanding. Full of his own project, he had mind for no other woman. Ignoring therefore the question of compensation, whatever she might mean by that, he continued:

"You can win him if you make up your mind to. A woman with your resources can blind him to any other woman."

"But if he loves Judge Rossmore's daughter?" objected Shirley.

"It's for you to make him forget her, and you can," replied the financier confidently. "My desire is to separate him from this woman at any cost. You must help me." His sternness relaxed somewhat, and his eyes rested on her kindly. "Do not know, I should be glad to think you won't have to leave us. Mrs. Ryder has taken a fancy to you, and I myself shall miss you when you go."

"You ask me to be your son's wife and you know nothing of my family," said Shirley.

"I know you. That is sufficient," he replied.

"No, no, you don't," returned Shirley, "nor do you know your son. He has more constancy, more strength of character, than you think and far more principle than you have."

"So much the greater the victory for you," he answered good humoredly.

"Ah!" she said reproachfully, "you do not love your son."

"I do love him," replied Ryder warmly. "It's because I love him that I'm such a fool in this matter. Don't you see that if he marries this girl it would separate us and I should lose him? I don't want to lose him. If I welcomed her to my house, it would make me the laughing stock of all my friends and business associates. Come, will you join forces with me?"

Shirley shook her head and was about to reply when the telephone bell rang. Ryder took up the receiver and spoke to the butler downstairs:

"Who's that? Judge Stott? Tell him I'm too busy to see any one. What's that? A man's life at stake? What's that to do with me? Tell him"—

On hearing Stott's name, Shirley nearly betrayed herself. She turned pale and half started up from her chair. Something serious must have happened to bring her father's legal adviser to the Ryder residence at such an hour! She thought he was in Washington. Could it be that the proceedings in the senate were ended and the result known? She could hardly conceal her anxiety and instinctively she placed her hand on Ryder's arm.

"No, Mr. Ryder, do see Judge Stott! You must see him. I know who he is. Your son has told me. Judge Stott is one of Judge Rossmore's advisers. See him. You may find out something about the girl. You may find out where she is. If Jefferson finds out you have refused to see her father's friend at such a critical time, it will only make him sympathize more deeply with the Rossmores, and you know sympathy is akin to love. That's what you want to avoid, isn't it?"

Ryder still held the telephone, hesitating what to do. What she said sounded like good sense.

"Upon my word"— he said. "You may be right and yet"—

"Am I to help you or not?" demanded Shirley. "You said you wanted a woman's wit."

"Yes," said Ryder, "but still"—

"Then you had better see him," she said authoritatively.

Ryder turned to the telephone.

"Hello, Jorkins, are you there? Show Judge Stott up here." He laid the receiver down and turned again to Shirley. "That's one thing I don't like about you," he said. "I allow you to decide against me, and then I agree with you." She said nothing, and he went on looking at her admiringly. "I expected that you'd bring that boy to your feet within a month. I don't know why, but I seem to feel that he is attracted to you already. Thank heaven! You haven't a lot of troublesome relations. I think you said you were almost alone in the world. Don't look so serious," he added laughing. "Left in the lurch, and left well off, an excellent catch as the world goes."

Shirley raised her hand as if entreating him to desist.

"Oh, don't—don't—please! My position is so false! You don't know how false it is!" she cried.

At that instant the library door was thrown open and the butler appeared, ushering in Stott. The lawyer looked anxious, and his disheveled appearance indicated that he had come direct from the train. Shirley scanned his face agrowwly in the hope that she might read there what had happened. He walked right past her, giving no sign of recognition, and advanced direct toward Ryder, who had risen and remained standing at his desk.

"Perhaps I had better go?" ventured Shirley, although tortured by anxiety to hear the news from Washington.

"No," said Ryder quickly, "Judge Stott will detain me but a very few moments."

Having delivered himself of this delicate hint, he looked toward his visitor as if inviting him to come to the point as rapidly as possible.

"I must apologize for intruding at this unseemly hour, sir," said Stott, "but time is precious. The senate meets tomorrow to vote. If anything is to be done for Judge Rossmore it must be done tonight."

"I fail to see why you address yourself to me in this matter, sir," replied Ryder, with asperity.

"As Judge Rossmore's friend, and counsel," answered Stott, "I am impelled to ask your help at this critical moment."

"The matter is in the hands of the United States senate, sir," replied Ryder coldly.

"Not so against him!" cried Stott. "Not one senator I've spoken to holds out any hope for him. He is convicted—it is only now his death in both his life is leaving him. The only thing that can save him is the good will of the senate's counsel to find him guilty."

Stott was talking so excitedly and loudly that neither he nor Ryder heard the low moan that came from the corner of the room where Shirley was standing listening.

"I can do nothing," repeated Ryder coldly, and he turned his back and began to examine some papers lying on his desk as if to notify the caller that the interview was ended. But Stott was not so easily discouraged. He went on:

"As I understand it, they will vote on strictly party lines, and the party in power is going to vote for a Republican man. You have the power to help him." Heedless of Ryder's gesture of impatience, he continued: "Why not let your friend Judge Rossmore know that his bedside tonight, sir, I promised to return to him with good news. I have told him that I was in Washington. Could it be that the proceedings in the senate were ended and the result known? She could hardly conceal her anxiety and instinctively she placed her hand on Ryder's arm.

"No, Mr. Ryder, do see Judge Stott! You must see him. I know who he is. Your son has told me. Judge Stott is one of Judge Rossmore's advisers. See him. You may find out something about the girl. WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO

WHAT BOOTH'S KIDNEY PILLS ARE DOING FOR NAPANEE, ONT., PEOPLE.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys every three minutes.

The kidneys filter the blood.

They work night and day to daily remove about 500 grains of impure matter. If they fail, some part of this impure matter is left in the blood, bringing on pain in the back, headache, dizziness, irregular heart, hot, dry skin, rheumatism, gravel, dropsy, deposits in the urine. Booth's Kidney Pills make the filtering right and overcome Kidney trouble. Hundreds of Lennox County residents have found this out.

Mrs. Thos. Smith, of Graham st., Napanee, Ont., says:

"For over four years I had suffered with many aggravating and painful symptoms of Bright's disease. I had tried every possible manner of relief but could find nothing to benefit me. The kidneys were so disordered that I would have to leave my bed a number of times each night with the frequency of the kidney secretions. The urine was scant, scalding and very odorous. My general health had been very much run down and I would awake more tired and unrefreshed than on going to bed. I tried Booth's Kidney Pills on advice of a friend and procured them at Mr. Wallace's Pharmacy. They cured me when all else failed. I am stronger than in years previous and will always speak a good word for Booth's Kidney Pills."

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Her Father—You must remember, sir, that we only have one daughter.

Her Suitor—Well—er—I only want one, sir.

SHEEPLESSNESS—When the nerves are unstrung and the whole body given up to wretchedness, the mind is filled with gloom and dismal forebodings, the result of derangement of the digestive organs, whereby the power to add to the distress. If only the cause is realized, there would be comparatively little sympathy wasted. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will restore digestion and will soon be followed by the return of health and refreshed by sleep.

Dobbins—Pretty busy at your house, Wobbins—Yes, my wife is preparing to go away to get tired for the summer.

THE FLAGGING ENERGIES REVIVED. Constant application to business is fast upon the road to ruin, and if there is not immediate relief depression of spirits will be the result. Then comes on a train of nervous irregularities, and the feeble system succumbs to any disease. Under such conditions Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will prove a boon to mankind, as they are calculated to give tone to the digestive organs, thereby promoting healthful action, diminishing the cravings for stimulants and enriching the blood.

Some one asks why babies cry. Perhaps it is because they don't know how to swear.

For according to directions, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all diseases of the blood, from a common pimple to the worst case of scrofula. Whether the ulcers manifest themselves on the outside of the body or on the stomach, liver or lungs, or even in the form of tumors, this wonderful remedy will sometimes succeed in effecting a permanent cure.

A pessimistic doctor says tobacco is the most healthful of all poisons.

MY MEDICINE LIES MAY BE FOUND. Mr. Chas. Shannon, Shannonville, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for a bad cough and cold on the chest, and found it to be the best medicine I ever used. Also for my children when troubled with croup, it has proved a blessing. I would not be without it in the house."

A bunch which is substantial and has the additional merit of looking good is one of the delicacies to be had at Hoag's. Fresh and tempting, with plenty of good sized meat chunks, are particularly good in cases of anorexia and dyspepsia with olive oil is recognized as a most valuable and fattening food for the under fed. A call and a trial of such will be found to convince all that what we palatable means when the thermometer is ascending.

The experiments of Mother Seigel's Syrup demonstrated it to be a remedy of great value in the cure of dyspepsia and indigestion, and it will give a good account of itself in any case it is given a trial.

Host—Have you seen the bathing dress I got?

Guest—No, not yet.

Host—Well, wait a moment. I'll get one of the detectives to show you through.

Merchant—What other qualifications have you for the place? Applicant—Well, my friends tell me I have a contented disposition and—

Merchant—You won't do. We want a man with a discontented disposition—one that will buy!

Georgie—Auntie, what does money mean?

Auntie—It means to eat soft things and mean the opposite, like calling a rattle a fine day.

Georgie—I think I understand you, auntie. Wouldn't this be a lovely day, auntie, if we had a nice big piece of cake?

Grabbit has given up bank clerking to take a position as a conductor on a street car.

But that's an odd change.

Odd change! Sure! That is what I should call it.

HOW MUCH DO YOU WEIGH?

Thinness is wasting. Wasting is losing flesh. Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to never makes waste. It will give you rich blood and bring back your weight. 33b

The Best Flour, Dafoe's Nonesuch, Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flours in the market.

When buying flour, ask for Dafoe's, and guarantee your bread, cake, pastry and confectionery. Whether the others manufactured are cheaper or dearer, they are not the equal of the Dafoe. It will get mixed up on the stomach, and be followed by the stomach's protest. Dafoe's Flour will convince anyone of its superiority in quality.

"My own father," interrupted Jefferson bitterly, "would not hesitate to sell me if his business and political interests warranted the sacrifice!"

Shirley attempted the role of peacemaker. Appealing to the younger man she said:

"Please don't talk like that, Mr. Jefferson!" then she turned to Ryder senior: "I don't think your son quite understands you, Mr. Ryder, and, if you will excuse me, I don't think he's quite understand him. Do you realize that there is a man's life at stake—that Judge Rossmore is almost at the point of death and that favorable news from the senate tomorrow is perhaps the only thing that can save him?"

"Ah, I see," sneered Ryder senior. "Judge Stott's story has aroused your sympathy."

"Yes, I confess my sympathy is aroused. I do feel for this father who is like a lion slowly ebbing away—whose strength is being sapped hourly by the thought of the disgrace—the infamy that is being done him! I do feel for the wife of this suffering man!"

"Ah, it's a complete picture!" cried Ryder mockingly. "The dying father, the sorrowing mother—and the daughter, what is she supposed to be doing?"

"She is fighting for her father's life," cried Shirley, "and you, Mr. Jefferson, should have pleaded—pleaded—not commanded. It's no use trying to combat your father's will."

"She is quite right, father. I should have implored you. I do so now. I ask you for God's sake to help us!"

Ryder was grim and silent. He rose from his seat and paced the room, puffing savagely at his cigar. Then he turned and said:

"His removal is a political necessity. If he goes back on the bench every paltry justice of the peace, every petty official will think he has a right of election to tear down the structure that hard work and capital have erected. No, this case has been especially conspicuous in his efforts to block the progress of amalgamated interests."

"And so he must be sacrificed!" cried Shirley indignantly.

"He is a meddlesome man," insisted Ryder, "and"—

"He is innocent of the charges brought against him," urged Jefferson.

"Mr. Ryder is not considering that point," said Shirley bitterly. "All he can see is that it is necessary to put this poor old man in the public pillory, to set him up as a warning to others of his class not to act in accordance with the principles of truth and justice —not to dare to obstruct the car of Juggernaut set in motion by the money gods of the country!"

More Bread in a Barrel.

That extra cost per barrel which your grocer asks you for doesn't go into anybody's pocket.

Ogilvie's Royal Household

It comes back to you.

It is the difference in money between flour you are sure of and flour you are not.

It covers the cost of inspecting the entire wheat crop of the country, and selecting the choicest grain.

It pays for advanced milling methods, for cleanliness, for purity and for scientific flour-making.

It comes back to you in the shape of light, wholesome, nourishing bread and pastry.

A barrel of Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour goes farther than a barrel of any other flour. It makes more bread and better bread.

You are not really spending that extra amount —you are investing it.

Do not let it stand between your family and good baking. Go to your grocer and say "Royal Household."

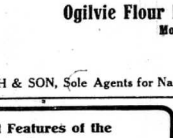
Three Great Features of the

"Hecla" Furnace

Fused Joints make the "Hecla" permanently air-tight and sanitary. The heated air is fresh and pure, because no gas, dust or smoke can get into the air-chamber.

Steel-Ribbed Firepot has steel instead of cast iron flanges. 67 square inches of flanges are fused to the outside of the firepot giving it three times as much radiating surface as any other style. In a three years' test the steel ribbed pot showed a saving of fuel over 15%.



Triangular Bar Grate enables you to clear any part of the fire of ashes. There are four grates. Each can be shaken separately. It gets all the ashes out—saves coal—and means a clean fire.

Made by the makers of famous "Pandora Pacemaker" Ranges.

Stop in and let us show you all the new features of the new "Hecla." 65

International Newspaper Bible Study Club

GOLD AND SILVER MEDALS, BIBLES, BOOKS.

Persons may join the Club at any time during the year, but must, of course, answer the 52 questions prescribed, to qualify for the prizes. It is, however, desirable that the questions be answered as the lessons are studied.

The International Newspaper Bible Study Club is for the purpose of promoting, in understood way among the masses, wider study of the Bible, for broad truths of Christianity, and the problems which arise into every man's life. It is equally for all those who join a Local Club, and take on the simple course herein outlined, having only ordained clergymen. We have the sympathetic co-operation of the Letter, but it is not considered fair to have them competitors for the prizes. Sunday School secretaries, Bible class scholars, and churchgoers generally, are welcome to join Local Clubs, also non-churchgoers, of all shades of opinion, and the Editor will be glad to receive inquiries invited to do so and to compete for the prizes.

The Bible Study Club was started to publish the International Sunday School Lesson scientific way for Bible students, but has proved so much interest elsewhere, and there are so many words, one of these questions each week is to be answered in writing, and upon these answers the prizes are to be awarded.

The Beaver is authorized to form a Local Newspaper Bible Study Club for its readers, and guarantees to all who join and fulfil the conditions, that everything herein promised shall be faithfully carried out.

CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST.

1. Each contestant, or his or her family must be a subscriber to this paper, during the continuance of the contest, in order to qualify for membership in the International Newspaper Bible Study Club and this Local Club.

2. Each contestant in this Local Club must answer each of the written questions, for 52 consecutive weeks, commencing for Sunday, August 2nd, 1908, and the answers must be sent in each week, and received within ten weeks of the publication of the issue in which above two weeks grace after the close of the contest.

3. Each question must be answered separately, and the paper written on one side only. No answer must exceed two hundred words in length and may be less. It will be a convenience if students will write their answers on letter paper, about 6 inches by 11 inches.

4. Each answer must have the name and address of the writer at the bottom of the answer, so it can be identified, given a number, registered and then the name and address to the examiner that know it by number only.

5. Students should be careful to understand the question before answering. To do this, the lesson text must be read and especially the verse or verses, upon which the question is based.

6. The answers from this Local Club must be delivered to this office, and thereafter collated with all other sets and forwarded to headquarters for independent examination. The awarding of the prizes will then be awarded according to the merits of the answers, as decided by examiners of The International Newspaper Bible Study Club, and prizes which may be awarded to members of this Local Club will be given out from this office.

THE PRIZES.

First Series—A gold medal to each of the first five contestants.

Second Series—A silver medal to each of the next five contestants.

Third Series—A Teacher's Bible, prize $5.00, to each of the next five contestants.

Fourth Series—"The Evidences of Christianity," prize $3.50, to each of the next thirty-five contestants.

Fifth Series—A developed mind, an expanded imagination, a richer experience and a more profound knowledge of the Bible and of life, to all who take this course whether winning any other prize or not.

Each medal will be suitably engraved, giving the name of the winner, and for what it is awarded, and in like manner each Bible and book will be inscribed.

All who can write, and have ideas, are invited to join this Local Club regardless of age or station, and their answers to the papers are not valued from an educational or literary standpoint, but from the point of view of the cogency of their reasoned ideas.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON BY REV. DR. LINSCOTT FOR THE INTERNATIONAL NEWSPAPER BIBLE STUDY CLUB FOR AUG. 30th, 1908.

David Spares Saul's Life—Golden Text—Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you. Luke vi: 27.

Is it desirable that we love our enemies and why?

Verses 1-6—Are the majority of wars justified by conscience, judgment and inherent sense of right in the parents of David and by their posterity?

If they had slain Saul, was there any law of man or God which could condemn the act?

Was Abishai right in saying that God had delivered Saul into David's hand?

Verse 9—Why did David not slay Saul?

Verse 10—This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verse 5—Did David really love Saul? Is any arrangement safe enough to hide anybody from God's purposes?

Did God have anything to do with this event?

Verses 6, 7—Is physical courage an acquired quality, or is it wholly natural? Is physical cowardice due to a man with some physical complaint?

Is blame necessarily deserved by a man who is physically timid and afraid? Is he a well-dog man who fights and never gives up, deserving of any more praise than a collie-dog man who cannot fight, but who takes good care of the sheep?

Should we blame ourselves because we have not the courage to do what others can do?

Verse 8—Was Abishai right or wrong in wanting to kill Saul, how they had slain him when he had the opportunity? Was it love, or loyalty to God, or policy?

In the light of subsequent events would it have been better, for David, if he had slain Saul?

Did David give too much importance to the fact that Saul had been anointed king? Is a king, when he turns criminal, any better than any other man?

Verse 10—As a matter of fact did David want Saul out of the way?

Did David know that God would remove Saul?

If any person is in the place God means for us, will God put such person out of it without our doing it?

What were the three ways, one of which, David said God would use to smite Saul, and which was as a matter of fact, used by God use?

Was David's statement of the way Saul should die, a guess or an inspiration?

Verse 11—Was Saul really sincere in this noble statement, and did he keep his promise?

Do men always turn from their folly, when they find they have acted the fool?

Lesson for Sunday, Sept. 6th, 1908.—Saul and Jonathan in Battle. I. Samuel.

OUR NATIONAL DANGER

TIME TO CRY A HALT BEFORE COMPLETE WRECK RESULTS.

There are thousands, both men and women, who do not take time to eat properly. They rush through life, and as a result we have an age of indigestion, nervousness, irritability, sleepless nights, and morose disposition. Our national danger is stomach weakness, due to hasty and strenuous life.

Mi-o-na tablets strengthen the walls of the stomach and stimulate secretion of the digestive juices. They make the stomach comfortable and cure indigestion.

Sick headaches, palpitation, yellow skin and coated tongue are a few of the many distressing results of indigestion that Mi-o-na never fails to cure.

T. B. Wallace sells Mi-o-na in 50 cent boxes, and guarantees to refund the money if it does not give complete satisfaction.

MAPLE AVENUE

The past week has been very warm, with several showers of rain and heavy thunder and lightning.—The whistle of the threshing engine is heard again.—Mr. Barnes Smith is very busy threshing. He is a busttler at the business.— Metzler's cheese factory paid the patrons off last Monday at 90c. per 100 lbs.—Our popular school teacher, Miss Frederick, is in our midst again, after a pleasant vacation with her parents and relatives at Godfrey. Her pupils are glad to see her back again and other friends also.—The trustees are repairing the school house, putting on a new metallic roof, and building a new chimney, which adds very much to the appearance of the school house.—Mrs. Leonard and Miss Lee, of Napanee, were guests of Mrs. L. Hartman last Sunday, also Miss Mettler, Miss Sharpe, Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Munroe, all of Odessa, at the same place. —Mr. and Mrs. Levi Snider at their daughter's, Mrs. James Boyce, last week. —Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Frink and baby boy, of Fellows, visited his mother, Mrs. Robert Frink, several days last week.— Mr. George Peters, of Thorpe, was very unfortunate last week in losing his valuable horse by getting its leg broken in the seam of a rock in the pasture field.

These footprints of Dyspepsia have been directly traced to the Stomach nerves. Call these "inside nerves" full, indigestion and pain. Dyspepsia must conquered to cure, and this, druggists everywhere are supplying, Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is the only one to treat the nerves, not the stomach. Test this by inside Stomach, Heart, and Kidney nerves

Camp Le Nid closed last week after a most successful season. Cottages have become very popular during late years, so much so indeed that only one tent was pitched this year, and that was for the use of the cooks. Out of the entire cottages this year over two thirds were from the cities of Hamilton and New York.

A GRAND SUCCESS.

The social given by the Orangemen at Hay Bay on August 25th passed off most successfully. The evening was pleasant and every detail of the entertainment was fulfilled, and all agreed that the gathering was both pleasant and profitable to an exceptional degree. The ladies had provided a ample and tasty supper. When all had partaken, Mr. Thomas Gould, Master of Bay View Lodge, called the meeting to order. The principal speaker of the evening was Dr. T. S. Sproule, M.P., Supreme Grand Master of the Orange Association of British America. Recognizing the mixed audience, he gave an address that was an appeal for good citizenship. He urged that we should enjoy the fruits of our father's toil, and likewise we should work that the generations following may be better and richer. He argued for civil and religious liberty and gave wholesome counsel to any willing hearers. He is a pleasing, genial companion, and his entertaining conversational style is requested when on the public platform. The Napanee Band played very acceptably during the evening.

Augustus Cooper, who picked up a bag containing $10,000 worth of diamond jewellery on a Montreal railway station, will be given the property, the supposed owners, Mr. and Mrs. Burrows, of London, waiving their claim and refusing to testify in the case.

...NEW...
Fancy Suitings

One of the New Fall Lines in Dress Goods That Takes Its Place Amongst the Smart Suiting Fashions.

"Stripes" is the keynote in all the many varieties, woven in hard worsted or soft, smooth broadcloth finish. Many are herringbone weave, in stripes of two tones of black and brown, black and navy, black and burgundy, black and green. Others come in narrow self stripes, the stripes being thrown into quiet contrast by the weaver's skilful manipulation of the warp and weft yarns. Tehse, too, have a hard, handsome, long wearing worsted finish.

These goods are pure wool and 50 to 54 inches wide. They afford a range of patterns and shades to meet most every fall dress desire if it tends toward the fashionable stripes. Price per yard $1.25.

CAMP LE NID CLOSED.

Camp Le Nid closed last week, after a most successful season. Cottages have become very popular during late years, so much so indeed that only one tent was pitched this year, and that was for the use of the cooks. There are now five sleeping cottages with spacious windows well screened, which admit plenty of fresh air and keep out the mosquitos which have been quite troublesome for the past three or four years. Out of the entire attendance this year over two-thirds were from the cities of Baltimore and New York.

ABOUT THOSE PRIZES.

We wonder whether our young friends who attend school fully understand about the Drawing Prizes. 500 copies of The Boys' Own and Girls' Own Magazines will assuredly be given to the boys and girls who hand in the best drawings. The picture to be copied is on the cover of an exercise book. We will give you a sheet of paper with the outline of the picture, then you will apply the colors. The painting must be done on one of these sheets in order to compete. We have also the very largest assortment of Exercise Books, Scribblers, Pencils, and other school necessaries ever shown in the town. See them and note the prices.

A GRAND SUCCESS.

The social given by the Orangemen at Hay Bay on August 25th passed off most successfully. The evening was pleasant and every detail of the entertainment was fulfilled, and all agreed that the gathering was both pleasant and profitable to an exceptional degree. The ladies had provided an ample and tasty supper. When all had partaken, Mr. Thomas Gould, Master of Bay View Lodge, called the meeting to order. The principal speaker of the evening was Dr. T. S. Sproule, M.P., Supreme Grand Master of the Orange Association of British America. Recognizing the mixed audience, he gave an address that was an appeal for good citizenship. He urged that we should enjoy the fruits of our father's toil, and likewise we should work that the generations following may be better and richer. He argued for civil and religious liberty and gave wholesome counsel to any willing hearers. He is a pleasing, genial companion, and his entertaining conversational style is appreciated when on the public platform. The Napanee Band played very acceptably during the evening.

Augustus Cooper, who picked up a bag containing $10,000 worth of diamond jewellery at a Montreal railway station, will be given the property, the supposed owners, Mr. and Mrs. Burrows, of London, waiving their claim and refusing to testify in the case.

NAPANEE HOTEL.

From the District Ledger, Fernie, B.C.

The Napanee Hotel opened for business Friday yesterday. It is a handsome and Whales Bros., are hustlers, as the present house will prove. They have eighteen bedrooms, furnished in first-class style in every detail, so that the travelling public are assured of all comfortable accommodations at one hotel at least. An addition to room the help plans of being built at the back so that the eighteen rooms in the main building are under the command of the public. Every convenience for a public commercial house prevails for is now in vogue at this popular hostlery, and with the wholesome Tom Whelan as manager the weary traveller can feel at home. The bar will be stock ed as of yore with the best in the land, while the cuisine, already famous will be up to par with the rest.

Work on the permanent hotel will be started as soon as possible and when completed will be one of the best in the Kootenays. It is told on excellent authority that the old bar, with all its fixtures, including bald-headed eagles, and the oil painting of the only Napanee herdess will be re-produced. Big Dave and the genial Sammy will be retained to deal out justice and a "drop o' the creature" to all deserving ones.

THE THAW SCANDAL.

The Philadelphia Ledger, commenting on the bankruptcy proceedings in the Thaw matter, and the evasion therefor, says:

"Nothing is juster in life than that high skill and knowledge are entitled to high rewards, but the Thaw case makes it clear that those eminent or notorious lawyers and physicians who put practicing law or medicine in accordance with any true conception of their profession but were rather entered in a desperate and contemptible game of bartering skill to the disgrace of any profession and in violation of the codes of ethics of all professions.

It is, however, not surprising that harpies of all kinds should have descended upon the wretched Thaw. The whole trial, including the demeanor of the courts, must be viewed by any decent standards not as a trial at all a sacred court of justice, but as a sordid and degrading financial transaction. The trial was a Bowery melodrama, the only virtue of which was to lay bare some dunerous travesties upon the administration of the law in the United States. Nothing can be more dangerous or corrupting in its influence upon American life or law. Thaw trial, which advertises to the world the fact that a rich man on trial may buy his way around the jailbirds into an asylum if he only has money enough.

If good has any come of evil, the good that is to come from the Thaw case will be an overhauling of the procedure of our courts of justice, so as to equip them with something of the certainty and efficiency of those of England, where Thaw would have been convicted on the evidence and the trial concluded in two days.

FIRST OZONE PLANT EVER ERECTED.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 29.—A Pittsburg firm has just completed for a homeopathic hospital the first ozone plant ever erected and successfully operated in this country.

Experiments already made have proven remarkable. Colds have been completely cured in twenty minutes by ozone, and it is also a cure for heart and kidney troubles. Ozone forced into water makes the water absolutely pure, killing every germ it contains.

Those having the experiments in charge believe that it will be possible for cities to use ozone to purify their water supplies, thereby preventing typhoid fever and similar diseases.

DAYS OF DIZZINESS

COME TO MANY NAPANEE PEOPLE.

There are days of dizziness, spells of drowsiness, headache, sideaches, backache.

Sometimes rheumatic pain after urinary troubles.

You are plainly told that the Kidneys are sick.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all Kidney ills.

Mrs. Benjamin Johnson, of Robert St., Napanee, Ont., says:

"Headaches were frequent and usually accompanied by spells of dizziness and spots before the eyes. I would be scarcely able to walk across the floor at times and would have to support myself to keep from falling. My back was weak and a dull, bearing down pain settled across the small of it, and in the region of the kidneys. I would be more tired and done out on waking than on going to bed as I was restless and would get but little sleep. Booth's Kidney Pills were recommended and procuring a box at Mr. Wallace's Pharmacy I commenced treatment. I soon found relief and it was but a short time until I was well and strong again and I have felt better in every way."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

HE GRASPED THE IDEA.

"Tommy," said his teacher, the words "circumstantial evidence" occur in the lesson. Do you know what circumstantial evidence is?"

Tommy replied that he did not.

"Well, I will explain it to you by an illustration. You know we have a law against eating apples in school. Suppose some morning I should see you in your seat with a book held up in front of your face. I say nothing, but presently I go round to where you are sitting. You are busily studying your lesson, but I see that your face is smeared, while under the book of your slate I see the core of a freshly eaten apple.

"I should know, just as well as if had caught you at it, that you have been eating an apple, although, of course, I did not see you do it. That is a case in which circumstantial evidence convicts you. Do you think you know what it is now?"

"Yes, sir," said Tommy. "It's eating apples in school."

It's a pity when sick ones drug the stomach or stimulate the Heart and Kidneys. That is all wrong. Stomach troubles means weak Stomach nerves, always. And the Kidneys are the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. Help them with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and it promptly helps the Stomach, Heart and Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative nerve food acts for the cause—cures these ailments—the failing "inside nerves." Try your test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure so soon as that, but come to you'll surely know that help is coming. Sold by T. R. Wallace. 36d

BASEBALL.

On Saturday afternoon last Croydon and Roblin baseball teams met on the latter's diamond for a friendly game The day was an ideal one for baseball, and a large crowd was present to witness the contest between the pets of both. Morgan, Spencer and Hunt were on the firing line for Roblin, while Kellar and Bonter occupied the Croydon battery. At the end of the ninth innings the score read Roblin 17 and Croydon 13. The score would have often been greatly by many runs had it not been for punk fielding on both sides. Kellar pitched a steady game throughout, striking out 8 men, while Morgan retired 3, and Spencer 5. Roblin was saved from defeat by Morgan's fine work in the box, and also the numerous fine catches by the latter gent. Wm. Galbraith made his usual home run for the Croydon team, while Quinn stole bases whenever he felt chilly. Mr. Geo. Paul, of Tamworth, umpired the game, and his decisions were never questioned. Considering that the game went smoothly along without a hitch. After the game the crowd moved to the Roblin hotel, where the feast reared between Wm. Quinn, of the Shannon House, and W. Anderson, the crack runner of the Roblin team. Geo. Paul acted as toastmaster while Ed. Hamilton, starter. At the word go the men were off like a shot, and Quinn went to the front at once, with Anderson close at his heels. The Croydon boys' front Canadian maintained the lead to the end and won in fine style by three runs. Time, 11-15 minutes; distance 100 yards. The teams then journeyed off to the Little Lake side of the village, where other symptoms repast was awaiting them, given by the host Quinn, of Roblin, after which they invited the teams but the entire crowd to join them, and everybody would enjoy themselves, none leaving unsatisfied. The Croydon boys left for home at 5.30, feeling in their hearts that it was well worth being defeated at baseball to be so well treated, and after three hearty cheers for the young people of Roblin, the crowd broke up. The teams lined up as follows:

VANALSTINE—HOGLE.

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday evening, 29th inst., at nine o'clock, at the residence of Henry Vanalstine, Bridge road, when his daughter, Miss Ola, was united in marriage to Henry Hogle, Odessa. Rev. H. Symmonds tied the nuptial knot in the presence of about sixty invited guests. The bride was daintily crowned in white organdie, trimmed with valenciennes lace. She was assisted by her cousin, Miss Sarah Vanalstine, who wore white with tasteful touches of cardinal pink carnations. The bride's bouquet was white roses. The groomsman was Mr. Donaldson, of Odessa. Little Miss Beverly Thompson, cousin of the bride, and son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Thompson, Napanee, was present and carried a basket of white sweet peas and lent an added charm to the occasion. The presents were numerous and very handsome. A sumptuous wedding supper, after which a couple of hours were spent in happy intercourse. The newly-wedded couple left on the G. T. R. midnight train for a honeymoon at Niagara Falls, Toronto and other western points. The presents were numerous and very elegant, testifying to the high esteem in which the bride is held by her numerous friends. After the honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Hogle will reside near Odessa, where the groom is a prosperous young farmer.

THE THAW SCANDAL.

The Philadelphia Ledger, commenting on the bankruptcy proceedings in the Thaw matter, and the occasion therefor, says:

"Nothing is juster in life than that high skill and knowledge are entitled to rich rewards, but the Thaw case makes it clear that these eminent or notorious lawyers and physicians were not practicing law or medicine in accordance with any true conception of the professions, but were carrying on a private and secret and contemptible game of buncamering to the grave of every profession and in violation of the codes of ethics of all professions.

It is, however, not surprising that harpies of all kinds should have descended upon the wretched Thaw. The whole trial, including the demeanor of the courts, must be viewed by any decent standards not as a trial in a sacred court of justice but as a public and degrading financial transaction. The trial was a Beastly melodrama, the only virtue of which was to lay bare some disgusting truisms upon the administration of the law in the United States. Nothing can be more dangerous or corrupting in its influence upon American life than the Thaw trial, which advertises to the world the fact that a dissolute criminal may with his millions buy rich fellows into an asylum if he only has money enough.

If good may come of evil, the good that is to come from the Thaw case will be an overhauling of the price-lists of our courts of justice so as to equip them with something of the certainty and efficiency of those of England, where Thaw would have been convicted on the evidence and the trial concluded in two days.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for testimonials and testimonials.

HE GRASPED THE IDEA.

"Tommy," said his teacher, the words "circumstantial evidence" occur in the lesson. Do you know what circumstantial evidence is?"

Tommy replied that he did not.

"Well, I will explain it to you by an illustration. You know we have a rule against eating apples in school. Suppose some morning I should see you in your seat with a book held up in front of your face. I say nothing, but presently I go round to where you are sitting. You are busily studying your lesson, but I find that your face is smeared with the red color of your state I see the core of a freshly eaten apple.

"I should know, just as well as if I had caught you at it, that you have been eating an apple, although, of course, I did not see you do it. That is a case of circumstantial evidence. Do you catch my drift? Do you think you know what it is now?

"Yes, ma'am," said Tommy. It's eating apples in school."

It's a pity when sick ones drug the stomach or stimulate the Heart and Kidneys. What is all wrong? A sick Stomach means weak Stomach nerves, always. And this is the cause of the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. The organs are failing. Shiloh Curative is promptly helping Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailments. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments—the failing inside nerves. Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure as soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by T. B. Wallace. 36d

THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

A Story of American Life Novelized From the Play by ARTHUR HORNBLOW.

Copyright, 1906, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

"It's the survival of the fittest, my dear," said Ryder coldly.

"Oh," cried Shirley, making a last appeal to the financier's heart of stone, "use your great influence with this governing body for good, not evil! Urge them to vote not in accordance with party policy and personal interest, but in accordance with their consciences—in accordance with truth and justice! Ah, for God's sake, Mr. Ryder, don't permit this foul injustice to blot the name of the highest tribunal in the western world!"

Ryder laughed cynically.

"By Jore! Jefferson, I give you credit for having secured an eloquent advocate!"

"Suppose," went on Shirley, ignoring his taunting—comments, "suppose this daughter promises that she will never—never see your son again—that she will go away to some foreign country?"

"No!" burst in Jefferson. "Why should she? If my father is not man enough to do a simple act of justice without bartering a woman's happiness and his own happiness, let him find comfort in his self justification!"

Shirley, completely unnerved, made a move toward the door, unable longer to bear the strain she was under. She tottered as though she would fall. Ryder made a quick movement toward his son and took him by the arm. Pointing to Shirley, he said in a low tone:

"You see how the girl pleads your cause for you! She loves you, my boy!" Jefferson started. "Yes, she does," turned Ryder senior. "She's worth a thousand of the Rossmore woman. Make her your wife, and I'll"—

"Make her my wife!" cried Jefferson joyously. He stared at his parent as if he thought he had suddenly been bereft of his senses.

"Make her my wife!" he repeated incredulously.

"Well, what do you say?" demanded Ryder senior.

The young man advanced toward Shirley hands outstretched.

"Yes, yes, Shir—Miss Green, will you?" Seeing that Shirley made no sign, he said: "Not now, father. I will speak to her later."

"No, no; tonight—at once!" insisted Ryder. Addressing Shirley, he went on: "Miss Green, my son is much affected by your disinterested appeal in his behalf. He—he—you can save him from himself. My son wishes you—he asks you to become his wife! Is it not so, Jefferson?"

"Yes, yes, my wife!" advancing again toward Shirley.

The girl shrank back in alarm.

"The price, Mr. Ryder, I cannot; I cannot!" she cried.

"Why not?" demanded Ryder senior speechlessly. "Ah, don't—don't decide hastily"—

Shirley, her face set and drawn and keen mental distress showing in every line of it, faced the two men, pale and determined. The time had come to refuse the truth. Her magnificent pride could go on no longer. It was not honorable either to her father or to herself. A self respect demanded that she inform the financier of her true identity.

"I cannot marry your son with these lies upon my lips!" she said. "I cannot go on with this deception. I told you you did not know who I was, who my people were. My story about them, my name, everything about me is false, every word I have uttered is a lie, a fraud, a cheat! I would not tell you now, but you trusted me and are willing to entrust your son's future, your family honor in my keeping, and I can't keep back the truth from you. Mr. Ryder, I am the daughter of the man you hate. I am the woman your son loves. I am Shirley Rossmore!"

Ryder took his cigar from his lips and rose slowly to his feet.

"You? You?" he stammered.

"Yes—yes, I am the Rossmore woman! Listen, Mr. Ryder. Don't turn away from me. Go to Washington on behalf of my father, and I promise you I will never see your son again—never, never!"

"Ah, Shirley!" cried Jefferson, "you don't love me!"

"Yes, Jeff, I do. God knows I do! But if I must break my own heart to save my father I will do it."

"Would you sacrifice my happiness and your own?"

"No happiness can be built on lies, Jeff. We must build on truth or our whole house will crumble and fall. We have deceived your father—he will forgive that, won't you?" she said, appealing to Ryder, "and you will go to Washington, you will save my father's honor, his life, you will?"—

They stood face to face—the slim, delicate girl battling for her father's life, strayed against a cold blooded, heartless, unscrupulous man, deaf to every impulse of human sympathy or pity. Since this woman had deceived him, fooled him, he would deal with her as with every one else who crossed his will. She laid her hand on his arm, pleading with him. Brutally, savagely, he flung her aside.

"No, no, I will not!" he thundered. "You have wormed yourself into my confidence by means of lies and deceit. You have tricked me, fooled me to the very limit! Oh, it is easy to see how you have gulled my son into the folly of loving you! And you—you have the brazen effrontery to ask me to plead for your father? You! You! No! Let the law take its course, and now, Miss Rossmore, you will please leave my house tomorrow morning!"

Shirley stood listening to what he had to say, her face white, her mouth quivering. At last the crisis had come. It was a fight to the finish between this man, the incarnation of corporate greed, and herself, representing the fundamental principles of right and justice. She turned to him in a fury:

"Yes, I will leave your house tonight! Do you think I would remain another hour beneath the roof of a man who is as blind to justice, as deaf to mercy, as incapable of human sympathy, as you are!"

She raised her voice, and as she stood there denouncing the man of money, her eyes flashing and her head thrown back, she looked like some avenging angel defying one of the powers of evil.

"Leave the room!" shouted Ryder, beside himself, and pointing to the door.

"Father!" cried Jefferson, starting forward to protect the girl he loved.

"You have tricked him as you have me!" thundered Ryder.

"It is your own vanity that has tricked you!" cried Shirley contemptuously. "You lay traps for yourself and walk into them. You can tell every man around you to lie to you, to cajole you, to praise you, to deceive you! At least you cannot accuse me of flattering, for I have never fawned upon you as you compel your family and your friends and your dependents to do. I have always appealed to your better nature by telling you the truth, and in your heart you know that I am speaking the truth now."

"Go!" he commanded.

"Yes, let us go, Shirley!" said Jefferson.

"No, Jeff, I came here alone, and I'm going alone!"

"You are not. I shall go with you. I intend to make you my wife!"

Ryder laughed scornfully.

"No," cried Shirley. "Do you think I'd marry a man whose father is as deep a disgrace to the human race as your father is? No, I wouldn't marry the son of such a merciless tyrant! He refuses to lift his voice to save my father. I refuse to marry his son!"

She turned on Ryder with all the fury of a tiger.

"You think if you lived in the olden days you'd be a Caesar or an Alexander. But you wouldn't! You'd be a "Leave the room!" shouted Ryder.

Nero—a Nero! Sick my self remorse to the extent of marrying into your family!" she exclaimed contemptuously. "Never! I am going to Washington without your aid. I am going to save my father if I have to go on my knees to every United States senator. I'll go to the White House; I'll tell the president what you are! Marry your son—no, thank you! No, thank you!"

Exhausted by the vehemence of her passionate outburst, Shirley hurried from the room, leaving Ryder speechless, staring at his son.

CHAPTER XVI.

When Shirley reached her rooms she broke down completely. She threw herself upon a sofa and lay there into a fit of violent sobbing. After all, she was only a woman, and the one supreme moment which she had passed would have taxed the strongest powers of endurance. She had borne up courageously while there remained the faintest chance that she might succeed in moving the financier to pity, but now that all hope in that direction were shattered and she herself had been ordered harshly from the house, the nervous strain

The Flattery —OF— IMITATION

We started some short time ago
To advertise in Rhyme,
We note we're imitated now
In prose from time to time.

To imitate is flattery true,
Unless it be unbought;
But those who in the game you'll see
Their themes are woefu' short.

Denoting dearth of fertile brain
And style original,
The imitator don't mind.
But criticize we shall.

A word, just now, to everyone
Who may these lines peruse,
Politely, and in truth we say
To you we are of use.

Wall Papers, Books, and Stationery,
Music of every kind,
Sewing Machines of highest rank
We have, you bear in mind.

And here's a money-saving chance:
On clearing stock we're bent;

Style News Pertaining to Women's Fall Coats

At this time of the year Women are wondering what the new styles in Coats will be for the coming season! What colors are taking the lead? Are they going to be long or short? Loose, semi or tight fitting? These are a few of the questions we are going to answer. The Coats for Fall and Winter will be mostly three-quarter and seven-eighth lengths. The colors used in plain cloths will rank in about this order, Black, Navy, Brown, Taupe, Green. Where novelty weaves are used such as in Chevrons, Cheviots, Surface Cloths, the darker colorings will lead. Among the trimmings used are many variations in Braids, Buttons, Velvet, Satin and Silk Embroideries. Now as to shape. The time was when people in the same locality dressed like a lot of sheep, "follow the leader". Nowadays the woman of good judgement dresses becomingly. The designers this year in bringing out extreme models have followed closely the styles of the "Directoire" period. Semi-fitting in type but loose enough at the waist line to give that hipless effect of which we hear so much. The extreme garment we have in sufficient quantities to meet the demand. The bulk of our garments however are "Americanized" in shape to fit our own people becomingly. Loose, semi-fitting and tight-fitting are all well represented. This week's shipments completed our stock of Fall Coats. We invite everyone who is interested to see the styles. In trying on our Coats take particular notice of the pressing, stitching, smoothness of shoulders. With all our Coats "americanized" styles there is this striking peculiarity. When you try them on, whatever lines they assume, they are sure to be graceful in the tailoring. Another very important thing we wish to make very clear to you is that in all our best Coats there are very, very few alike. To accomplish this meant very much extra labor on our part, but we know from past seasons that our customers appreciate exclusiveness. None of our Coats are to be found on sale in nearby stores, villages, towns, or hamlets. Our output for Coats is so large that manufacturers are very glad indeed to give us exclusive control of garments for the district.

Our Coats are not catalogued. To sell Coats from cuts in a Catalogue would mean that we would have to sell many Coats to the other exactly alike. That's the very thing we try to avoid. It never occurs to some people that garments selected from a large city mail order house, are distributed so that the style becomes commonplace.

If you favor exclusiveness in dress, show your appreciation by buying from a store like this. It is upon these lines that we have built up such a vast business. With your co-operation we will continue to give you improved service and at the same time show you and your friends an up-to-date store that you all are proud of.

"Plain Ribbons Lead"

With this heading the Dry Goods Economist of New York devotes a column to style news about Ribbons. We quote a few lines from the article: "Sash ribbons expected to sell well for Fall." "Plain Ribbons indicated for first place." "Broad Sash Ribbons of great quality may be expected to come into unusual prominence." "Open Hoods to be make of Ribbon." The Girdle Sash is a Paris fashion. "Broad Ribbons not only form the Sash end, but the draped vest as well." See display in window.

Fur Repairs and Alterations.

Have you Furs to be altered or repaired? Better come in and make arrangements now, because later on there will be more than we can do, and you will probably be delayed. Materials on hand for all kinds of Shells and Collars both for Men's and Women's Coats.

Merchant Tailoring.

It is decidedly best to get your orders for Fall and Winter Clothing placed now. The garments can be delivered whenever required. From present appearances we'll soon be too busy to keep promises—too busy thereafter to make promises. The Robinson Co. Custom service is not only satisfactory, but we don't quibble with the man when, as is possible in any shop, a garment goes wrong. We show almost too many goods—the variety is perplexing, but you have the world's best before you.

"If you act like that, you'll never go to heaven," said one child to another. "You're a naughty girl!" The naughty girl paused in her rage to consider, then returned to her occupation of screaming and kicking. Reasoned with later on by a person she loved she thus delivered her opinion. "Mamie says I'll never go to heaven because I don't like nurse to pull my curls with her old comb. Well, I don't suppose I'll go for a long time, but I won't have nurses pulling my curls always. I can be good later on." And with that very reasonable conclusion she, like so many of her elders, was perfectly at ease. Mamie, upon being questioned as to whether she herself was going to heaven confidentially assured me that she had no right to go as nurse told her greedy ones "you weren't allowed in there. "And Bobby can't go either, 'cause he uses bad words," she added with a shake of her black curls. "So I suppose all this family will have to go to hell."

FLUENCY OF SPEECH.

The common fluency of speech in many men and most women is owing to a scarcity of matter and a scarcity of words, for whoever is a master of language and hath a mind full of ideas will be apt in speaking to hesitate upon the choice of both; whereas common speakers have only one set of ideas and one set of words to clothe them in, and these are always ready at the month, so people come faster out of church when it is almost empty than when a crowd is at the door.

A severe lightning and hail storm caused much damage in Kent county.

A horse-thief is alleged to have stolen a horse and buggy from Byron Beamer of Lincoln township, and set fire to the barn to cover the theft. Mr. Beamer lost his barn, machinery, horses and other stock and crops.

"Hecla" Furnace

Means Perfect Heating without Gas, Dust or Smoke.

The "Hecla" Furnace is the only Furnace with Fused Joints.

These Joints are made by fusing the steel and cast iron parts together at white heat making an indestructible joint. Fused Joints are permanently airtight. Even after 20 years' use they will not work loose or leak. They insure absolute freedom from dust, smoke and gas.

The Steel-Ribbed Fire Pot used on the "Hecla" Furnace has three times as much radiating surface as any other style of fire pot. It will save fuel for you and give you more heat. It extracts from the fire, heat that would otherwise go up the chimney.

Let us show you the 1908 "Hecla" and explain all the latest improvements in detail.

International Newspaper Bible Study Club

GOLD AND SILVER MEDALS, BIBLES, BOOKS.

Persons may join the Club at any time during the year, but after the publication of the 35 questions hereinafter explained, to qualify for the prizes. It is, however, desirable that the questions be answered as they are issued each week.

The International Newspaper Bible Study Club is for the purpose of promoting, in an organized way, a more systematic and wider study of the Bible, the basal truths of Christianity, and the problems which enter into every man's life. It is composed of all those who join a Local Club, and take up the simple course herein outlined, barring only ordained clergymen. We have the sympathetic co-operation of the latter, but it is not considered fair to have them compete for the prizes. Sunday School teachers, Bible class students, and others generally, may belong to this Newspaper Bible Study Club for its readers, and organizers will join and fulfil the conditions, that "nothing herein provided shall be faithfully carried out."

CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST.

1. Each contestant, or his or her family, must be a subscriber to this paper, and to the continuance of the contest, in order to qualify for membership in the International Newspaper Bible Study Club and this Local Club.

2. Each contestant in this local Club must answer each of the written questions, for consecutive weeks. The commencing for Sunday, August 23d, 1908, and the answers must all be in this office not later than Monday within two weeks of the close of this period, which allows two weeks grace after the close of the contest.

3. Each question must be answered separately, and the paper written on one side only. Answers must contain not less than 100 words in length and all students will write their answers on letter paper, about 8 inches by 11 inches.

4. Each answer must have the name and address of the writer at the bottom of the answer, so it can be identified, given a number, registered and then the name cut off so the examiner may know it by number only.

5. Students should be careful to understand the question before answering. Read the lesson text more than once and especially the verse, or verses, upon which the question is based.

6. Each contestant in this Local Club must be delivered to this office, and the mail be noticed at the close of the contest, and forwarded to headquarters for independent examination by competent examiners. The prizes will then be awarded according to the highest number of marks, won by members of The International Newspaper Bible Study Club, and prizes which may be awarded to members of this Local Club will be given out from this office.

THE PRIZES.

First Series—A gold medal to each of the first five contestants.

Second Series—A silver medal to each of the next five contestants.

Third Series—The Author's Bible, price $5.50, to each of the next five contestants.

Fourth Series—The book "Present Day Christianity," price $1.25, to each of the next fifteen contestants.

Fifth Series—A developed mind, an expanded imagination, a more beautiful spirit, and a more profound knowledge of the Bible and wife, for all who take this course faithfully, diligently and prayerfully. Certificates, signed by the officers of the Club, will be awarded, and in like manner each name and face will be remembered.

All who can write, and have ideas, are urged to take up the study outlined, even if the degree of their education, as the papers are not ruled from an educational or literary standpoint, but from the point of view of the capacity of their answers to think.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON BY REV. DR. LINSCOTT FOR THE INTERNATIONAL BIBLE STUDY CLUB FOR SEPT. 6th, 1908.

Saul and Jonathan Slain in Battle. 1 Sam. 31.

Golden Text.—Prepare to meet thy God. Amos 4:12.

What is the preparation necessary in order to meet God with confidence and in peace?

Verse 1.—Were the Israelites defeated because the Philistines had the better army, or was it because God was against Israel at this time?

Why was God against Israel at this time?

May we ever expect to win in any thing, if God is against us, and if not, how do you account for the apparent success of some bad men?

Verse 2.—Why did God permit the lowly Jonathan to be slain?

Is it often in these days that the innocent have to suffer with the guilty? Give some examples.

How do you justify God in permitting the innocent to suffer with the guilty?

Some of Saul had been faithful to God and to the people, how could it be just to expect them to suffer with him as the strongest with which to chastise his children?

Verse 4.—Was the death of Saul determined by God to take place at this battle? See 1. Sam. xxviii. 19.

Does the Lord know how, when and where, each one of us will die?

Granting the freedom of the will and that acts are contingent and not necessary, how can God know what a free agent will do?

Is Saul to be blamed for wanting his servant to slay him, or for finally killing himself?

Verse 5.—Under the circumstances was it wise for Saul's armour bearer not to end for or against suicide?

Verse 6.—In the long run is it possible for us to do any instance, sin can result in final happiness, and if in act, when the world and the church generally see the results in all round happiness: was that act properly taken? This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.

Verse 7.—What reason is there to believe that the wrong doing of one person, often times results in the ruin of a family, or a community, or a nation?

Verses 8-10.—In what respects are modern Philistines similar to the ancient human mutilators, warfare?

Is there any sense, or humanity, in modern warfare in killing and maiming men that can in battle, and then picking up all that are not dead, and with tender mercies and at great expense nursing them back to health?

Verses 11-13.—What had Saul done for the nation, that the inhabitants of Jabesh-Gilead remembered him with gratitude?

Is there any danger that a good man may live to disgrace himself and the cause of God?

During his recent visit to Egypt the Duke of Cannaught came across an old soldier in Cairo wearing the Mutiny ribbon. He entered into conversation with the veteran, questioning him on various matters, and chatting in a friendly way. The old man, in his turn, put the Duke with questions, and inquired whether he himself was in the Army and how he was getting on. The Duke replied that he was getting on fairly well, although, perhaps, not quite so well as he could wish. "What you want," said the old man in friendly confidence, "in the Army is brains or tremendous influence. Take my tip, my friend, and chuck it."

"It would be a blamed good circus," replied the man with the aggressive eyes and the firm mouth.

SAINT ON AN AUTOMOBILE.

Whenever the Queen Dowager of Italy drives in her new automobile, it carries mounted on the radiator, a small statuette of her patron saint, St. Christopher, to which is attributed the fact that up to the present she has escaped fatal accidents.

The talismanic charm is absent nine inches in height, and is of massive silver. On the front of the automobile, just above the water cooler, a small pedestal has been fixed, to which the figure of St. Christopher is attached when the Queen is driving.

When Her Majesty does not use the automobile the statuette is carefully conveyed to her residence, where it occupies a place of honor in one of the drawing-rooms.

PERIOD OF TRANSFORMATION.

On the same day that King Edward and the Czar of Russia met and exchanged compliments at Reval, thirteen persons, some of them women, were executed by order of Russian courts-martial for political offences. Also on the same day seventeen other agriculturists were sentenced to death in the same way by like tribunals for the same crime. This ghastly record has been presented as a background to the meeting of the two sovereigns, apparently as a lurid contrast of the principles and methods of the governments they represented.

It should not be forgotten, however, that the British nation passed through a period somewhat similar to that through which Russia is now passing. Russia is about two hundred years behind Great Britain in political development, and will have to work out her own salvation from freedom through suffering and sacrifice. The Czar is not to be blamed, though he was a free agent. It would take a very unusual man to do differently. He is part of a system that is fighting for its life with the conviction that, if its enemies were to get the upper hand in the struggle, they would be even more merciless. The spectres of kings who perished on the scaffold at the hands of revolutionaries haunt the imperial palaces of Russia and the dread years behind England, and will have to work out their own salvation and freedom through suffering and sacrifice. IMMIGRATION.

In the hope of helping to dispel a few of the many mistaken notions seemingly prevalent about immigration, I venture to address, through you, the public. As none of us are likely to live to see the time when people will cease coming in ship-loads from the old countries, to Canada, it becomes us to try to get a proper grasp and understanding of what the movement means. Like many things in this country, it is merely in the beginning—"a toiler of Great Britain could truly say to Canada, as the North said to Lincoln in 1863:—"We are coming, Father Abraham, 400,000 strong." Four hundred thousand annually will be no exaggeration before long; albeit the number this year is less than last year—"which brings me to the middle of my song."

In 1907 many benevolent individuals and societies, besides Church Armies, and committees of Municipal Councils in Great Britain were busy sending the "unemployed" out to Canada. In many instances "unemployed" was a polite way of spelling "ginger."

Tennyson's Northern Farmer expressed the opinion that, "the poor is always in debt." But noble Saxon ancestors solved the difficulty as to the needy by summarily selling them into slavery. And English slavery lasted even later than some people imagine. When that great modern whom memory our modern Orangemen do so much, to keep green—when His Sacred Majesty King James the Second became Knight of the Faith, and swayed the sceptre of Great Britain, and Ireland, and also (on a Pickwickian sense), Sovereign of France, his generals quelled the rebellion of his nephew, Monmouth. Thereupon his Chancellor, Chief Justice Jeffreys, in the "Bloody Assizes"—A.D. 1685, with inhuman impetus sent more than three hundred victims to the scaffold, and nearly one thousand as slaves to the American plantations—fair Ladies of the Court soliciting and obtaining the disposal by sale of cargoes of the poor wretches "for pinemoney".

Ages before these more modern and civilized times, Holy Mother Church had established all over England and Scotland, great monasteries whose gates were ever open, and whose inmates, however idle they latterly became, were always feeding the poor, and giving abundant alms. When Henry VIII. suppressed the monasteries, Henry VIII to suppress the monasteries, and to take unto himself their rich lands, to distribute for due consideration—mainly cash), amongst his nobility Protestant subjects—the poor for a generation fared badly. Hard times and hunger made them tumultuous, till in the reign of Henry VIII's daughter, Elizabeth, the "Poor Laws" had to be enacted, as a remedial measure, by Parliament. From that day a great class of English people have been fed, clothed, and sheltered out of parish taxes. Much ado were, too many that, being sent out to Canada, not by Government aid but by British benevolence, created that Canadian prejudice against Englishmen which so rattles the honest and worthy old countryman. Many districts of Canada, where English immigrants of this lower sort freely spent for beer and other necessaries, early last winter and other years earned the fall and summer before, and then coolly remarked, "We shan't be left to starve." Other some succeeded in failing to find work. Still, before I conclude that "the English are no good," I refined myself that I have before it said that there are thriftless Canadians as well as English.

It was as easy a disposal of the poor, to send them out to Canada, as of cattle, to Australia. One of the Archbishops at Ottawa enacted, about last year, regulations which have proved very paralyzing to the importation of paupers.

Most of the 1908 immigrants from England were sent out by the land boards on till late in their term, or till matured in them. Twelve or fifteen years ago I went into farmer-towns. Chances in those conditions of trade having crowded them out of profitable business, were a bonanza to get back upon the land. These are people of small capital, the sacrings of trades. They make excellent immigrants; but although all of them want to pass Ontario, and to make straight for the North West, when the British mind awakes to a sufficient knowledge of the value of things in this country, there will be a greater number of people stopping in Ontario and Quebec. Already, in a few years, before many Canadians have spotted all over this Province, by twos and by half-dozens, already some men and women from Great Britain quietly working and prospering. Their letters home are rarely read, and fully believed. I have seen the thinking agent's window a changing knot of people instantly crowded, as a letter pasted against the inside of the glass so as to display the signature and perhaps a page or two. Another plan truthful as more than counteract the ignorant, and often malicious falsehood, about Canada, frequently printed in overseas newspapers. Some of the English upper classes seem to think they have a mortgage upon the lives and characters of the poor, and of them generally.

In this country we have nothing like the British flocking-agents, except, perhaps, the down-town ticket agent. Emigrants are travelling the world over, in great numbers, all the time. The land-prospect sells tickets to them, and supplies them with foreign money, all, of course, for a consideration, which constitutes his living. The booking-agent requires to take out a license, and he has an Association which holds conventions, etc. A ticket for New Zealand, or Australia costs more, and here the steamship commission than one for Canada. He would naturally dissuade emigrants from choosing Canada; but that our Dominion Government pays him a bonus of one pound on every genuine tiller-of-the-soil, or domestic, to whom he sells a ticket for Canada. This is the only bonus, or direct money-aid the Dominion Government gives to immigrants. The Officials of every steamer bringing immigrants has to make out for the Canadian Government a sworn return in duplicate of the names and particulars of every immigrant his ship carries. So also the local employment agents, appointed to receive, distribute, counsel, and befriend immigrants here in Ontario, have to make full returns to Ottawa. Thus it is possible to trace immigrants from start to finish; and also if those who employ them will take the trouble to send in statements, a trustworthy official information and facts is heaped up for the effectual advantage of capital and capitalists.

The Canadian who ill-feeds, over-works, under-pays, or any otherwise imposes upon the immigrant, is as much a criminal against humanity, but he is giving his country a most telling and a most evil advertisement.

The old country is full of people who are so crowded as to suffer—they and their innocent and capable children. In the preamble, in April, 1867, I was standing cat-window, a number of men in a field, holding in front of themselves a pole to whose middle was attached a cultivator, which they were dragging after them through long rows of some sort of roots, for vegetables. What wages must they have been receiving, when they were cheaper than horse-power? That it took several of them to draw at once as one mule, is offset in part, of course, by the fact that the man would know better than to step upon any of the plants.

In Jersey Island, whence come the creamery cows, I saw, last February, six horses and seven men breaking up with one mammoth plow about four acres of land. The horses were hitched one abreast before the huge implement—the driver's seat had at its back many feet of world. One man was between the sticks of timber which served it for handles, they wobbled him about a bit, I noticed. Another man drove the two front horses. A third man with a maul walked up and down the ploughed ground breaking and shovelling lumps; and at each of the four corners of the ploughed land was a man with a spade ready to turn the plow out into the furrows. Each furrow was over a foot deep. Two days, or two days' work, are there, here—The harvest is great, and the laborers few. Jeff.

It is my humble and deliberate judgment—when I am in the very midst of workers—of workers, I say,—I am doing good in the very best way that I were trying to preach the Gospel, and superintend Sunday School. And when the meagre chance and wretched prospects that confront the children in the old countries, is contrasted with the opportunities—bounded but by their own abilities,—before them if they were in Canada, it gives me a foolish heart-ache that I have to cease thinking about them.

On account of the grown-up my symthem to this, or to any other locality, my mission was to impart information which was needed, by face to face talks, by writing for the papers, and by public lectures.

GEO. ANSON A.

St. Vitus Dance.

A Severe Case Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

St. Vitus dance is a disease of the nervous system, due to a morbid condition of the blood. It is a common affliction with children and attacks females oftener than males. The only cure for it is plenty of pure blood, because good blood is the life food of the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure even the most severe forms of this trouble because they enrich the blood supply, thus carrying the necessary life food to the nerves. Mrs. Wallace Lena, then a child of ten years, became afflicted with St. Vitus dance. At that time she was attended by two doctors, but they failed to cure her, and that something was wrong, was plainly evident from the daily increase in her attacks. She was naturally a spirited child, but after the disease took hold of her she became unable to hold anything in her hands, and we are obliged to take her out of school. She was afflicted terribly, she could not hold a cup to her lips without suddenly letting it fall out of it, knew from the by the symptoms that her ailment was St. Vitus' dance, and disputed us saying her cured, as it was looked on as a fatal disease ailment. She became so bad that she could not hold herself still for the space of ten seconds. Her hands and feet were continually moving and last of all she would contort her features so that she was living her age in actual expression. At this stage I chanced on a paper containing a testimonial in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, describing the cure of a little girl afflicted as mine was. I hastened to get a couple of boxes of the Pills, and by the time she had used them I noticed a decided change for the better, and purchased a further supply of them. When she had taken seven boxes she was entirely cured. Although I was thoroughly educated I was afraid the disease might return, but after a year's trial and she has since enjoyed the best of health. I cannot thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enough for what they did for my child, and I hope my experience may be of benefit to someone afflicted as my daughter was."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pill's are sold by all medicine dealers or may be obtained by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FIELDING, SASK.

To the Editor of the Beaver, Napanee,—

Dear Editor,—I thought I would send you a few lines to let the readers of your valuable paper know something of the West, and the outlook of the harvest. We of Ontario have not experienced any of the frost, in lots of ways, and we know very little of the hot winds here are. The settlers of Saskatchewan seem to be a thrifty lot, and as far as I could see are making good progress in getting the country in the four years they have made great improvements in every way. There are many homesteads yet taken up as homesteads within 100 miles of Yorkton, the only town as yet settled are the C. P. Railway's lands, and they are holding them too high for most people to take them, and in some places they will not sell them, as they are holding out for higher prices. In my mind I think a great wrong has been done this country in giving to the railways every other section, as it leaves the farmers too far apart and it takes a large tract of land will and uninhabited. The settlers are bothered very much by a weed called golden thistle, and also about the size of a black squirrel, and are very destructive on the grain. They live in the ground in holes. They tunnell about in the ground and soon destroy the grain. The Government gives the settlers poison (fine) to destroy them, but it is hard work, and almost impossible to do it. As long as the C. P. R. lands are not occupied, and in a great many cases the C. P. R. refuses to sell their land, especially if they want a new line of railroad in some other section.

Now the climate here is all that can be desired, very clear and bracing, no matter how warm it is, the wind is cool enough to make it pleasant, so that you do not mind it so much. Any one in Ontario who is not able to invest in a farm, and would like farm-work, this is the place, for all they need is three good horses and sufficient implements, and they can if frugal soon get along. So they can be better off in three years here than they probably could be in Ontario in twenty years. Of course, they need not expect luxuries, for such things here are expensive; good plain food is not very high.

The harvest is now about all secured, and in most places the yield is fine. Mr. Wm. Sharp has now in three years of his homestead, and he has 45 acres of wheat mostly a fine crop all cut, and 20 acres of oats, and he has free breaking with one mammoth plow about four acres of land per day. The horses were hitched one abreast before the huge implement—the driver's seat had at its back many feet of world. One man was between the sticks of timber which served it for handles, they wobbled him about a bit, I noticed. Another man drove the two front horses. A third man with a maul walked up and down the ploughed ground breaking and shovelling lumps; and at each of the four corners of the ploughed land was a man with a spade ready to turn the plow out into the furrows. Each furrow was over a foot deep. Two days, or two days' work, are there, here—The harvest is great, and the laborers few. Jeff.

It is my humble and deliberate judgment—when I am in the very midst of workers—of workers, I say,—I am doing good in the very best way that I were trying to preach the Gospel, and superintend Sunday School. And when the meagre chance and wretched prospects that confront the children in the old countries, is contrasted with the opportunities—bounded but by their own abilities,—before them if they were in Canada, it gives me a foolish heart-ache that I have to cease thinking about them.

On account of the grown-up my symthem to this, or to any other locality, my mission was to impart information which was needed, by face to face talks, by writing for the papers, and by public lectures.

GEO. ANSON A.

A Severe Case Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

St. Vitus dance is a disease of the nervous system, due to a morbid condition of the blood. It is a common affliction with children and attacks females oftener than males. The only cure for it is plenty of pure blood, because good blood is the life food of the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure even the most severe forms of this trouble because they enrich the blood supply, thus carrying the necessary life food to the nerves. Mrs. Wallace Lena, then a child of ten years, became afflicted with St. Vitus dance. At that time she was attended by two doctors, but they failed to cure her, and that something was wrong, was plainly evident from the daily increase in her attacks. She was naturally a spirited child, but after the disease took hold of her she became unable to hold anything in her hands, and we are obliged to take her out of school. She was afflicted terribly, she could not hold a cup to her lips without suddenly letting it fall out of it, knew from the by the symptoms that her ailment was St. Vitus' dance, and disputed us saying her cured, as it was looked on as a fatal disease ailment. She became so bad that she could not hold herself still for the space of ten seconds. Her hands and feet were continually moving and last of all she would contort her features so that she was living her age in actual expression. At this stage I chanced on a paper containing a testimonial in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, describing the cure of a little girl afflicted as mine was. I hastened to get a couple of boxes of the Pills, and by the time she had used them I noticed a decided change for the better, and purchased a further supply of them. When she had taken seven boxes she was entirely cured. Although I was thoroughly educated I was afraid the disease might return, but after a year's trial and she has since enjoyed the best of health. I cannot thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enough for what they did for my child, and I hope my experience may be of benefit to someone afflicted as my daughter was."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pill's are sold by all medicine dealers or may be obtained by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EAT WHAT YOU WANT

BUT FIND THE WAY TO DIGEST WHAT YOU DO EAT.

The first thing to do in the case of indigestion and stomach weakness is to strengthen the muscular walls of the stomach and intestines, so that they will be able to cause thinks about them. In such a way can this be done as well as by taking a Mi-ona tablet before each meal. This restores strength to the stomach muscles and stimulates the pouring out of gastric juices, then the food digests readily and you begin to get the full benefit from what you eat.

Mrs. Mosely, wherever you have sick headache, heartburn, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, spots before the eyes, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms that are the direct result of indigestion.

T. B. Wallace gives with every 50 cent box of Mi-ona stomach tablets a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy cures.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Paynton, Sask., Aug. 11th, 1908

Editor of The Beaver :—

My dear Sir,—I have received so many letters from my old friends in Lennox and Addington, asking me about the state of the crops out here, that I thought best to send for publication a statement of the state of the crops in the different portions of Saskatchewan I have travelled through. Mr. Mollard and I had a six days' trip of over 240 miles across the prairies, so we had a chance to see some of the country. We drove through wheat on the 18th of July over 4 feet; barley and oats equally as good. Potatoes and vegetables the best I have ever seen. No wonder that the last year broke in Canada West with a better outlook than this present one. The farmers had made the weather themselves they could not have made it better. Seeding was at least four weeks earlier than last year. The weather has been hot and dry for ground so that all over the country among producers there is nothing but thankfulness and joy. This is a very new settlement, and the third year for any of the farms. So they have not had a chance to have very much broken yet. Any crop that is sowed here looks fine, and will likely be. We have been here over four years, so see barley cut on the 6th of August, and oats nearly ready to cut. The Preston wheat I brought out with me and sowed is beginning to turn, and promises to be a fine crop, better than the Red Fife alongside of it.

I would like to say to any one in the East who is living on rented farms or working a farm on shares, or living on farms mortgaged, so that the interest is as much as the farm would rent for, or the man who is working by the day, to pull up stakes and come to the West, where there is plenty of homesteads yet left, and fattened lands for sale from $5.00 to $12.00 per acre. Leave your old machinery and old ideas in the east, bring nothing but the best pattern you can bring. Bring all the good horses and cows you can, as they are scarce here. I was offered $70.00 for a grade cow, and would not take it. I have 3 horses, 40 head of cattle, 16 of them milking, the rest of them young stock, and 2 pigs, all of which I have for sale. Will be here for another year. I will close for this time, hoping I have not trespassed too much on your valuable space.

Sincerely yours,
ALEX WALKER,
Mervin P.O., Sask.

LONG LAKE.

As I was one of the Long Lake baseball players that played ball with Sharbot Lake, on the 27th inst., I beg to express my feelings along with the rest of the team in the way we were treated on that day. On Monday, Aug. 24th, we, the Long Lake baseball team, received a challenge from Sharbot Lake to play their team a match game, and the winning team was to receive a nice ball and bat, and as we defeated the latter team by a score, we have not received said ball and bat as they said that they had none to give away. They also had an umpire from their own village who called out strikes when there were balls. They also had a ball that had a bunch of wire in one of it sides which laches long, and was in this condition when they came on the field. But if Sharbot Lake will send for the ball and bat before the end of September, 1908, we will play them a ball game of nine innings, same to start at 2 o'clock p.m. Thanking you, for your space in your valuable paper.

WEDDING BELLS.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. David Burgess, Palace Road, was the scene of a very pretty little wedding on Wednesday, Sept. 2d, at 2.45 p.m., when their third daughter, Miss Grace, was united in marriage to Mr. John Wesley Salisbury, of Yarker. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. W. McCall, of Trinity church, in the presence of just a few of the bride's most intimate friends. The bride was becomingly attired in navy blue and was unattended. The bride's travelling suit was brown chiffon panama cloth, with hat and gloves to match. The young couple received many beautiful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Salisbury left on the 4.25 train for Toronto, and on their return they will reside in Yarker. Their many friends wish them a long and happy life.

A SUGGESTION.

The season for baseball is drawing to a close and the citizens of Napanee and vicinity have been treated to as good a sample of this outdoor sport as has been seen here in many years. After the seniors began practising one could go around town and see the small boys—the coming senior—with a ball and bat on most every available spot in the town, getting acquainted with the game. These young lads are the ones to watch as they will have to look forward to us in the future for ball players. Would it not be a splendid idea for some of our enterprising citizens to donate a few cups to be played for next summer as the teams to be composed of a town league. The senior team could then have the pick of all the players, and would have plenty of material to draw from. There are an number of coming ball players among the young fellows and a little encouragement shown them by our citizens would be greatly appreciated. Think it over.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

During the electric storm Tuesday night the smelting works, owned by the Deseronto Iron Company, were struck by lightning and totally destroyed. The fire broke out in the charcoal shed, which was being built for the purpose of storing a large supply of charcoal. The iron works has been closed down for five months past. The plant was being fitted out, and was expected to start about the first of October. The Standard Chemical Company, of Toronto, had been negotiating with the Deseronto Company for the past month to take over the plant, but the negotiations had not been completed. The old charcoal shed, containing about twelve thousand bushels of charcoal, the casting room, the engine and boiler houses, the cold air elevator, the ore sheds, holding several thousand tons of ore, all were destroyed. The only thing left standing is the cupola, built of fire brick and iron. The loss is estimated at over $100,000.

Your New Coat Is Here!

The Fall and Winter Styles for 1908 on Exhibition in the Cloak Department

We invite everybody to see the MADILL Coats. One thing we are sure of, they are not the same as every other store shows. We have always striven for distinction in our Coats—individuality—character. That has been, we think, one of the dominating features of our cloak department. This year is certainly no exception. High grade charatter coats at such nominal prices. For instance:

Our $8.00 Coat is made of splendid quality cheviot, in black, with pretty velvet collar with silk braided points. Notch collar with perfect cut lapel, good broad shoulders, 50 inches long, lots of cloth in the skirt, plain sleeve, half lined loose coat, $8.00.

At $10.00 our showing is wonderful in Black, Blue, Green and Brown cloths, made of excellent quality heavy coating. The many styles include the famous "Empire", "Semi-fitting", "Figure Fitting" and loose fitting cloaks. Strictly tailor made with and without velvet collars, self-strapping, some stitched, in some cases buttons are used. 45 to 50 inches in length. In every style the shoulder has a broad effect. Half lined sleeves with and without cuff. Your choice, $10.00.

AT $15.00

Our assortment, you might say, has no limit

in regard to designs, although the styles are Directoire, Empire, semi and figure fitting; also the loose coat. But the designs in the trimmings are many. Some have exquisite silk braid strapping designs in the back or near the shoulders. The sleeves with cuffs are beautifully trimmed. The Coats in every case are WELL TAILORED. 45 inches to 50 inches long, with and without pockets. Buttons are used to quite an extent for trimming purposes. Every one a beauty, $15.00.

"PLAIN CLOTHS ARE THE CORRECT STYLES FOR COATS."

$18 and $20

At these prices the above styles are shown in the best quality of Beaver Coating, particularly well tailored, considerable strapping being used as the principal trimming, there also being lots of buttons used, 45 to 50 inches long, and as this promises to be a very popular garment this season, we have larger assortments than heretofore .... $18.00 and $20.00.

Each one of the above styles in similar trimmings, strappings, etc., are shown in $11.00, $12.00, $13.00, $16.00 and $17.00, with unlimited assortment. Any size in any coat in the house from 32 inches to 44 inches bust measure.

Our stock embraces only the best makers in Canada. The "Northway Garments" are considered and recognized the most perfect fitting garments in the trade to-day. Made under the most rigid sanitary conditions. Every garment positively made on the premises. We are sole selling agents for these popular garments in Napanee. This department enjoys the largest cloak business in this section of the country. The salespeople in this department are at your service any time you wish to inspect our splendid showing of these model garments.

WEDDING BELLS.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. David Burgess, Palace Road, was the scene of a very pretty little wedding on Wednesday, Sept. 2d, at 2.45 p.m., when their third daughter, Miss Grace, was united in marriage to Mr. John Wesley Salisbury, of Yarker. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. W. McCall, of Trinity church, in the presence of just a few of the bride's most intimate friends. The bride was becomingly attired in navy blue and was unattended. The bride's travelling suit was brown chiffon panama cloth, with hat and gloves to match. The young couple received many beautiful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Salisbury left on the 4.25 train for Toronto, and on their return they will reside in Yarker. Their many friends wish them a long and happy life.

IN LOVING MEMORY.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Hester Ann Young, who departed this life August 31st, 1907:

Far beyond this world of change,
Far beyond this world of care,
We shall find our missing loved ones
In our Father's mansion fair.
Forget her? No, we never will;
We loved her here, we love her still,
Nor love her less because she's gone
From here to her eternal home.

WEDDING BELLS.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ephrem Etchett, Parma, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday, Sept. 2d, at 11.38 a.m., when their only daughter, Willimenia, was united in marriage to Mr. Herbert Bunk, of Adolphustown. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. S. Boyce, pastor of the F. B. Methodist church, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. A sumptuous repast was served at one o'clock. The young couple received many beautiful presents in silverware, cut glass and china. The present from the groom to the bride was a beautiful solid gold chain. They also received from the bride's father and groom's parents, $125 in gold. The happy couple left on the 4.25 train for Toronto, to be guests of the King Edward next week, thence to Niagara Falls, Rochester, Syracuse, and Utica. On their return they will reside in Adolphustown. Their many friends wish them a long, happy and prosperous life.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. THE DIRECTOIRE GOWN THIS FALL.

Paris says.—Extreme Directoire modes for the autumn—the short skirt slashed at the sides, satin knickerbockers in place of petticoats—the highest of high collars and the slimest of slim silhouettes, writes Grace Margaret Gould, the fashion expert, in Woman's Home Companion for September.

New York says: Directoire modes. Yes, but first let us modify them. The American woman likes to take her fashions from France, but always subject to her own ideas. She wants to be in style, of course, but she wants more to be herself. This will be specially evident this fall.

The influence of the Directoire will be felt in the lines of the new gowns and separate coats, in neckwear and in hats, but with our best-dressed women the conspicuous feature of the Directoire modes will be omitted.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

HEALTH SAVING EXPLAINED BY A NAPANEE CITIZEN WHO KNOWS FROM EXPERIENCE.

Many Napanee people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help.

Sick kidneys are responsible for a great amount of suffering and ill health.

Mrs. P. O'Neill, of West st., Napanee, Ont., says:—

"Many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble had caused Mr. O'Neill almost constant suffering. He was unable to straighten himself up from the sharp pains that would come across his back in the kidney region. He would take cold very easily and it would always settle in his back. The urine would become highly colored and the kidney secretions would be very irregular and frequent. He had tried a number of remedies without relief. Booth's Kidney Pills were recommended and procuring a box at Mr. Wallace's Pharmacy, he soon found relief. His kidneys were strengthened and the urinary disorders were quickly regulated."

Sold by dealers. Price 50 cents. The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont., Sole Canadian Agents.

WEDDING BELLS.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ephern Eitchett, Parma, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday, Sept. 2d, at 11.30 a.m., when their only daughter, Willimenia, was united in marriage to Mr. Herbert Buck, of Adolphustown. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. S. Boyce, pastor of the F. E. Methodist church, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. A sumptuous repast was served at one o'clock. The young couple received many beautiful presents in silverware, cut glass and china. The present from the groom to the bride was a beautiful solid gold chain. They also received from the bride's father and groom's parents $125 in gold. The happy couple left on the 4.25 train for Toronto, to be guests of the King Edward hotel, thence to Niagara Falls, Rochester, Syracuse, and Pulaski. On their return they will reside in Adolphustown. Their many friends wish them a long, happy and prosperous life.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

LIVERPOOL DAIRY PRODUCE REPORT WEEK ENDING 28th AUGUST, 1906.

Cheese.

There has been but a moderate demand, and holders have been willing to meet buyers, and make some concessions the latter part of the week from the figures prevailing earlier. Cables also are coming easier, with reports of dull markets in Canada, and have influenced importers here, who have been more desirous of making progress.

The home make of Cheese is plentiful, and although quality is not regarded, quotations for these goods are slightly easier.

We report values to-day —

Full cream States and Canadian—Flats and Cheddars—White and Colored, 55 to 56 per cwt.

English Cheese, according to quality, 52 to 70 per 120 lbs.

Butter.

Continental supplies are liberal, and there are also free imports from Ireland, and market has ruled some what on the week, but is now steady. Siberian Butter is still in free supply, but there is no accumulation. There is but a very moderate enquiry for under-priced Butter for Confectionery purposes.

THE DIRECTOIRE GOWN THIS FALL.

Paris says— Extreme Directoire modes for the autumn—the sheath skirt slashed at the sides, satin knickerbockers in place of petticoats, the highest of high collars and the slimest of slim silhouettes, writes Grace Margaret Gould, the fashion expert, in Woman's Home Companion for September.

New York says— Directoire modes? Yes, but first let us modify them. The American woman likes to take her fashions from France, but always subject to her own ideas. She wants to be in style, of course, but wants more than to be herself. This will be specially evident this fall.

The influence of the Directoire will be felt in the lines of the new gowns and separate coats, in neck wear and in hats, but with our best dressed women the conspicuous features of the Directoire modes will be omitted.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

HEALTH SAVING EXPLAINED BY A NAPANEE CITIZEN —WHO KNOWS FROM EXPERIENCE.

Many Napanee people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know those organs need help.

Sick kidneys are responsible for a great amount of suffering and ill health.

Mrs. P. O'Neill, of West st., Napanee, Ont., says:

"Many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble had caused Mr. O'Neill almost constant suffering. He was unable to straighten himself up from the sharp pains that would come across his back, in the kidney region. He would take cold very easily and it would always settle in his back. The urine would become highly colored and the kidney secretions would be very irregular and frequent. He had tried a number of remedies without relief. Booth's Kidney Pills were recommended and procuring a box at Mr. Wallace's Pharmacy, he soon found relief. His back strengthened and the urinary disorders were quickly regulated.

"Who's there?" cried Shirley from within.

"It is I—Mr. Ryder. I wish to speak to you."

"I must beg you to excuse me," came the answer. "I cannot see you."

Jefferson interfered.

"Why do you want to add to the girl's misery? Don't you think she has suffered enough?"

"Do you know what she has done?" said Ryder, with pretended indignation.

"It is useless to insist, Jefferson," tion. "She has insulted me grossly. I never was so humiliated in my life. She has returned the check I sent her last night in payment for her work on my biography. I mean to make her take that money. It's hers. She needs it. Her father's a beggar. She must take it back. It's only flaunting her contempt for me in my face, and I won't permit it."

"I don't think her object in refusing that money was to flaunt contempt in your face or in any way humiliate you," answered Jefferson. "She feels she has been misled by your personal interests—your financial interests—you, with so many millions you can't count them!" Scornfully she added: "Come out into the light—fight in the open! At least let him know who his enemy is!"

"Stop! Stop! Not another word!" he cried impatiently. "You have diagnosed the disease. What of the remedy? Are you prepared to reconstruct human nature?"

Confronting each other, their eyes met, and he regarded her without resentment, almost with tenderness. He felt strangely drawn toward this woman who had defied and accused him and made him see the world in a new light.

"I don't deny," he admitted reluctantly, "that things seem to be as you describe them, but it is part of the process of evolution."

"No," she protested; "it is the work of God!"

"It is evolution!" he insisted.

"Ah, that's it," she retorted; "you evolve new ideas, new schemes, new theories—and worship different gods —gods of your own making."

He was about to reply when there was an interruption at the door, and Theresa entered, followed by a manservant to carry down the trunk.

"The cab is downstairs, miss," said the maid.

Ryder waved them away imperiously. He had something further to say which he did not care for servants to hear. Theresa and the man precipitately re-treated, not understanding, but obeying with alacrity a master who never brooked delay in the execution of his orders. Shirley, indignant, looked to him for an explanation.

"You don't need them," he exclaimed, with a quiet smile in which was a shade of embarrassment. "I came here to tell you that I"— He stopped as it unable to find words, while Shirley gazed at him in utter astonishment. "Ah," he went on finally, "you have made it very hard for me to speak." Again he paused and then with an effort he said slowly: "An hour ago I had Senator Roberts on the long distance telephone, and I'm going to Washington. It's all right about your father. The matter will be dropped. You've beaten me. I acknowledge it. You're the first living soul who ever has beaten John Burkett Ryder."

Shirley, startled, turned with a cry of mingled joy and surprise. Could she believe her ears? Was it possible that the implied Colossus had capitulated and that she had saved her father? Had the forces of right and justice prevailed after all? Her face transfigured, radiant, she exclaimed breathlessly:

"What, Mr. Ryder, you mean that you are going to help my father?"

"Not for his sake, for yours," he answered tersely.

Shirley hung her head. In her moment of triumph she was sorry for all the hard things she had said to this man. She held out her hand to him.

"Forgive me," she said gently. "It was for my father. I had no faith. I thought your heart was of stone."

Impulsively Ryder drew her to him. He clasped her two hands in his and looking down at her kindly, he said awkwardly:

"So it was; so it was! You accomplished the miracle. It's the first time I've acted on pure sentiment. Let me tell you something. Good sentiment is bad business, and good business is bad sentiment. That's why a rich man is generally supposed to have such a hard time getting into the kingdom of heaven." He laughed and went on: "I've given $70,000,000 apiece to three universities. Do you think I'm fool enough to suppose I can buy my way? But it the attack is neglected and becomes severe, speedy relief will come in most cases and a persistent use of Hommi will cure.

The directions for using it vary, but the principal is always the same, that of destroying all the germs in the air you breathe and having it reach the air passages with dry medication from the Pine and Eucalyptus forests.

Remember that liquids or moisture is barred from the Bronchial Tubes and Lungs. It's the dry air of Hyomei that cures the spot. R. Wallace guarantees it.

"You're beaten me. I acknowledge it. You're the first living soul who ever has beaten John Burkett Ryder."

Shirley, completely vanquished, opened his arms, and Shirley sprang forward and embraced him as she would have embraced her own father. A solitary tear coursed down the financier's cheek. In thirty years he had not felt or been touched by the emotion of human affection.

The door suddenly opened, and Jefferson entered. He started on seeing Shirley in his father's arms.

"Jeff, my boy," said the financier, releasing Shirley and putting her hand in his son's, "I've done something you couldn't do. I've convinced Miss Green —I mean Miss Lonsmore—that we are not so bad after all."

PILES
persons suffer at some time or other from Piles!
So says a great medical authority. There is no disease causes more pain and wretchedness than piles; and no other almost immediate ease Zam-Buk has won the praise of thousands of sufferers. If you are suffering let Zam-Buk cure you. Mr. Neil Devoe, Webbwood, Ont. suffered with piles eight years. A few boxes of Zam-Buk cured him. He since says:—"I have had no return of the trouble so that I know the cure is permanent."
Mr. C. B. Frost, Lennoxville, P.Q., writes: "I have proved Zam-Buk a great cure for piles from which I suffered acutely for a long time."
Zam-Buk also cures cuts, ulcers, burns, abscesses, poisoned wounds, boils, eczema, and all skin troubles. 50c. a box, all druggists and stores or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 3 boxes for $1.25.

destruction when not properly used. It destroys individuals as it does nations. It has destroyed you, for it has warped your mind."

"Go on," he laughed bitterly, "I like to hear you."

"No, you don't, Mr. Ryder; no you don't, for deep down in your heart you know that I am speaking the truth. Money and the power it gives you has dried up the wellsprings of your heart."

He affected to be highly amused at her words, but behind the mask of evil-best indifference the man suffered. Her words seared him as with a redhot iron. She went on:

"In the farthest edges they fought for possession, but they fought openly. The feudal barons fought for what they stole, but it was a fair fight. They didn't strike in the dark. At least they gave a man a chance for his life. But when you modern barons of industry don't like legislation you destroy it, when you don't like your judges you remove them, when a competitor troubles you you squeeze him out of commercial existence. You have no hearts, you are machines, and you are cowards, for you fight unfairly."

"It is not true; it is not true," he protested.

"It is true," she insisted hotly. "A few hours ago in cold blood you doomed my father to what is certain death because you decided it was a political necessity. In other words, he interfered with your personal interests—your financial interests—you, with so many millions you can't count them!" Scornfully she added: "Come out into the light—fight in the open! At least let him know who his enemy is!"

"Stop! Stop! Not another word!" he cried impatiently. "You have diagnosed the disease. What of the remedy? Are you prepared to reconstruct human nature?"

Do you think I'm fool enough to suppose I can buy my way? But rious with promise again now that the dark clouds were passing away. She thought of Jefferson, and a soft light came into her eyes as she foresaw a happy wifehood shared with him.

"Why so sober?" demanded Ryder. "You've gained your point. Your father is to be restored to you. You'll marry the man you love."

"I'm so happy," murmured Shirley, "I don't deserve it. I had no faith."

Ryder released her and took out his watch.

"I leave in fifteen minutes for Washington," he said. "Will you care to go alone?"

"I trust you gladly," she answered, smiling at him. "I shall always be grateful to you for letting me convert you."

"You won me over last night," he rejoined, "when you put up that fight for your father. I made up my mind that a girl so loyal to her father would be loyal to her husband. You think," he went on, "that I do not love my son. You mistaken. I do love him, and I want him to be happy. I am capable of more affection than people think. It is Wall street," he added bitterly, "that has crushed all sentiment out of me."

Shirley laughed nervously, almost hysterically.

"I want to laugh, and I feel like crying!" she cried. "What will Jefferson say? How happy he will be!"

"How are you going to tell him?" inquired Ryder uneasily.

"I shall tell him that his dear, good father has relented, and"—

"No, my dear," he interrupted, "you will say nothing of the sort. I draw the line at the dear, good father act. I don't want him to think that it comes from me at all."

"But," said Shirley, puzzled, "I shall have to tell him that you"—

"What!" exclaimed Ryder. "Acknowledge to my son that I was wrong, that I've seen the error of my ways and wish to repent? Excuse me," he added grimly. "It's got to come from him. He must see the error of his ways."

"But the error of his way," laughed the girl, "was falling in love with me. I can never prove to him that that was wrong."

The financier refused to be convinced. He shook his head and said stubbornly:

"Well, he must be put in the wrong somehow or other. Why, my dear child," he went on, "that boy has been waiting all his life for an opportunity to say to me, 'Father, I knew I was in the right, and I knew you were wrong.' Can't you see," he asked, "what a false position it places me in? Just picture his triumph!"

"He'll be too happy to triumph," objected Shirley.

Feeling a little ashamed of his attitude, he said:

"I suppose you think I'm very obstinate." Then as she made no reply he added, "I wish I didn't care what you thought."

Shirley looked at him gravely for a moment, and then she replied seriously:

"Mr. Ryder, you're a great man, you're a genius, your life is full of action, energy, achievement. But it appears to be only the good, the noble and the true that you are ashamed of. When your money triumphs over principle, when your political power defeats the ends of justice, you glory in your victory. But when you do a kindly, generous, fatherly act, when you win a grand and noble victory over yourself, you are ashamed of it. It was a kind, generous impulse that has prompted you to save my father and take your son and myself to your heart. Why are you ashamed to let him see it? Are you afraid he will love you? Are you afraid I shall love you? Open your heart wide to us. Let us love you."

Ryder, completely vanquished, opened his arms, and Shirley sprang forward and embraced him as she would have embraced her own father. A solitary tear coursed down the financier's cheek. In thirty years he had not felt or been touched by the emotion of human affection.

The door suddenly opened, and Jefferson entered. He started on seeing Shirley in his father's arms.

"Jeff, my boy," said the financier, releasing Shirley and putting her hand in his son's, "I've done something you couldn't do. I've convinced Miss Green —I mean Miss Lonsmore—that we are not so bad after all."

So says a great medical authority. There is no disease causes more pain and wretchedness than piles; and no other almost immediate ease Zam-Buk has won the praise of thousands of sufferers. Mr. C. B. Frost, Lennoxville, P.Q., writes: "I have proved Zam-Buk a great cure for piles from which I suffered acutely for a long time."

"Father!" he exclaimed.

"That's what I say—father!" echoed Shirley.

They both embraced the financier until, overcome with emotion, the senior struggled to free himself and made his escape from the room, crying:

"Goodby, children! I'm off for Washington!"

THE END.

MOOSE IN CAPTIVITY.

Not Difficult to Domesticate, but Hard to Keep Alive.

"The reason so few moose are seen in captivity in the parks and zoos of the country is not because they are naturally too wild to be domesticated, but because they usually do not long in captivity," said a St. Paul man. "My father was for many years a settler in northern Minnesota, and at different times in his experience he had three moose on his homestead, which he reconciled him as their master.

"All the animals were captured when they were very young, and in each instance it took them only a few days to become apparently attached to the father and his small farm. For two or three weeks he would keep them fenced in and then would allow them to roam around at will. They would be gone for two or three hours, or perhaps half a day at a time, but always came back all right. By allowing them the run of the premises this way they practically the same condition as if they were wild in the forest, and therefore always in good health, but the moment any of them were shipped to the city a change was noticeable.

"Two of the animals were sold to city park associations at different times, and in each instance they soon finally died. They seemed willing enough to remain in the parks, but conditions were not such as they were used to, and from the first it was to be seen that they were fading in health. A moose can stand all sorts of hardships in the woods, but when he is in captivity lack of exercise or lack of proper food or fresh air or something else puts him on the down grade, and as a rule he passes in his checks in a few weeks or a few months at the outside.

"One of the animals my father owned was a handsome bull, and he was trained to harness. The animal could pull a good sized load and travel through the woods with a sleigh behind him at a very lively clip. This third moose was one day shot by a hunter near the house. So all three animals met with an untimely fate, which goes to prove, I suppose, that man should not interfere with the plans of nature."—Duluth Herald.

Ideas of the Soul.

The old Egyptians thought the soul was born with a human face and human hands, which, on the death of him in whom it dwelt on earth, flew to the gods, by him. Drawings and sculptured figures show this little winged soul, sometimes represented as perched by the sarcophagus, touching the mummy, in a last farewell before it rose in beaveward flight.

Among the Greeks the soul was thought of as a tiny human figure. In Roman days the butterfly was taken as its symbol. In mediæval pictures and reliefs we see it leaving the mouth of the dead, either as a child or as a tiny mature man—as, for example, is shown in the Campo Santo of Pisa in Orcagna's fresco of the "Triumph of Death."

In northern lands we learn from folklore the soul not seldom left the body as a mouse, or a snake. It was on the former superstition that the story of the bishop of Hatto was built up—as, for example, is shown in the Campo Santo of Pisa in Orcagna's fresco of the "Triumph of Death."

An Impediment to Plain Speaking.

"Down in Pike county," said an Arkansas statesman, "we had a trial a stabbed once where a man named Johnson was on the stand. Johnson was for the defense, and the way he was setting things straight was a caution.

"'Here,' said the attorney for the prosecution when he took Johnson in hand, 'I want you to drop prevaricating. Don't you know you are under oath?'

"'Stop what?' asked the witness.

"'Stop prevaricating.'

"The witness drew himself up with great dignity. 'Well,' he said, 'I'd like to know how a man can help prevaricatin' when he's lost two front teeth!'"

"The Spoilers"

By Rex. E. Beach.

The above is the title of our new story which commences in next week's Beaver.

This is a story of that great north country of which it has been said, "There's never a law of God or man runs north of fifty-three;" a tale of impetuous emotion, of brute strength and courage, of swift and passionate love and hate; a tale vigorous, forceful and absorbing, which tells itself without fine words; a story of the hunger for gold and the hunger of man for woman, breaking no interference or rivalry, going straight for its object, as did the primitive man before the time of laws and conventionalities; of civilized man turned back to savagery and losing no manhood in the turning. Torry Swahle, O reader, with these rugged men of Nome, and you shall be refreshed and strengthened in their company.

Be sure and read the opening chapters.

The Best Flour.
Dafoe's Nonesuch,
Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flours in the market.

When buying flour, ask for Dafoe's and entrust your home mail, thereby producing bread and biscuits that you can purchase cheaper than the product of the Western mills, which has to be transported those long distances. Dafoe's flour is milled from the finest wheat grown in Manitoba and Alberta. The grocery complains if the former or the merchants sends to Toronto or to outside points for an article he can get at the home store just as good, but he does not hesitate to say four from mills hundreds of miles away, and sells you an inferior flour for more money than you can purchase the home product. Try every bag of which is guaranteed.

Choice Cornmeal and Buckwheat Flour always on hand. Feed grinding a specialty with our latest feed mill, second to none. Also a full stock of the best Ashcroft coal, also in the market for the purchase of all kinds of grain.

Ask for prices at the Big Mill, before purchasing your Flour, Feed or Coal.

BE THERE A WILL WINDOW IN THE BAY. To see your home when shut in by storm. To see the sun shine, and the birds sing. To see the flowers grow. To see the children play. To see the world as it is. To see the world as it was. To see the world as it will be. To see the world as it should be. To see the world as it could be. To see the world as it would be. To see the world as it might be. To see the world as it must be. To see the world as it ought to be. To see the world as it should be. To see the world as it could be. To see the world as it would be. DUSTING FURNITURE.

The proper method of dusting furniture has to be learned before it can be performed to perfection.

Girls fancy that a duster is a duster in each hand, which is entirely erroneous. Experienced housemaids use one in the left hand for the best finish in the matter of marks when lifting and cleaning furniture.

Each piece should be wiped right and left from the top downward to the floor, and after the duster has been well shaken out of the window, it must be carried to the other side of the room and again from the top downward with both hands. This is a saving of time and ensures all sides being equally bright.

A damp cloth is the best for all dusters, although many housemaids will not use one, claiming that it injures the polish on the furniture. This objection is absurd, for if the cloth is clean the moisture will not harm the furniture.

It may remove the gloss, but this can easily be brought back when the surface of the wood is dry by rubbing hard with a dry, soft cloth.

The advantage is that instead of allowing the dust to fly about the room it is all gathered on the cloth, which keeps it from settling anywhere else.

When using the damp duster only go over a small space at one time, rinse the cloth well and there will be no danger of injuring the woodwork.

Great Carpet and Rug Exhibit in Our Own Store.

Our fair exhibit this year will all be in our own store. During the past few weeks we've made some important changes in the Carpet section, in the way of new fixtures. New stocks, increased space and fixtures have transformed the general appearance of our Carpet and House Furnishing Department.

For Fair week we are making an extra display of Rugs and Carpets. The display will be very interesting to all lovers of nice homes. If you have visitors with you be sure and have them see our Carpet and Rug display. You may tell them without any reserve "that no other town in Canada the size of Napanee can show you such a fine Carpet and Rug store."

Linoleums and Floor Oilcloths.

During the next few weeks there will be many new floors to cover. For kitchen there are many advantages in having floor covered with Linoleum. For dining rooms, where there are men with heavy boots, a good Linoleum will fill the bill better than any other floor covering. Linoleums being made of cork, they are easy on ankles; they also stop draft. So much for the necessity of them.

Next a word or two about design, quality and value. Just now our assortment is at its best. Our floral block, wood and tile designs. They are very pretty and the choice is good to all kinds of rooms. We only keep guaranteed makes. The values will appeal to you. Let us show you.

New York Made Kimonas

We've opened up the nattiest lot of Kimonas, long and short styles that we have ever shown. They are all New York made goods. The cut, fit, and style are above the average. Long Kimonas, $1.50, $2.00, $3.00. Short Kimonas 75c to $1.50. Try them on. Then note designs and fit.

Our new lot is here. All made by the same maker as last year's supply. Lined throughout with flette. Trimmed with silk frills, medallions and braids. Price range, $2.00 to $5.00.

Black Silk Petticoats—Extra Value $5.00.

We consider that our $5.00 Black Silk Skirt is the best value we've had in five dollar Petticoats for a long time. Would like to have your opinion of it.

WAY—McKEOWN.

On Tuesday, September 1st, at the Church of the Assumption, Erinsville was celebrated the most popular wedding of the season, when Miss Eleanor M. McKeown became the bride of Ambrose Way. The bride looked charming in a costume of silver brocaded silk, and white felt hat with laree plume. The bridesmaid, Miss Agnes Evans, Moscow, wore a navy blue suit, and white picture hat, while the groom was ably assisted by his brother, Edmund J. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Wollie Dwyer, Napanee. After the ceremony the wedding party drove to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McKeown, where the wedding breakfast was served to about thirty guests. The groom's gift to the bride was a silver tea service, to the bridesmaid a gold brooch, and to the best man a pair of gold cuff links. The bride's going away gown was brown and green striped cloth, with hat to match. Amid showers of rice and good wishes the happy couple left on the 3.45 train for Toronto and Niagara. Upon their return they will reside near Tamworth. As Mr and Mrs. Way are two of our most popular young people, we all join in wishing them a bon voyage through life.

—A number of faithful followers of Isaac Walton have been enjoying themselves at Hay Bay lately. Last week Messrs. Will Vanalstine and H. D. Spencer landed six nice muscalonge, and on Labor Day a party consisting of Messrs. Fred Scott, James Roblin, Ralph Ham and Stan Wales succeeded in capturing a lunge, as did also Messrs. D. H. Spencer, Robt. Smith and Albert B. Rose. The muscalonge fishing bids fair to be excellent this fall.

—Unfortunately, though an oversight in the notice concerning the lawn social in aid of the Organ Fund, held at the Vicarage on Aug. 27th, was omitted. It was a most successful and pleasant gathering, and all present expressed themselves pleased in the evening's entertainment. The grounds were very prettily illuminated with Chinese lanterns and electric light. A good programme was rendered. Mrs. Burritt, Miss Edna Ashley, Miss Marion Wilson, and Miss Chenoweth, and Dr. Cameron and Mr. Fisher contributed much to the enjoyment of the evening by their several numbers. The receipts were most gratifying, and the officers and Executive of the Churchwoman's Guild wish to thank all those who so generously contributed to the success of the evening, both socially and financially. It is the intention of the Church woman's Guild to hold a series of these entertainments through the coming season. The second one will take place next Thursday evening, when Miss Luella Hall will give an Organ Recital, in the Church of St Mary Magdalene. Everyone cordially invited. Secretary.

CANOE CLUB REGATTA

The final regatta of the Napanee Canoe Club was held on Wednesday afternoon over their usual course, and proved a very interesting and enjoyable time to the many spectators. The day was an ideal one, except for a high wind at the first part of the afternoon, causing a great deal of trouble in starting, especially in the ladies' doubles and the tub race. A feature of the day was the handicap half-mile singles with turn, for a cup given by Mr. L. Kenay, Chenoweth winning by 36 seconds over the next man. Another good amusement was a long bout of tilting between Messrs. Dafoe and Anderson, neither being able to knock the other out. It was as much a matter of paddling and manoeuvre of canoes due to Mr. Carroll who paddled for Anderson, and Mr. Chenoweth who paddled for Dafoe. It finally ended with the swamping of Anderson's canoe, the crew settling with it with honors divided.

The results were as follows:

Senior singles—1 Chenoweth, 2 Loynes, 3 Dafoe.

Junior singles—1 D. Jemmett, 2 B. Jemmett, 3 Conway.

Crabs—1 Chenoweth, 2 Dafoe, 3 D. Jemmett.

Fours—1 Carroll, Steacy sr., Dafoe, Grange; 2 Loynes, Belfie, D. Jemmett, Cleland; 3 Chenoweth, Conway, B. Jemmett, Miller.

Ladies' tandem—1 Miss Herrington and Miss Cameron, 2 Miss E. Parks and Miss Z. Parks, 3 Miss G. Grange and Miss G. Miller.

Doubles—1 Chenoweth and Conway, 2 Loggie and D. Jemmett, 3 Anderson and H. Steacy.

Ladies' and Gents' tandem—1 F. Chenoweth and Miss A. Chenoweth, 2 J. G. S. Loynes and Miss Loynes, 3 D. Jemmett and Miss Z. Parks.

Gunwale doubles—1 Dafoe and Carroll, 2 Grange and B. Jemmett, 3 Loynes and D. Jemmett.

Let us show you how easy it is to shake the

"Hecla" Furnace

The "Hecla" has four grate bars. Each one can be shaken separately. This means that you can shake down just the part of the fire where the ashes are, without disturbing the rest of the coals.

With "Hecla" Triangular Grate Bars, you can get rid of all the ashes—save coal—keep the fire bright and clean—and do away with sifting ashes, because no fresh coal or half-burnt clinkers come down in the ashpan.

We would be pleased to talk over the furnace question with you and show you, part by part, just why the "Hecla" Furnace is the best for you to buy. Come in any time.

The Emancipation Of the Chaperons.

By ALICE LOUISE LEE.

Copyright, 1905, by Alice Louise Lee.

"HI!" Merriwether stretched his legs out luxuriously in front of the grate and pulled at his pipe. "A Christmas house party at The Pines." Then after a pause, "Who are invited?"

His nephew leaned against the mantelpiece and stuffed his hands into his pockets as he enumerated the guests, the uncle keeping up a running and caustic comment:

"Engaged—going to be—introduced for matrimonial purposes—engaged—the same." The enumeration ceased. "Yes, I see myself helping to chaperon your house party. I stroll into the reception room and stumble on an engaged couple. I sneak into the library and am frowned out again by a newly introduced couple. I hang into the music room and overhear a proposal. No, thank you, Roy; I shall spend Christmas in peace and my own room."

Roy picked up his hat and moved toward the door. "Modern house parties are not conducted along the lines you've laid down, uncle. Change your mind and judge for yourself." He turned the knob. "By the way, I didn't mention the other chaperon, did I? It's Mrs. Angell, Bertha's widowed aunt, you know." With this parting shot, which he knew was effective, Roy discreetly retreated.

After he had gone Merriwether sat an hour staring at the fire and pulling away at a smokeless pipe. Then he arose and looked earnestly at himself in the mantel mirror. "We're apt to run down," he apostrophized his reflection; "apt to run to seed, we bachelors. Now, this he-lad's see, it's six months out of style, and Gertrude used to be—hum." He stepped to the phone and called his valet, outlining that his mind had already undergone the change Roy hoped for.

Ten days later he arrived at The Pines just in time to dress for dinner. He was accompanied by a man and a smart lot of luggage, accessories which made so marked a change in his appearance that when at 6 o'clock he descended to the lower hall Bertha Morroe, awaiting her aunt at the foot of the stairs, surveyed him in delighted amazement.

"Why, Uncle Bruce," she exclaimed "you look so fine I scarcely knew you!" Bertha was his nephew's fiancee and already claimed relationship in private to the uncle. "I'd make Roy wear evening clothes in the morning if he had such a splendid figure—so filled out, you know."

Merriwether, following her into the living room, laughed grimly at the doubtful compliment. "Oh, he'll tip the scales at 220 soon enough, don't worry!"

"You surely don't look that stout," began Bertha, and, turning abruptly toward the entrance, finished with, "Does he, auntie?"

Gertrude Angell swept past her niece and met Merriwether's outstretched hand cordially. "Look? Why, he looks surprisingly like the Bruce Merriwether I used to know so well."

"Fifteen years ago," was on the end of Merriwether's tongue, but he checked himself just in time. Gertrude probably ignored lapses in time as women have a habit of doing, he thought. But surely hers was a face, a form, a bearing, which had so successfully withstood time as to entitle her to the appellation of youth. Her brown hair had not lost its luster, nor had her blue eyes lost aught of their sparkling insolence of life, while she carried herself with her old time spring and vivacity.

Merriwether noted all these things as he sat opposite her at dinner. His memory flashed picture after picture before him—the primary days in their old home school, their grammar room betrothal, the warm friendship of later years, which had meant something more to him; then her marriage and life abroad. As he looked at her he had the uncomfortable feeling that, although her birth had antedated his by but a year, she was many years his junior.

He was just characterizing himself as "old" when his nephew's voice aroused him and added point to his reflection. "Tomorrow morning we skate," announced Roy joyfully. "I've had the pond back here cleared for action, and the ice is O. K." Then he added carelessly, "By the way, Uncle Bruce, I forgot to tell you to bring skates along, but I can easily provide you with a pair."

Merriwether quaked inwardly, but made no reply until after dinner, when he backed his nephew into a corner and addressed him privately and forcefully. "I've not been on skates for ten years, and I don't intend to make a spectacle of myself now by any means."

"Why, uncle—er—you know, that makes things rather awkward, for Mrs. Angell does all those things so well, and—er—she don't want her to feel bored here."

"Oh!" frowned Merriwether. "In that case I'll try, but watch out for the exhibition of a chapter in the 'Pickwick Papers'" and he turned abruptly into the ballroom.

"Are you looking over the scene of former triumphs?" asked a gay voice beside him. And Mrs. Angell moved across the room to straighten a candle in one of the candelabra.

Merriwether noted with admiration her free, light step. She was a superb specimen of womanhood, but he fervently wished she had appeared older. "Why is it," he asked impulsively, "in considering her question, "that women retain their youth so much longer than men?"

She paused with her hand on the candle and looked back. "I think," she replied thoughtfully, "it's because they insist on doing youthful things."

"There it is again!" he thought, with an internal groan. He would be obliged to skate and dance and do all the other uncomfortable things which forty years and 220 pounds shrink from. Still as he watched her move about the room the burden of it did not seem so onerous after all.

Therefore he danced not badly, but laboriously, all the while admiring the graceful ease of Gertrude Angell's motions.

"At least," he determined resolutely, "I'll not be caught skating, as I was dancing, without a bit of practice." It was 1 a. m. when he made this resolution and loosed the command to his man, "Peter, get me up at 7—unless," in sudden inspiration, "it should be storming."

Promptly at 7 he was awakened in a rebellious frame of mind. "Stiff as a cart-horse," he grumbled. "I hope it's snowing like blazes."

The man raised the shade and looked out. "Sky clear as a whistle, sir."

So, with his sleep cut short two hours at both ends of the night, Merriwether dragged himself and the pair of skates, produced by his thoughtful nephew, out to the pond behind the hill. For an hour he skinned his knees, bumped his head and disturbed the equanimity of his temper before he was able to move alone with moderate speed and keep his feet under him.

When he went in to breakfast he was thankful for a few moments alone in front of a glowing grate fire. He stretched his aching legs toward the heat and rubbed the back of his head where a bump was appearing which is not laid down in physiological charts and pains from which were darting in every direction. He listened idly to voices in the hall until his attention was chained by two comments made just outside the door.

"Isn't she a perfect delight of a chaperon? And so young too! She can't be thirty."

The reply was given in a doubtful tone. "Why—e—e, yes, she must be all of thirty."

"Forty-one," muttered the listener decorously, the light of his new resolve shining again in his eyes.

At 10 o'clock the entire party went out to the pond, and Merriwether skated and skated and skated until his teeth were clinched in desperation and his forehead knitted in his efforts to hold out as long as Mrs. Angell did.

That he was becoming a man of one idea he acknowledged to himself that afternoon on the sleigh ride. "What Gertrude dares, I dare," he told himself in feeble jest. That sleighing party was a nightmare to him for days afterward. The drifts were deep, and the sleigh was overturned again and again, generally with Merriwether at the bottom of the heap, owing to the fact that sleighs incline readily in the direction of 220 pounds. Then, to vary the monotony of the tip-overs, there were miles of hillsides with a southerly exposure where the sun had melted the snow and obliged the party to walk.

Merriwether toiled up the slopes, husbanding his wind by maintaining silence, watching Gertrude's elastic steps mercifully and feeling his resolutions in respect to youthfulness ooze from his chilled finger tips.

"All down but one last climb!" cried Roy as the horses stopped at the foot of a steep rise. "This is our last hill."

"Thank the Lord!" said Merriwether devoutly behind his mustache. He watched his chance when the attention of the others, especially Gertrude, was directed elsewhere, and then, assisting his pedal extremities laboriously over the side of the sleigh, he fell on them heavily, trusting to luck rather than to his tired legs to keep him upright.

She paused and looked back.

Near the end of their climb he remarked to Mrs. Angell, with all the nonchalance he could command, "I should think you ladies would be a bit tired."

A light laugh put him to shame, and a pair of dancing blue eyes met his in a glance which stripped him of fifteen years and led him back to the days when he had walked beside her with never a thought of fatigue. "Tired!" she returned carelessly. "And by such a little trip as this?"

That reply, coupled with the day's unparalleled exertions, turned the tide of Merriwether's resolutions. In his room before dinner he eased his aching bones in a morris chair and determined to return to the city next morning. He would be old and sensible and comfortable once more. He would forget Gertrude as long as he could not keep up with her youthfulness.

But alas for his determination! He nearly forgot his bruises and sprains that evening in the charm of Mrs. Angell's presence, and he noticed, too, with a pang of something very like jealousy, that Briggs, the youngest man in the party, occupied his spare moments looking in her direction.

"I'll see what the weather promises for tomorrow," was his irresolute comment as he reached his room at midnight and noted that Peter had obediently packed his things ready for the 9:10 train. "If it should storm, maybe"— was his last conscious thought, and then he drifted off into a land where Gertrude spent her Christmases with him beside a quiet hearthstone and chaperoned house parties no more.

Next morning, when he awoke, the snow was driving against the window, while the wind whistled savagely through the trees. Merriwether turned over with a deep grunt of satisfaction. There could be no sleighing, no skating, no tobogganing, and it was as this, and that night was Christmas eve and the Christmas tree. He had purchased an exquisite copy of "Monna" for Mrs. Angell. It was a poem they had once read together, and he wondered if his memory of the day would touch her. With these thoughts he drifted back into sleep, and the morning train went thundering cityward without him.

But his triumph over the state of the weather was short lived. At the breakfast table his nephew curdled his blood by the announcement of the plans for the Christmas tree, which yet stood in the forest a mile across lots. "Two of the men are sick this morning, fellows, so we'll have to fall into line and fetch the trees," Roy proclaimed, with a relish born of twenty-three years and warm blood.

The "fellows," including Merriwether, worked in the storm until noon before the trees were properly cut, trimmed, cleaned and set up in the ballroom ready for the decorations and gifts. The ladies had the decorations in charge, but Merriwether found there was no rest for the weary. He balanced himself perilously by the hour on the top of stepladders, which swayed and creaked ominously under his weight; he climbed stairs to fetch packages from the billiard room; he searched for lost hammers and knelt on misplaced tacks until he relegated Christmas and house parties to the lower regions.

At last the trees were decorated, and Roy called the party into the music room to practice Christmas anthems. Merriwether saw his fellow workers safely into the music room; then he dragged himself upstairs for a relaxing smoke, only to find his fire out and his chamber chilly.

Shoving his aching feet into slippers, he got himself into a smoking jacket, filled his pipe and descended to the library. The library lay back of the living room, far from the music, and it contained an inviting couch, at which Merriwether had looked longingly, but had not found time so far to occupy.

He pushed aside the curtains at the entrance with a broad sweep of his hand and stepped within. Then he stopped abruptly. The couch was occupied. "I beg your pardon, Gertrude. I thought you were singing."

"Singing!" she responded crossly, struggling into a sitting posture. "Why, I've not a shred of voice left to sing with!" She did not smile, but passed her hand across her eyes in a gesture which caused a great light to break in on Merriwether.

"You're tired!" he accused in a ringing voice of triumph.

She leaned back, resting her head against the wall. "Tired?" she repeated in an intense voice. "I'm half dead with the awful pace of these two days. If I were a big healthy man now," glancing resentfully at the proportions of the man beside her, "I might be able to endure everything and yet feel fresh, but, being a woman and forty-one—"

"Gertrude," interrupted Merriwether in a tone of solemn joy, "are you forty-one?"

"Of course I am," she responded almost irritably. "You know that I am."

"Ye-es," he replied vaguely, coming nearer, "but I didn't know that you knew it."

"I have every reason to know it"—the tears were near the surface now—"when skating gives me the rheumatism, and dancing the headache, and that sleigh ride"— She spread her hands out in a gesture of despair. "I can't endure it any longer. I'm going home tomorrow on the 9:10 train and leave you to chaperon. Nothing seems to fire you." The tears had reached her lashes, and she turned her head away.

Merriwether sat down beside her unbidden. "Gertrude," he began in a voice in which rang a satisfaction out of harmony with his announcement, "the exertion attendant on chaperoning this house party and keeping up with you has given me the rheumatism in every joint and muscle, and not only the headache—the effect has penetrated to my disposition, which is"—

A door opened somewhere, and a burst of music interrupted him. "Peace on earth, good will to men."

The door closed, and silence reigned in the library. A realization of the spirit of the words came to Merriwether. His light manner dropped from him. He leaned over and laid his hand on Gertrude's. "Let's be old and peaceful together, dear. Don't go back tomorrow. Spend Christmas here—with me."

The firelight played softly over the woman's face. She glanced up with a smile which was tremulous in spite of her mocking words, "Now that I think of it, Bruce, I haven't bought my ticket yet, and—it is more comfortable to be old?"

THE COME AND SEE SIGN

PUBLIC INSPECTION INVITED FROM 8 A.M. TO 4 P.M. SATURDAYS EXCEPTED. LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO.

This sign is permanently attached to the front of the main building of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

What Does This Sign Mean?

It means that public inspection of the Laboratory and methods of doing business is honestly desired. It means that there is nothing about the business which is not "open and above-board."

It means that a permanent invitation is extended to anyone to come and verify any and all statements made in the advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Is it a purely vegetable compound made from roots and herbs — without drugs?

Come and See.

Do the women of America continually use as much of it as we are told?

Come and See.

Was there ever such a person as Lydia E. Pinkham, and is there any Mrs. Pinkham now to whom sick woman are asked to write?

Come and See.

Is the vast private correspondence with sick women conducted by women only, and are the letters kept strictly confidential?

Come and See.

Have they really got letters from over one million, one hundred thousand women correspondents?

Come and See.

Have they proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured thousands of these women?

Come and See.

This advertisement is only for doubters. The great army of women who know from their own personal experience that no medicine in the world equals Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female ills will still go on using and being benefited by it; but the poor doubting suffering woman must, for her own sake, be taught confidence, for she has might just as well regain her health

SAVE THE CHILDREN.

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are reasonably safe during the hot weath of months. Stomach trouble, cholera infantum and diarrhoea carry off thousands of little ones every summer, in most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets cure these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child will prevent the trouble coming on. And the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that Baby's Tablets contain no opiate or harmful drug. Mrs. Geo. Mineault, jr., Mont Louis, Que., says:—"Before giving Baby's Own Tablets to my little one she suffered greatly from colic and stomach troubles, and tried a great deal. The Tablets soon cured her and she is now a plump, healthy child who does not look as though she ever had an hour's ill ness. You can get the Tablets from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WEDDING AT ENTERPRISE

At three o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, September 2d, at the Methodist church, Enterprise, the marriage took place of Miss Tressa Keech, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Brown, and Alonzo Jackson, only son of Mr. Cornelius Jackson, the Rev. Mr. Whyte officiating. The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her step-father, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Lora Lockwood, was attired in white liberty satin, with trimmings of chiffon and laces, and white hat with plume. She was attended by her niece, Miss Hattie Bell, attired in white silk, while Stanley M. Wagar was best man. After congratulations had been offered the wedding party drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a table ladened with dainties was awaiting. About twenty-five guests were present. After the usual toasts, the bride changed her bridal attire for a travelling suit of blue chiffon broadcloth, with hat to match, and Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, accompanied by friends, drove to the station, and took the six o'clock train for Toronto and Niagara Falls to spend their honeymoon. The groom's gift to the bride was a purse of money, to the bridesmaid a ring set with turquois and pearls, to the groomsman a gold tie pin, and to the organist a gold crescent broach set with pearls.

CHARLEY GRAPEWIN.

Will be seen at the Grand Opera House Kingston, on Monday, Sept. 14th, in "The Awakening of Mr. Pipp," and the fact that Mr. Grapewin is under the sole direction of that astute manager, John W. Dunne, is sufficient assurance that this merry musical farce will be given a perfect presentation. A good character is one of Mr. Dunne's hobbies, and as this attraction is one in which he has devoted his best efforts to it, so well has he worked that there is very reason for us to anticipate Charley Grapewin at his best this time.

SUCCESSFUL BALL

What proved a most successful and enjoyable evening was the first annual ball of the Napanee Canoe Club in the town hall on Wednesday evening, there being quite a large gathering and many guests from outside points. The Gananoque orchestra provided all that was necessary to the promotion of a good dance with their delightful music. The hall was very prettily decorated with flag and bunting of blue and white, the colors of the club. Much credit is due to the patronesses for the decorations and their efforts towards the successful issue of the function. The patronesses were: Mrs. W. A. Daly, Mrs. F. F. Miller, Mrs. R. A. Leonard, Mrs. W. S. Herrington, Mrs. J. W. Robinson, Mrs. G. C. T. Ward.

FITCHETT—BUCK

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. Ephraim Fitchett, Parma, on Wednesday, Sept. 2d, when his only daughter, Miss Wilhelmina, was united in marriage to Mr. Herbert Buck, of Adolphustown. Rev. W. S. Boyce, B.D., performed the ceremony in the presence of about forty guests, the bridal couple standing under a bower of evergreens. After the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served. The bride, one of the popular young ladies of Parma, was the recipient of many useful and valuable gifts. The happy couple left amidst the congratulations of their friends to take train at Napanee for western points of interest.

GOLF AT PICTON.

The Napanee Golf Club played a friendly game with the Picton club on Labor Day. The trip was made in Mr. F. F. Miller's motor "Fire," and proved a most enjoyable one. The Picton Club's links are admirably situated on the bay, the clubhouse being on the brow of the hill with a magnificent view over the water. The ladies of the Picton Club were most generous hostesses, and provided entertainment for the Napanee players.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE LIBRARY.

"The Free Lances," by Captain Jack Brand, late of the U. S. Navy. Thrilling stories of the sea fighters of all nations in their long cruising and desperate battling for honor and treasure.

"The House in the Water," and other animal stories, by Chas. G. D. Roberts. This author needs no introduction to the public. His books are interesting and true to life, and this, his latest book, is one of his best.

"The Congo and Coasts of Africa," by Richard Harding Davis. In this volume Mr. Davis sustains his reputation as a keen observer of strange people as he has met in his wanderings among the native tribes of Africa.

"Farm, Cottage, Camp and Canoe in Maritime Canada," by Arthur P. Silver. This is a much more interesting book than its title would indicate. It is dedicated to Earl Grey, and the introduction is by Lord Strathcona.

"The History of the Jews," by Henry Hart Milman, D.D. The author begins his work with the following sentence: "The Jews, without return to their religious belief, are among the most remarkable people in the annals of mankind," and in a scholarly manner he proceeds to demonstrate this rather sweeping assertion.

"Colonial Memories," by Lady Broome. If the book hunter would like an enjoyable visit with a bright intellectual woman who can relate her Colonial experiences in simple well chosen language he cannot do better than get this book.

"Big Game at Sea," by Charles Frederick Holden, will be in great demand among sportsmen and may be read with interest by any one.

Furs for Exhibition Week.

The extensive use of Brown, Black and Tan shades insures the continued popularity of sable and mink for the coming season, consequently our style display is larger and more varied than ever before.

As designs vary from the small fur collar with ribbon trimming, to the long wide caperine, the most careful description will fail to convey an adequate conception of the graceful styles. LENNOX FAIR

FINE WEATHER, GOOD SHOW AND LARGE CROWD.

The mornings of Tuesday and Wednesday last, the dates of our annual County exhibition, were fair and cool, and produced fine show weather.

The racing on the first day were two events:

FREE-FOR-ALL.

George Chambers	1	2 2
Dr. Pulkingham	3	3 3

FARMERS' RACE.

Ed. Kaylor	1	1 1
Pat. McGuiness	2	2 3
Dr. Pulkingham	3	3 2
McCormick	4	4 4

The track was in good condition, and a very small crowd was in attendance.

THE NIGHT SHOW.

The attendance on Tuesday evening was the largest ever gathered in the hall, and besides the articles on exhibition, the music, baby show and speech by J. Lockie Wilson, Supt. of the Association, of Fall Fairs, constituted a first class evening's entertainment.

SECOND DAY.

The Society has for years been fortunate in having fine weather for its shows. Wednesday's attendance was larger than the second day last year, when over three thousand were admitted at the gates.

On the grounds the exhibits were fully as numerous as in the past, and at no show in the Province could be found finer animals in the various classes of horses, cattle, sheep, pigs, poultry, etc.

The judges were all gentlemen of experience, from a distance, and so far as we could learn, distributed the red, blue and yellow tickets fairly.

Inside the palace there were the usual displays of everything grown on the farm and articles made in our thrifty farmers' wives and daughter. Besides the Fall Fair Directors' Secretary, the one showing of furniture, other places were made to M. S. Madole, A. Babcock, Hawley & Mayhew, R. H. Allen, Upstairs Madill Bros. made a grand display of furs, dress goods, carpets, mantles, etc. Other fine displays upstairs were by J. J. Hanley and F. W. Vandusen.

The receipts this year amount to nearly a thousand dollars. Dr. Ming, the energetic local Secretary-Treasurer, and Directors, and all who took an active interest in our show are to be congratulated on the success of the

The Spoilers

By REX E. BEACH.

Copyright, 1905, by Rex E. Beach

This is a story of that great north country of which it has been said, "There's never a law of God or man runs north of fifty-three;" a tale of impetuous emotion, of brute strength and courage, of swift and passionate love and hate; a tale vigorous, forceful and absorbing, which tells itself with few words; a story of the hunger for gold and the hunger of man for woman, brooking no interference or rivalry, going straight for its object, as did the primitive man before the time of laws and conventionalities; of civilized man turned back to savagery and losing no manhood in the turning. Tarry awhile, reader, with these rugged men of Nome, and you shall be refreshed and strengthened in their company.

CHAPTER I.

GLENISTER gazed out over the harbor at the myriad lights of anchored ships, then up at the crenelated mountains, black against the sky. He drank the cool air burdened with its taints of the sea, while the blood of his boyhood leaped within him.

"Oh, it's fine—fine," he murmured, "and this is my country—my country, after all. Dex. It's in my veins, this hunger for the north. I belong here."

Careful you don't bust," warned Dexter. "I've seen men get plumb drunk on mountain air. Don't expand too strong in one spell."

Fred L. Rooper laughed and filled his pipe. He was a handsome, villainous fellow, promptly averting any danger of the air's too tonic quality.

"Glad, what a smudge!" sniffed the younger man. "You ought to be in quarantine."

"I'd rather smell like a man than talk like a fool," retorted Glenister. "An hour of meditation with rhapsodies on nature when your aesthetines ain't fettered up to the gratifyin' point of tobacco."

Dexter laughed, inflating his deep chest. In the gloom he stretched his muscles restlessly, as the call of vigor stirred him.

They were lounging upon the dock, while before them lay the Sagata Maria ready for the midnight sailing. Behind slept Unalaska, quaint, antique and Russian, resting amid the fogs of Bering sea. Where a week before mild eyed natives had fled and cowered among the cliffs, the cannon now a frenzied horde of gold seekers passed in their rush to the new El Dorado. They had come like a locust cloud, thousands strong settling on the edge of the Smoky sea, waiting the going of the ice that barred them from their golden fleece—from Nome the new, where men found fortune in a night.

The mossy hills back of the village were ridged with graves of those who had died on the out trip the fall before, when a plague had gripped the land, but what of that? Gold glittered in the sands, so said one of the survivors. Therefore men came in armies. Glenister and Dextry had left Nome the autumn previous. Now they returned to their own land.

"This air whets every animal instinct in me," Glenister broke out again. "Away from the cities, reader, with these rugged men of Nome, and you shall be refreshed and strengthened in their company.

"You don't mean that timbern you boys were going to lynch for claim jumpin'?"

"Identical." Remember me tellin' you about a good turn I done him once down Guadalupe way?"

"Greaser shooting scrape, wasn't it?"

"Yep. Well, I noticed first off that he's gettin' fat rhight livin' fat, too. Also, a soft spot, like he was playin both ends against the center. Also he wore di'mon's fit to handle with tongs.

"Says I, lookin' at his side elevation, 'What's accented your middle syllable so strong, Mexico?'

"Prosperity, politics an' the Wall dorf-Astoria,' says he. It seems Mex hadn't forgot old days.

"Says I, 'Some of 'em have, Mex,' Bill. I'm goin' to pay you back for that Moralez deal.'

"Says he, 'Don't you do it, Glenister. I'm a corner man, now.'

"That's a bygone."

"Listen here, says he, an' seein' he was in earnest I let him run on.

"How much do you value that claim on Anvil creek?'

"Hard tellin', says I. If she holds out like she run last fall, there ought to be a million, clear in her.'

"How much'll you clean up this summer?'

"Bout four hundred thou-and, with luck.'

"Bill,' says he, 'there's still a poppin' an' you've got to catch the ground like you always do. Them rattlesnake. Don't never leave em get a grip on it or you're down an' out.'

NEWBURGH.

The annual reception of the Epworth League to the High and Public School staff and students, was held in the basement of the Methodist church on Monday evening last. Neat cards with a cut of the church and calendar of church services were distributed among the large number of students present. On the inside were the names of the months "Who are you?" and the idea was that each should take his or her card to those they knew and get them to write down their names there. In this way all got acquainted, and the evening's time was thus spent. A short but interesting programme followed, at the close of which were then served. It was one of the most pleasant receptions the League has ever held.

His many friends will join him every success in his new work.

Mr. Wintle takes this opportunity of thanking the Wardens and members of St. John's Sunday School, for their handsome gift in token of regard and friendship toward him. He also wishes to thank the officers and members of the congregation who have helped him to carry out successfully the Sunday work.

DEATH OF OGDEN HINCH

A Man of Splendid Capabilities and Energy—An Exemplary Life.

After a long illness Ogden Hinch, one of Winnipeg's most prominent business men, passed away at his residence, 180 River avenue, at 9.30 last night.

He had been suffering from nervous prostration for many months and had been for a considerable time prevented from pursuing his many activities in connection with his business and the Presbyterian church, with his customary energy. Most of his relatives were present at the end, which was not unexpected.

Mr. Hinch was 56 years of age, and had lived in Winnipeg six years during that comparatively short time having helped to build up a business in Napanee. He was frequently asked either publicly or in his capacity and energetic business life his friends with the idea that it should be utilized for the benefit of the country. But Mr. Hinch preferred to concentrate his energies upon his own business and the philanthropic interests of the Presbyterian church, to which he has always been devoted. The people of Napanee also tried to persuade him to be a candidate for the mayoralty chair, but he refused.

Few years ago he came to this town and four years later arrived in Winnipeg and helped to found the Manufacturers and Western Supply company, of which he was president and manager. He is described by those who worked with him as a man of immense energy and enthusiasm. He used to encourage his friends to invariably carried them through successfully, never allowing a task to be left half done.

Mr. Hinch was an old resident of the church, and speaking of him in the congregation will sustain in his death, the Rev. Dr. G. R. Wilson, said: "Mr. Ogden Hinch will be much missed by the people of Augustine church. He was a regular and devout attendant at all the church services, had a very affect ion ate nature and was much beloved by the congregation. He threw himself heartily and with indomitable energy into any work he undertook. He was a kind and loving father and a model citizen. He joined the congregation some six years ago and shortly afterwards was elected an elder of the church and since that time filled the office day school. He performed the duties of both offices very faithfully and acceptably until compelled to retire quite work by ill health. Even then he still followed all the works of the congregation with undiminished keenness and affection. His great energy in the religious education of the young, and it was one of his dearest wishes to be spared to see the Sabbath school building complete. He took a deep interest in his business, has conducted services and for a number of years, in addition to contributing generously to other objects, supported a home mission station at his own expense."

Mr. Hinch leaves a son, Herbert H. Hinch, vice-president and secretary-treasurer of the Manitoba and Western Colonization Company, and three daughters, Mrs. F. E. Smith, Victoria, B.C., Misses Lillian and Bertha Hinch, who live at home. He is also survived by two brothers and two sisters. They are Messrs. Thompson, of Carman, and William Hinch, of Turtle Mountain, Man., and Mrs. (Dr.) A. C. Bailey, West Toronto, and Mrs. Bailey, Hesson, Manarne, Ont.

The funeral will take place to Elmwood cemetery, but final arrangements will not be completed until relatives outside the city have been communicated with.

Mr. Hinch was a life-long Mason and achieved high rank and it is possible that that body will wish to take part in the obsequies.—From Winnipeg Tribune, Sept. 10th, 1908.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism, a remedy that will straighten the twisted, distorted crooked cripples, not from bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible, but I can now surely kill the pains and gouge of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—not a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy is now a perfected, dependable prescription. Without a doubt, the most successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it is offered all curable cases of this horrid and much dreaded disease. These absolutely genuine tablets, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And they relieve, almost, from the first dose—surely pass from the system—and without any bad results—forever. There is now no real excuse—actual reason to suffer longer—this sad help. Would, and in confidence recommend

If there is the slightest doubt in the minds of any that Dandruff germs do not exist, they are forthwith compelled by the fact that a rabbit inoculated with the germs became bald in six weeks' time.

It must be apparent to any person therefore that the only prevention of baldness is the destruction of the germs, which can be successfully accomplished in from one to four cent. of cases by the application of Kowkeo's Herpicide.

Dandruff is caused by the same germ which causes baldness and can be prevented with the same remedy—Kowkeo's Herpicide.

All Lennox and Addington has a pride in the growth of its greatest store—The Robinson Co.

This week it was reported throughout the surrounding country that Robinson's was in ashes. A customer in referring to the rumor said these words, "You cannot imagine what a feeling came over me when I heard your store was burned down."

You don't think of Robinson's as a mere sordid store. To be sure it was founded and is operated to make money for its owners.

But it is the life of its owners — their pleasure as well as their business, and so into it has crept and developed their love of the beautiful; their ethics; their desire to be helpful to those whose business lives are bound up with the store's.

Study it and classify it properly among the great features of the counties.

Election Day, Oct. 26th.

The general elections for the Dominion will be held on Oct. 26th. Upon his return from Sudbury Falls Sir Wilfrid Laurier proceeded to Government House and obtained Earl Grey's consent to the dissolution of the tenth Parliament of Canada. A requisite attended meeting of Council convened at 1 o'clock and it was then decided that the appeal to the country should be made on the date mentioned, namely Monday the 26th, October, in the field.

EARLIER THAN EXPECTED

The date fixed for the general election is somewhat earlier than had been anticipated. This is due to the prompt action with which the electoral lists have been arriving at the office of the Secretary of State. The lists for Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Ontario are well filled, while those for four of Manitoba constituencies are already in. In Saskatchewan Alberta and the Yukon district the lists will be as prepared by the enumerators. Returning officers have not yet been appointed in all the constituencies.

On Wednesday night about 10.30 a telephone message was received from Bath stating that the village was in danger of total destruction by fire and asking for help from the fire brigade. Everything was placed in readiness and a second message was received saying that the fire was under control and if any danger threatened they would send a message later on in the night. A large crowd gathered at the fire hall and it was the opinion of many that the engine would have been unfit for use had it been taken such a long distance over the rough roads. The blaze originated in Mrs. McTaggart's house about a quarter after nine, and oil stove causing same. The building stood very close together in that vicinity and in a short time the fire had spread to other buildings. The places destroyed were occupied by R. Blackadder, Mrs. McTaggart, Wm. Quinn, Wm. Smith, and James Shibley. Three barns and an outbuilding, besides the five residences, were totally destroyed. By strenuous work the volunteer brigade, who had only buckets to fight the fire with, saved the postoffice and under the circumstances these men probably saved the village from complete ruin. The buildings were insured, and the loss will total in the neighborhood of $5,000.00.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE LIBRARY.

For the past two months the eyes of all Canadians have been directed towards the early history of America, and a few chapters from that history were presented at Quebec at the Tercentenary celebration. To meet the demand for interesting books dealing with these early periods the board of management has purchased the entire series of the "Trail Makers." These books are intensely interesting from a historical standpoint, and it is earnestly hoped they will be freely circulated. They are as follows:

Voyages of Champlain, 1604-1616, as narrated by himself. In these volumes will be found, Champlain's narrative of his famous hunting expeditions in these Countes.

The Journeys of La Salle and His Companions, 1865-1687, as related by himself and his followers. The thrilling adventure of this intrepid explorer, the first white man to be a land owner in this County, should be of interest to all.

The Journey of Alvar Nunez Cabeza de Vaca and His Companions, 1528-1536. This is the story of the first white man to cross our continent, told by himself. His narrative, newly translated, is now made accessible to the general public for the first time. It is a story of shipwreck and battle, of captivity, strange adventures and extraordinary experiences among the Indians.

Narratives of the Career of Hernando de Soto, in the conquest of Florida, relates the experiences of this celebrated adventurer in America.

The Wild Northland presents the other extreme from a climatic standpoint, being the story of a winter journey across the northern part of the continent. General has William Francis Butler.

Lewis & Clark Journals. There has been considerable controversy over the originality of discoveries of these explorers. This is a complete history of the expeditions under their command to the source of the Missouri, thence across the Rock Mountains and down the Columbia River to the Pacific Ocean.

The History of the Five Indian Nations by Cadwallader Colden. The history of our country is so interwoven with that of the original Indian Tribes that a knowledge of these nations is essential to a clear understanding of their displacement by the white men.

Voyages of Alexander Mackenzie, 1789-1793. In a vivid description of the perilous adventures of this early traveller from Montreal through the continent of America to the Pacific and frozen ocean.

The Journey of Coronado, 1540-1542. A description of his trip from the Mexican City of Mexico to the Grand Canon of the Colorado and the buffalo plains of Texas, Kansas and Nebraska.

A Journey of Voyages and Travels in the Interior of North America, by Daniel William Harmon. This is one of the most important of the series, and of a popular character and should not be overlooked.

While the Board does not depreciate the reading of fiction, they would respectfully remind the subscribers that the best readers books in the Library will not be found among that class. Large sums of monies are annually expended in the purchase of excellent books a great many of which are rarely called for. A complete list of all recent purchases and appearing in the printed catalogue will be found posted upon the Bulletin Board in the reading room. A large consignment of new books is now passing through the hands of the reading committee. Among those which have already been added during the past week will be found "The Old Pioneer," by Allen Davis, formerly of our town.

Mr. Crewe's Career, by Winston Church-ill, and "A Canadian Girl in London," by Mrs. Everard Cotes.

Customs and Fashions in old New England, by Alice Morse Earle. This author has spent many years in careful research and has won the reputation of being a standard authority upon everything relating to the old colonial days.

A Pilgrimage to Jerusalem, by Charles Cattermole Trumbull. In the story of the cruise of the World's Fourth Sunday School Convention and of a visit through Palestine. This is a later volume beautifully illustrated. The readers in search of an instructive and well written book of travel will not be disappointed in selects this one.

Popular Fallacies, by A. S. E. Ackermann. If you are wondering what a gondola car is, or why a Pullman car is so called, or what theories are dominated in this volume. The dividend and table turning mind reading and a thousand other popular beliefs all have the same explanation. Is it worth that the Pilgrim Fathers did not sail direct from England to America? That King John did not sign the Magna Charta. That it is not wise to kill a dog whose tail has fallen off? Such a calculating encyclopedia that a fat [illegible] cook a baby's finger and Guy Watt did not invent the steam engine.

—Notwithstanding the fact that The Beaver contains ten pages this week we are unable to get all the matter in the paper, but it will appear next week. Every page contains items of interest. You have not read it all until you get to page ten this week.

We want you to see the Steel-Ribbed Firepot in the

"Hecla" Furnace

The Firepot of a furnace being in direct contact with the fire, contains its most effective heating surface. Any increase in this surface therefore, greatly increases the efficiency of the furnace. That is why STEEL RIBBED FIREPOTS, which have three times as much radiating surface as any other style of firepot, enable the "HECLA" Furnace to save from 10% to 15% of your fuel bill.

This is only one of the many exclusive features of the "Hecla" Furnace. We want to explain them all to you—and prove, by actual tests, that the "Hecla" is the best and most economical furnace you can buy. Stop in any time for a "Hecla" talk and demonstration. 64

More than one best?

When you ask your grocer to send you the best flour, he sends you—the best. When you know the best flour and order by the name, the choice is not left to the grocer. Many grocers handle as their leader. They have found it the safest flour to recommend because its results are sure and its purity is unquestioned. If your grocer's [illegible] is not Royal Household, insist on his getting it for you. The benefit will be mutual.

Royal Household Flour

A Natural Laxative

Inward cleansing is at necessary as outward bathing. To keep the bowels free and regular is of even greater importance than to keep the skin-pores from becoming clogged. The neglect of either invites disease. Everyone needs a natural laxative, occasionally, to free the bowels of accumulated impurities. For this purpose take the greatest boon ever offered to those who suffer from the ills that follow constipation. For over fifty years Beecham's Pills have been famous as a Stomach corrective, a Liver regulator and Bowel laxative. They never gripe nor cause pain. Powerful purgatives are dangerous. Avoid them. Use Beecham's Pills. They give relief without doing violence to any organ. Their action is in harmony with physical laws. Take them regularly and the necessity for their use becomes less frequent. They are a natural laxative and a positive cure for Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache and Dyspepsia.

"RUB IT IN"

This woman says that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved her life.

Mme. Emma Chatel, Valleyfield, Bellerivier, Quebec, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I want to tell you that without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I would not be alive. For months I suffered with painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the feminine organs. Doctors could do nothing for me, and said I must submit to an operation as I had a tumor. One of my friends advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had cured her.

"I did so and now I have no pain and am entirely cured. Your remedy is deserving of great praise."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

"He was so plumb in earnest it scared me up, 'cause Mexico ain't a gabby man.

"What do you mean?" says I.

"I can't tell you nothin' more. I'm puttin' a string on my own neck sayin' this much. You're a square man, Bill, an' I'm a gambler, but you saved my life once, an' I wouldn't steer you wrong. For God's sake, don't let 'em jump your ground, that's all."

"Let who jump it? Congressmen give us judges an' courts an' marshals—I forgive.

"That's just it. How you goin' to buck that hand? Them's the best cards in the deck. There's a man comin' by the name of McNamara. Watch him shoot. I can't tell you no more. But don't never let 'em get a grip on your ground.' That's all he'd say."

"Huh! He's crazy! I wish somebody would try to jump the Midas. We'd enjoy the exercise."

The siren of the Santa Maria interrupted, its hoarse warning throbbing up the mountain.

"We'll have to get aboard," said Dextry.

"Shh!" What's that?" the other whispered.

At first the only sound they heard was a stir from the deck of the steamer. Then from the water below them came the rattle of rowlocks and a voice cautiously muffled.

"Stop! Stop there!"

A shaft burst from the darkness, grounding on the beach beneath. A figure scrambled up and up the hillside, leading the whiff. Immediately a second boat, plainly in pursuit of the first one, struck on the beach behind it.

As the escaping figure mounted to their level the watchers perceived with amazement that it was a young woman. Bobbed sobbed from her lungs, and, stumbling, she would have fallen but for Glenister, who ran forward and helped her to her feet.

"Don't let them get me," she panted. He turned to his fortune in puzzled inquiry, but found that the old man had crossed to the head of the landing ladder up which the passers were climbing.

"Just a minute, you there! Back up or I'll kick your face in!" Dextry's voice was sharp and unexpected, and in the darkness he loomed tall and menacing to Beke below.

"Get out of the way. That woman's a runaway," came from the one highest on the ladder.

"So I jedcke."

"She broke out—"

"Shut up!" broke in another. "Do you want to advertise it? Get out of the way, there, ye blame fool! Climb up, Thorsen." He spoke like a broken mate, and he words stirred the bile of Dextry.

Thorsen grasped the deck floor, trying to climb up, but the old miner stamped on his fingers, and the sailor lowered his hold with a yell, carrying the under men with him to the beach in his fall.

"This way! Follow me!" shouted the mate, making for the bank for the shore end of the wharf.

"You'd better pull your freight, miss," Dextry remonked. "They'll be here in a minute."

"Yes, yes. Let us go! I must get aboard the Santa Maria. She's leaving now. Come, come!"

Glenister laughed as though there were a humorous touch in her remark, but did not stir.

"I'm gettin' awful old an' stiff to run," said Dextry, removing his coonskin. "but I allow I ain't too old for a little diversion in the way of a rough house when it comes nosin' around." He moved lightly, though the girl could see in the half darkness that his hair was silvery.

"What do you mean?" she questioned sharply.

"You hurry along, miss. We'll toy with 'em till you're aboard." They stepped across to the dockhouse, backing against it. The girl followed.

"Again came the warning blast from the steamer and the voice of an officer:

"Clear away that stern line!"

"Oh, we'll be left," she breathed, and somehow it struck Glenister that she feared this more than the men whose approaching feet he heard.

"You can make it all right," he urged her roughly. "You'll get hurt if you stay here. Run along and don't mind us. We've been thirty days on shipboard and were praying for something to happen." His voice was boyishly glad, as if he exulted in the fray that was to come, and he sooner had he spoken than the sailors came out of the darkness upon them.

During the space of a few heartbeats there was only a tangle of whirling forms with the sound of fist on flesh, then ape blot split up, and forms plunged outward, falling heavily. Again the sailors rushed, attempting to clinch. They massed upon Dextry, only to grasp empty air, for he shifted with remarkable agility, striking bitterly, as an old wolf snaps. It was baffling work, however, for in the darkness his blows fell short or overreached.

Glenister, on the other hand, stood carelessly, beating the men off as they came to him. He laughed gloatingly, deep in his chest, as though the encounter were merely some rough sport. The girl shuddered, for the desperate silence of the attacking men was terrified her more than a din, and yet she stayed, crouched against the wall.

Dextry swung at a dim target and, missing it, was whirled off his balance. Instantly his antagonist grappled with him, and they fell to the floor, while a third man shuffled about them. T'e girl throttled a scream.

"I'm glad you're kickin', Bill," the man panted hoarsely. "Le' me fix 'im." He swung his heavy shoe, and Bill cursed, with stirring eloquence.

"Ow! You're kickin' me! I've got 'im safe enough. Tackle the big un."

Bill's ally then entered toward the others, his body bent, his arms flexed, yet hanging loosely. He crouched beside the girl, knowing her, while she heard the breath wheezing from his lungs; then silently he leaped. Glenister had barred a man from him, then stepped back to avoid the others, when he was seized from behind and felt the man's arms wrapped about his neck, the sailor's legs locked about his thighs. Now came the girl's first knowledge of real fighting. The two spun back and forth so closely intwined as to be indistinguishable, the others holding off. For what seemed many minutes they struggled, the young man striving to reach his adversary, till they crashed against the wall near her and she heard her champion's breath coughing in his throat at the lightening grip of the sailor. Fright held her paralyzed, for she had never seen men thus. A moment and a

He turned to his partner in puzzled inquiry, but found that the old man had crossed to the head of the landing ladder up which the pursuers were climbing.

"Just a minute, you there! Back up or I'll kick your face in!" Dextry's voice was sharp and unexpected, and in the darkness he loomed tall and menacing to those below.

Glenister laughed as though there were a humorous touch in her remark, but did not stir.

"I'm gettin' awful old an' stiff to run," said Dextry, removing his mackinaw. "But I allow I ain't too old for a little diversion in the way of a rough horse-where it comes nasty around."

He moved lightly, though the girl could see in the half darkness that his hair was silvery.

"What do you mean?" she questioned sharply.

"You hurry along, miss. We'll try with 'em till you're aboard." They stepped across to the dockhouse, backing against it. The girl followed.

Again came the warning blast from the steamer and the voice of an officer.

"You can make it all right," he urged her roughly. "You'll get hurt if you stay here. Run along and don't mind us. We've been thirty days on shipboard and were praying for something to happen." His voice was boyishly glad, as if he exulted in the fray that was to come, and no sooner had he spoken than the sailors came out of the darkness upon them.

During the space of a few heartbeats there was only a tangle of whirling forms with the sound of fist on flesh, then the blot split up, and forms plunged outward, falling heavily. Again the sailors rushed, attempting to clinch. They massed upon Dextry, only to be ejected. "Isn't there some place where I can hide?" But they reassured her at last.

When they had gone, she crouched trembling upon her seat for a long time, pressing her fist before her. "I'm afraid," she whispered. "I'm afraid. What am I getting into? Why do men look so at me? I'm frightened, but I'm sorry I undertook it." At last she rose wearily. The close cabin oppressed her. She found the seat of fresh air. So, turning out the lights, she stepped forth into the night. Figures loomed near the rail and she slipped astern, screening herself behind a lifeboat, where the cool breeze fanned her face.

The forms she had seen approached, speaking earnestly. Instead of passing, they stopped abreast of her hiding place. Then as they began to talk she saw that her retreat was cut off and that she must stay or jump.

"What brings her here?" Glenister was echoing a question of Dextry's. "Bah! What brings them all? What brought the duchess and Cherry Malotte and all the rest?"

"No, no," said the old man. "She ain't that kind—ain't too fine, too delicate-minded, and before realizing what she did she had acted.

The seaman's back was to her. She reached out and gripped him by the hair, while her fingers, tense as talons, sought his eyes. Then the first loud sound of the battle arose. The man yelled in sudden terror, and the others as suddenly fell back. The next instant she felt a hand upon her shoulder and heard Dextry's voice.

"Are ye hurt? No? Come on, then, or we'll be left." He spoke quietly, though his breath was loud, and, glancing down, she saw the huddled form of the seaman before he had fought.

"That's all right. He ain't hurt. It's a Jap trick I learned. Hurry up!"

They ran swiftly down the wharf, followed by Glenister and by the groans of the sailors in whom the lust of battle had been quenched. As they scrambled up the Santa Maria's gangplank a strip of water widened between her boat and the pier.

"Close shave, that," panted Glenister, feeling his throat gingerly, "but I wouldn't have missed it for a spotted pup."

"I've been through bi'ger explosions and man-soldiers, not to mention a tin' jail delivery, but for real sprightly diversions I don't reelish nothin' more pleasin' than this." Dextry's enthusiasm was boylike.

"What kind of men are you?" the girl laughed nervously, but got no answer.

They led her to their deck cabin, where they switched on the electric light, blinking at each other and at their unknown guest.

They saw a youthful and altogether attractive figure in a trim short skirt and long tan boots. But what Glenister first saw was the large and gray, almost brown under the electric light. They were active eyes, he thought, and they were swift, comprehensive glances at the two men. Her hair had fallen loose and crinkled to her waist, all disorderly from the surroundings, suggesting countless pleasant things that had been strange to him for the past few years.

Pure admiration alone was patent in the older man's gaze.

"I make excuse," said he, "that you're the gamest little chap I ever fought over. Mexikin, Injun or white. What's the trouble?"

"I suppose you think I've done something dreadful, don't you?" she said. "But I haven't. I had to get away from the Midas tonight for—certain reasons. I'll tell you all about it tomorrow. I haven't stolen anything, nor poisoned the crew—really I haven't." She smiled at them, and Glenister found it impossible not to smile with her, though dismayed by her feeble explanation.

"Well, I'll wake up the steward and find a place for you to go," he said at length. He felt a hand double up with some of the women, though. It's awfully crowded aboard."

She felt a detaining hand on his arm. He thought he felt her tremble.

"No, no! I don't want you to do that. They mustn't see me tonight. I know I'm acting strangely and all that, but it's happened so quickly I haven't found my self yet. I'll tell you tomorrow, though, really. Don't let any one see me or it will spoil everything. Wait till tomorrow, please."

She was very white and spoke with eager intensity.

"Help you? Why, sure Mike!" assured the impulsive Dextry. "An', see here, miss—you take your time on explanations. We don't care a cuss what you done. Morals ain't our long suit, 'cause there's never a law of God or man runs north of fifty-three,' as the poetry man remarked, an' he couldn't have spoke truer if he'd knowed what he was sayin'. Everybody is privileged to 'look out' his own game up here. A square deal an' no questions asked."

She looked somewhat doubtful at this till she caught the bent of Glenister's eyes. "Don't worry. You'll be safe enough. Tackle the big un."

Bill's ally then started toward the others, his hasty retreat was feared, yet hanging loosely. He crouched beside the girl, ignoring her, while she heard the man wheezing from his lungs; then silently he leaped. Glenister had hurled a man from him, then stepped back to avoid the others. But he was seized from behind and felt the man's arms wrapped about his neck, the sailor's legs locked about his thighs. Now came the girl's first knowledge of real fighting. The two spun back and forth as Glenister twisted as to be indistinguishable, the others holding off. For what seemed many minutes they struggled, the young man striving to reach his adversary's jaw, till they crashed against the wall near her and she heard her champion's breath coughing in his throat as the tightening grip of the sailor. Fright held her paralyzed, for she had never seen men thus. A moment and Glenister would be down beneath their stamping feet—they would kick his life out with their heavy shoes. At thought of it the necessity of action smote her like a blow in the face. Her terror fell away, her shaking muscles stiffened ings for a telephone system, which will go up in a night. As to tables d'hote, I saw a real French count in Seattle with a monocle. He'd bringing in a restaurant outfit, imported snails and pates de foie gras. All that's wanting is the chaperon. In my flight from the Ohio I left mine. The sailors caught her. You see, I am not far ahead of schedule."

"What part are you going to take in this taming process?" he asked.

She laughed lightly, mockingly, and when she did her answer sounded like a jest.

"I herald the coming of the law," she said.

"The law! Bah! Red tape, a dead language and a horde of shysters! I'm afraid of law in this land. We're too new and too far away from things. It puts too much power in too few hands. Heretofore we men up here have had recourse to our courage and our Colts, but we'll have to unbuckle them both when the law comes. I like the court that hasn't any appeal." He laid hand upon his hip.

"The Colts may go, but the courage never will," she broke in.

"Perhaps. But I've heard rumors already of a plot to prostitute the law. In Dalaska a man warned Dextry, with terror in his eye, to beware of it, that beneath the cloak of justice was a drawn dagger whetted for us fellows who own the rich diggings. I don't think there's any truth in it, but you can't tell."

"The law is the foundation. There can't be any progress without it. There is nothing here now but disorder."

"There isn't half the disorder you think there is. There weren't any crimes in this country till the tenderfeet arrived. We didn't know what a thief was. If you came to a cabin, you walked in without knocking. The owner filled up the coffee-pot and sliced into the bacon; then when he'd started your head he shook hands and asked your name. It was just the same whether his cache was full or whether he'd packed his few pounds of food 200 miles on his back. That was hospitality to make your southern article look pretty small. If there was no one at home, you ate what you needed. There was but one unpardonable breach of etiquette—to fail to leave dry kindlings. I'm afraid of the transitory stage we're coming to—that epoch of chaos between the death of the old and the birth of the new. Frankly, I'm like the old way best. I love the license of it. I love to wrestle with nature, to snatch and grasp and labor for what I have. I've been beyond the line for years, and I want to stay there, where it is just what it was intended to be—a survival of the fittest."

His large hands as he gripped the bulwark were bone and cord, while his rich tones loosed softly from his chest with the lilt of power unlimited behind it. He stood erect, pausel, virile and magnetic. She saw now why he had so joyously hailed the trader's return that night. Even in the hint it was as salt air to the nostrils. Unconsciously she approached him, drawn by the spell of his vitality.

"My pleasures are violent, and my hate is unlikely bitter in my mouth. What I want, I take. I've been that way in the old life, and I'm too selfish to give it up."

He sent flashing out upon the dimly lighted mass of ice, but only he turned toward her and, doing so, touched her wrist—hand next his on the rail.

She was shifting up an inch—unaffectedly, so close that the faint odor from her hair touched him. Her expression was simply one of wonder and interest at his type, so different from any she had known. But the man's eyes were hot and blinded with the sight of her, and he felt only her beauty heightened in the dim light, the brush of her garments and the small, soft hand beneath his. The thrill from the touch of it surged over him, mastered him.

"What I want, I take," he repeated, and then suddenly he reached forth and, taking her in his arms, brushed her to him, kissing her softly, fiercely, full upon the lips. For an instant she lay gasping and stunned against his breast; then she tore her fist free and with all her force struck him full in the face.

"What I want, I take,"

It was as though she beat upon a stone. With one movement he forced her arm to her side, smiling down at the terrified eyes; then, holding her like iron, he kissed her again and again upon the mouth, the eyes, the hair, and released her.

"I am going to love you, Helen," said he.

"And may God strike me dead if I ever stop loving you!" she cried, her voice coming thick and hoarse with passion.

Turning, she walked proudly forward toward her cabin, a trim, straight, haughty figure, and he did not know that her knees were shaking and weak.

CHAPTER IV.

FOR four days the Santa Maria felt blindly through the white fields, drifting north with the spring tide that sets through Bering strait, till on the morning of the fifth open water showed to the east. Creeping through, she broke out into the last stage of the long race, amid the cheers of her weary passengers, and the dull jar of her engines made welcome music to the girl in the deck stateroom.

Soon they picked up a mountainous coast which rose steadily into majestic, barren ranges, still white with the melting snows, and at 10 in the evening, under a golden sunset, amid screaming whistles, they anchored in the roadstead of Nome. Before the rumble of her chains had ceased on the echo from the fleet's sainte had died down the shores, aboard hills the ship was surrounded by a swarm of tiny craft clamoring about her iron sides, while the officer of the day, at the head of the bridge and greeted Captain Stephens. Togs with trailing lights circled discreetly about, awaiting the permission of certain formalities. These over, the uniformed gentleman dropped back into his skiff and rowed away.

"A clean bill of health, captain!" he shouted, saluting the commander.

"Thank ye, sir," roared the sailor, and with that the rowboats swarmed about piratelike, boarding the steamer from all quarters.

As the master turned he looked down from his bridge to the deck below full into the face of Dextry, who had been an intent witness of the meeting. With unbounding dignity Captain Stephens let his left eyelid droop slowly, while a boyish grin spread widely over his face. Simultaneously orders rang sharp and fast from his bridge, and over decks into feverish life, the creak of booms and the clank of donkey boists arose.

"We're here, Miss Stowsway," said Glenister, entering the girl's cabin. "The inspector passed us, and it's time for you to work the magic of hospitality to make your southern article look pretty small. If there was no one at home, you ate what you needed. There was but one unpardonable breach of etiquette—to fail to leave dry kindlings. I'm afraid of the transitory stage we're coming to—that epoch of chaos between the death of the old and the birth of the new. Frankly, I'm like the old way best. I love the license of it. Creeping through, she broke out into the last stage of the long race, amid the cheers of her weary passengers, and the dull jar of her engines made welcome music to the girl in the deck stateroom.

And crowded to the stage with ramparts of merchandise, while every incoming craft deposited its quota upon whatever vantage it could get close at hand till bales, boxes, boilers and baggage of all kinds were confusedly intermixed in one narrow space. Singing longshoremen trundled burdens from the lighters and piled them on the forty, adding to the confusion as they fought over it all, selecting, sorting, loading.

There was no room for more, yet hourly they added to the mass. Teams splashed through the lapping surf or took in on lighters, or surveyors' locks of goods. All was noise, profanity, congestion and feverish hurry. The burning haste rang in the voice of the multitude, showed in its violence of gesture and redness of face, permeated the atmosphere with a magnetic, electrifying energy.

"It's somethin' fierce ashore," said the oarsman. "I been up fer three days an' gotten a blister. There ain't no room nor time nor darkness to sleep in. Ham an' eggs is a dollar an' a half, an' whisky's five times a throw." He wailed the last sadly, as a complaint unspeakable.

"Any trouble doin'?" inquired the old man.

"You know it!" the other cried colorfully. "There was a massacre in the Northern last night."

"Gumbiu' row?"

"Yep. Tilberry called Missou done it."

"Sho!" said Dextry. "I know him. He's a good scout. All three has nodded sagely, and the girl wished for further light, but they volunteered no explanation.

Leaving the skiff they plunged into turmoil. Dodging through the tangle, they came upon a small knot where the refits stood wall to wall and every inch was occupied. Here and there was a vacant space guarded by its owner, who gazed sourly upon all men with the forbidding eye of suspicion. Finding no entry in the confusion, the men stopped.

"Where do you want to go?" they asked Miss Cheney.

There was no longer in Glenister's glance that freedom with which he had met the world in the wilds of the north. He had come to realise dully that here was a girl driven by some strong purpose in seeking her friend to her. In a man of his type her independence awoke only admiration, but her secretive, partisan attitude to him the more. Delicacy in Glenister was lost in a remarkable singleness of purpose. He recalled the words of the man, smile under her abuse and remain utterly ignorant that anything more than the surface of his feelings had been let into the face of Dextry, who had been an intent witness of the meeting. With unbelieving dignity Captain Stephens let his left eyelid droop slowly, while a boyish grin spread widely over his face. Simultaneously orders rang sharp and fast from the bridge, the crew broke into feverish life, the creak of booms and the clank of donkey boilers arose.

"We're here, Miss Stowaway," said Glenister, entering the girl's cabin. "The inspector passed us, and it's time for you to see the magic city. Come, it's a wonderful sight."

This was the first time they had been alone since the scene on the after deck, for, besides ignoring Glenister, she had managed that she should not even see her except in Dextry's presence. Although he had ever since been courteous and considerate, she felt the leaping emotions that were hidden within him and longed to leave the ship, to fly from the spell of his personality. Thoughts of him made her writhe, and yet when he was near she cobld not hate him as she willed. He overpowered her; he would not be hated; he paid no heed to her slights. This very quality reminded her how willingly and unquestioningly he had fought off the sailors from the Ohio at a word from her. She knew he would do so again, and more, and it is hard to be bitter to one who would lay down his life for you even though he has cut off food and the birth of the new. Frankly, I like the old way best. I love the license of it. I love to wrestle with nature, to snatch and fight and fight for what I have. I've been beyond the law for years, and I want to stay there, where life is just what it was intended to be—a survival of the fittest."

His large hands as he gripped the bulwark were brown and corded, while his rich voice lowed softly from his chest with the hint of power unlimited behind it. She stood over her, tall, virile and magnetic. She saw now, who he had so joyously hailed the night of the previous night. To one of his kind it was as salt air to the nostrils. Unconsciously she approached him drawn by the spell of his strength. His pleasures are violent, and my hate is haughty, bitter in my mouth. What I want, I take. That's been my way in the old life, and I'm too selfish to give it up."

He was gazing out upon the dimly lighted miles of ice, but now he turned toward her and, doing so, touched her wrist. Amid not his on the rail.

She was staring up at him unreflectedly, so close that the faint odor from her hair reached him. Her expression was simply one of wonder and curiosity at this type, so different from any she had known. But the man's eyes were hot and blinded with the sight of her, and he felt only her beauty heightened in the dim light, the lush of her garments and the small, soft hand beneath his. The thrill from the touch of it surged over him, mastered him.

"What I want, I take," he repeated, and then suddenly he reached forth and, taking her in his arms, crushed her to him, kissing her softly, fiercely, full upon the lips. For an instant she lay gasping and stunned against his breast, then she tore her fist free and with all her force struck him full in the face.

"What I want, I take."

It was as though she beat upon a stone. With one movement he forced her arm to her side, smiling into her terrified eyes; then, holding her like iron, he kissed her again and again upon the mouth, the eyes, the hair—and released her.

"I am going to love you, Helen," said he.

"And may God strike me dead if I ever stop hating you!" she cried, her voice coming thick and hoarse with passion.

CHAPTER IV.

FOR four days the Santa Maria felt blindly through the white fields, drifting north with the spring tide that sets through Bering strait, till on the morning of the fifth open water showed to the east. Creeping through, she broke out into the last stage of the long race, amid the cheers of her weary passengers, and the dull jar of her propeller was welcome music to the girl in the deck stateroom.

"The Colts may go, but the courage never will," she broke in.

"Perhaps. But I've heard rumors already of a plot to prostitute the law. In Unalaska a man warned Dextry, with terror in his eye, to beware of it; that beneath the cloak of justice was a drawn dagger whetted for the fellows who own the rich diggings. I don't think there's any truth in it, but you can't tell."

"The law is the foundation. There can't be any progress without it. There is nothing here now but disorder."

"There isn't half the disorder you think there is. There weren't any crimes in this country till the tenderfeet arrived. We didn't know what a thief was. If you came to a cabin, you walked in without knocking. The owner filled up the coffee pot and stirred into the baron; then when he'd started from the spell of his personality. Thoughts of him made her writhe, and yet when he was near she cobld not hate him as she willed. He overpowered her; he would not be hated; he paid no heed to her slights. This very quality reminded her how willingly and unquestioningly he had fought off the sailors from the Ohio at a word from her. REMANDED UNTIL MONDAY.

Several boys from Kingston are in the habit of jumping on a freight train and coming to Napanee on a Sunday or holiday. They generally alight at the top of the grade at the east end of the town and have been doing considerable damage to orchards. On Wednesday they were at it again and Mr. Hugh Mooney caught one of the boys in his orchard. Chief Graham was notified and the prisoner was brought before Police Magistrate Baskin, who remanded him until Monday. His name is not known and will be brought to Napanee to appear before the magistrate.

POLICE COURT.

On Saturday night, Sept. 9th, Robert Richardson, of Deseronto, stole a horse and buggy from the sheds of the Market Hotel. On Monday night last Chief Graham located his man and brought him to Napanee. On Tuesday he pleaded guilty before Police Magistrate Baskin and was remanded until Monday for sentence.

Bert. Perry, of Deseronto, a yard of Richardson's, was also arrested for stealing a gold watch from Mr. John Harris, Storms' Corners. He pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence.

Wm. Elliott, who a couple of years ago stole a quantity of copper wire from Mr. Chas. Hambly, and was fined $100 and costs, made Napanee a visit that time. On Monday night he walked into a hotel in Deseronto where Chief Graham happened to be looking after a couple of prisoners, and was taken into custody. He was remanded until Tuesday for sentence.

Riding bicycles on the sidewalk is practised to arrest in town, especially coming down Robinson hill, and Chief Graham wishes to state that the police duties will be specially brought to notice from the date of the law.

PERRY-LAING.

On Wednesday at 12.30 the marriage of Jessie E. Laing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Laing, and Mr. Arthur J. Perry, son of Mrs. L. E. Perry, of Brantford, late of Newburgh, was solemnized at the residence of the bride's parents, Deseronto, by Rev. T. A. Rodger, B.A., of that place, officiating. The drawing room in which the ceremony took place was prettily decorated with palms, ferns, foliage and asters. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a very becoming princess gown of cream silk muslin and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Ethel Laing, sister of the bride, and Miss Ethel Laing played the wedding march from Lohengrin. A reception followed and at 1.07 the happy couple took a quiet road to Belleville. The 4.20 Canadian Express carried the bridal party on their trip down the St. Lawrence to Kingston and Brockville, the bride wearing a handsome travelling suit of brown broadcloth with hat to match. The wedding gifts made a most expensive display of the popularity of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Perry will reside at Brantford. The guests from outside points were the groom's parents, Mr. Edward Vale, of Mount Forest, brother-in-law of the groom, Mr. John Sweet, and Miss Edna Sweet, of Listowel, and Miss Jen. Vallance, of Palmerston.

BASEBALL OF YORE.

A letter was received this week from a former Napanee'er who is pleased with the success of the local baseball team this season, and incidentally recalls to mind the old Sidney Leaf days. The writer was a member of the famous Sidney Leaf team that represented Napanee many years ago. He says this team was composed of lads under 16 years of age, was organized for four years, and never defeated. Their opponents were Belleville, Kingston, Ottawa, Bath and all the places around Napanee. There is only one member of the present team living in Napanee and that is Sammy Hiatt. He was our star first baseman. The original team, as far as he could remember were: James Herring, dead; Johnny Phelan, the latter who died last year; brothers Potter Davis, catcher, Sammy Hiatt, first base, Bill Potter, second base, Charles Muir, (who died on the Pacific coast), short stop, Johnny Hooper and "Primsy" Pringle, (both dead) short stops, in the field, Bill Ross, Charley Mills and Charley Schryver, (who died in Toronto a couple of years ago) and "Hatty" Fralick, these (God) official scorer. The above names will be well remembered by the older generation.

HOW TO COOK SWEETBREADS.

For a light summer salad sweetbreads are unsurpassed. Chop two of them into small pieces, season with white pepper and a little salt, if necessary; add one cupful each of chopped English walnut kernels and celery. Serve on lettuce with a cream mayonnaise dressing; garnish with pitted olives. Sweetbread croquettes are much to be preferred to those made of heavier and richer meats. Chop them very fine, add two, well-beat eggs, a tablespoonful of butter, form into balls, dip into egg, roll in cracker-crumbs and fry a golden brown. Serve in cups with lemon-sauce. The German method of preparing sweetbreads is worthy of trial: Cut them into pieces the size of dice and boil them in a sauce made with a tablespoonful of flour and one of butter, moistened a little with the water in which they were first cooked until as thick as cream. Flavor with lemon-juice, and just before serving stir in a well-beaten egg, with a little water to prevent from curdling. Green peas and mushrooms are all best when served with sweetbreads. Soak the mushrooms and stew for an hour in the water in which the sweetbreads were parboiled; then add to the sauce, with half a cupful of cream, a lump of butter, and pepper and salt to taste. Serve with dressing when combined with sweetbreads and peas seem to bring out the dainty flavor of both without destroying either. Stuffed sweetbreads furnish a dish which practically has no equal. After parboiling, cut them open, stuff and sew up. Prepare the dressing of grated bread-crumbs, lemon peel, butter, cayenne pepper and nutmeg; mix it with well-beaten yolks of egg. Have ready some slips of fat bacon and lemon peel, and lard each as thick as small straws. Lard the sweetbreads with alternate layers of bacon and lemon peel. Then put in a pan, set in the oven, and baste every few minutes with hot gravy, thickened with the pan-drippings, and flavored with lemon-juice.—The October Delineator.
